Pact 'Safe,' Kennedy Says

Most Of Ala. Guard Will Be Released

Stone Smashes Window Of Negro Students' Car

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Parents of white students boycotting a newly integrated Birmingham school were threatened with prosecution Wednesday unless the children return.

The stern warning from the school board climaxed an eventful day which brought a new outbreak of violence—a rock-throwing attack on a car carrying two Negro students home from the boycotted West End High School. The car window was smashed, but no one was injured.

In Washington, the Army announced that all but 675 of the 16,000 federalized Alabama National Guardsmen will be released from federal duty at midnight Thursday.

The troops were put under federal control Tuesday, as Gov. George Wallace sought to use them in place of state troopers to bar Negroes from white schools in Birmingham and three other Alabama cities.

Little Disorder

Except for the boycott at West End High here and a similar stay-away campaign at a Tuskegee school, attendance was near normal in most Alabama schools newly segregated, and there was little disorder.

Two white students were suspended indefinitely at Murphy High in Mobile for leaving school without permission, and a third was sent home until Friday for what school authorities called disruptive conduct on the campus. The disciplinary action followed a mild anti-Negro demonstration at the school.

The Birmingham school board reminded parents, of the more than 1,000 West End students who were absent Wednesday that it must report continued unauthorized absences to juvenile authorities.

No Expulsion Anticipated

Under Alabama school laws, the board's statement said parents, guardians or others having charge of school children "are subject to prosecution in the juvenile" if they knowingly permit unexcused absences.

The statement did not spell out the maximum penalty under the law.

The school board did not mention possible suspension of the absent students themselves.

Supt. Theo Wright previously had said no expulsion was anticipated because a federal court had ruled that Negro students who left school to take part in demonstrations against segregation could not be expelled.

The two Negro girls had just

Progress Made On Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress took its first step Wednesday toward putting together a civil rights bill as the House Civil Rights subcommittee tentatively approved one section of the administration's civil rights program.

And in the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., concluded his marathon questioning of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on the administration plan.

The windup came on Kennedy's 10th appearance since mid-July with Erwin citing "two glaring examples" of federal civil rights practices discriminating against white people.

Viet Nam Chief Seen Rejecting Lodge Request

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. officials awaited with little optimism a response from President Ngo Dinh Diem to what a high official source called a formal American request for removal of his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, from South Viet Nam's government.

Nhu is counselor and intelligence chief. He is widely regarded as the mastermind of the military crackdown Aug. 21 on Buddhist opponents of the government and subsequent operations against rebellious Saigon students.

A high official source said Tuesday that U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has asked Diem to oust Nhu and suggested it would be advisable for Nhu to leave the country.

Earlier Hints Ignored

Broad hints from Washington had been ignored. Lodge's request may get the same treatment. U.S. officials expressed belief Diem, 62, will reject it. He has said repeatedly he regards Nhu, 52, as extremely helpful.

Both the brothers have denied speculation that Nhu, whose attractive wife is the bachelor president's official hostess, in fact controlled the government.

While Saigon schools carried on under military guard and heavy fighting flared between government and Communist forces in the southern tip of Viet Nam, two other members of the family figured in developments abroad:

Diem Brother Leaves Rome

— Archbishop Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc, 65, the President's elder brother, abruptly left Rome for New York, 24 hours after the cancellation Tuesday of a scheduled private audience with Pope Paul VI. The Roman Catholic prelate told Italian newsmen the Holy See had vetoed further talk from him, "especially in a foreign country," concerning the Vietnamese situation and "only in my own diocese may I speak."

— Mrs. Nhu, silent throughout a 36-hour stopover in Lebanon, finally told Beirut newsmen, "I won't say anything because everytime I talk to the press they make it sound foolish." Then she took off with a six-member Vietnamese delegation to attend a parliamentary union conference in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Senate Given Assurances By President

No Restrictions On Authority To Use A-Arms In Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy told the Senate Wednesday that the limited nuclear test ban treaty is "safe" and will in no way tie the President's hands against using nuclear weapons in defense of the United States or its allies.

In a letter, Kennedy pledged to carry out safeguards insisted on by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in giving their support to the pact. He also tried to answer major arguments raised by doubters and opponents and declared:

"It is not only safe but necessary, in the interest of this country and the interest of mankind, that this treaty should now be approved, and the hope for peace which it offers fully sustained, by the senate. . ."

One of the treaty's staunchest foes remained unmoved. Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C. told the Senate its ratification could "leave the U.S. with alternatives only of submitting to nuclear blackmail, nuclear war or surrender."

Letter Suggested By Leaders

Kennedy's letter, addressed to Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, was written at their suggestion. Dirksen read the letter to the Senate to emphasize bipartisan support for the treaty.

It was inserted in a speech in which Dirksen told his colleagues he had faithfully taken a hard look at all the evidence before deciding to give the pact his wholehearted support.

Then ticking off his reasons for giving it his backing, the GOP leader declared: "Mr. President, I would like to do one little thing at least—take one little step with some hope and faith—to make a start toward a new and larger hope that there will not be another Hiroshima and Nagsaki. This step could be it. If not, we shall always remain a strong nation, but we must abide history's judgment if the step was in error. Time alone will tell the story."

Attendance Picks Up

In contrast to the sparse attendance during the first two days of the debate, about half the 100 senators were on hand for Dirksen's speech.

Dirksen said, "It will be easier to ratify this treaty if we do not expect too much." Kennedy, he said, had spelled out clearly what the treaty will not do.

The treaty to ban all except underground nuclear tests, he said, fully assures "a program that will keep us strong in the nuclear field and give us the requisite strength to meet any challenge to our security and vital interests."

Kennedy's list of what he called "unqualified and unequivocal assurances" included the four safeguards emphasized by the nation's military leaders:

—"Underground nuclear testing, which is permitted under the

Church School Raids By Jews Bring Protests

JERUSALEM, Isareli Sector (AP)—A 27-year-old salesman assumed responsibility Wednesday for demonstrations by youthful Jewish religious zealots at Christian schools in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa.

Britain and France sharply protested against Tuesday's violent attacks and an Israeli government spokesman promised that all legal steps would be taken to prevent a recurrance. Prime Minister Levi Eshkol expressed regret.

Dov Bre Zohar was introduced at a news conference as the head of the "Circle of Activists" which organized the demonstrations.

Zohar declared the demonstrations were aimed "against those who snatch our children from us with intent to convert them."

He said that organized groups of missionaries "often mislead parents through economic baits and other privileges to entrusting them with their children for educational care without telling parents that conversion to their faith is intended by the time they leave school."

Archbishop George Haiim, head of the Greek Catholic community, delivered a stiff protest about the raids on the schools, and the roughing up he got himself. The protest went to Dr. Zerah Wahraftig, minister of religious affairs.

Bands of Orthodox youths broke into schools to protest what they consider Christian missionary work. They slapped children, assaulted teachers, molested the archbishop and caused some damage.

The British charge d'affaires, Desmond Pakenham, told Dr. Chaim Yahiel, director general of the Foreign Ministry, that attackers at the Church of Scotland, Presbyterian School in Jaffa struck down the school's Scottish headmistress and three Israeli women teachers.

Pakenham said the school engaged in no mission work whatsoever.

4,000 Whites Picket City Hall At Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—White property owners threw a picket ring around City Hall Wednesday in a losing battle against an ordinance that bans racial or religious discrimination by brokers in renting or selling real estate.

Capt. James Riordan, deputy chief of patrol, estimated that 4,000 persons participated.

But three hours after the picketing ended, the City Council approved the ordinance that bars discrimination for race, religion or other reasons by real estate brokers in the sale, lease or rental of property.

The vote was 30 to 16.

But the war against the ordinance isn't ended. Percy E. Wagner, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, said it "will be tested in the courts."

The demonstrators paraded around the block-square City Hall-Cook County building for about two hours while aldermen prepared to vote on the disputed measure.

Most of the pickets were women. They wore wash dresses, afternoon frocks or slacks. One woman carried a baby in her arms. A young mother pushed her chubby son in a stroller.

The women — and some mostly middle-aged men — carried signs urging a referendum on so-called fair housing and asking: "What freedom do we have left?"

While 80 policemen watched, the march went off peacefully and, at the end, the marchers boarded their chartered buses and went back to their neighborhoods.

There were few incidents. A Negro became involved in an argument in a cluster of white spectators across the street from City Hall. But no blows were struck.

David Bockoff, 22, a white youth from suburban Evanston, got into the parade with a placard reading: "For open occupancy." Police guided him away.

He crossed the street and a gray-haired man pushed him in the back and shouted: "You're a traitor to your race, you dirty dog!"

Airline Strike Set For Oct. 10 By Machinists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Association of Machinists announced Wednesday it will strike United Air Lines Oct. 10. A spokesman said IAM workers have also approved strike action against Trans World Airlines and similar votes are under way against five other carriers.

If the strikes take place—and they could be delayed by presidential action—a major segment of the nation's commercial air transport could be snarled simultaneously in a dispute over wages and fringe benefits.

Frank Heisler, airline coordinator for the AFL-CIO union, said the strike votes now being taken involve employes of Northwest, Braniff, Continental, Eastern and National Airlines.

Three-fourths approval is required, plus approval of the IAM Executive Council here, Heisler said.

Only the walkout threatened against United has reached that stage of approval. Negotiations broke down last Friday and an offer of arbitration by the National Mediation Board was rejected by the union.

The strike against United is scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Oct. 10, Heisler said.

"Weird" Notes

Ransom Demanded For 2 Missing Girls

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The mothers of two small girls believed to have been kidnaped by a candy-carrying stranger Wednesday received "weird" scribbled notes, one demanding $2,000 ransom for the return of the children.

Detective Inspector Calvin Hawkinson said the letters appeared to be the work of cranks but "we are taking them seriously until we find out otherwise."

The letters, scribbled in large handwriting with a pen, were found in the women's mail boxes.

Hawkinson said the notes looked like "crank letters." He said they gave police no leads to the whereabouts or fate of the girls, missing for five days.

The children, Melissa Ann Lee, 5, and Barbara Ann Foshaug, 4, were last seen Saturday evening talking with a man who offered them candy. A 5-year-old playmate said the tall, black-haired stranger forced Melissa into his car and Barbara followed voluntarily.

Hawkinson refused to confirm a statement by Mrs. Melvin Leverett, 23, mother of Melissa Ann, that the notes were written in the same handwriting. He also declined to say whether they had been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), which entered the case Tuesday.

FBI investigators were not immediately available for comment. Earlier Wednesday they said they had "nothing new to report."

A naval helicopter, communicating with two homicide squads on the ground via walkie-talkie radio, scoured rooftops in the area.

Mrs. Leverett said the note she received was "weird... .written in poor handwriting, like a kid or a nut." She said Mrs. Erla Foshaug, mother of Barbara Ann, received another "weird" letter written in the same handwriting.

"It shook me up," Mrs. Leverett said. "I don't know what to think now. I hope and pray they're alive."

She said the letter "asked for $2,000 if I wanted to see my little girl again — I don't know where we'd get that kind of money."

Jackie Paints For Yule Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Christmas cards bearing reproductions of two paintings of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will be sold throughout the country this fall to help raise funds for the proposed national cultural center here.

The White House said Wednesday in making the announcement that the original water colors were painted by the First Lady this year while vacationing on Cape Cod. A spokesman said Mrs. Kennedy did the paintings specially for the cards and that it was her own idea.

Hazardous Trip

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP)—Two young East German boys negotiated a Communist mine field and crawled through barbed wire Wednesday to visit their grandparents in West Germany.

Police said they would be returned via a less hazardous route.

Three Negro Students Enter S. Carolina U.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Three Negroes registered without incident at the University of South Carolina Wednesday and drove another breach into the South's crumbling resistance to public school integration.

In a registration procedure carefully staged by university officials, a Negro coed and two male students signed up for the fall term—cracking an all-white tradition that had stood for 86 years.

Forced to integrate by federal court decree, the university admitted Miss Henri Monteith, 18, of Columbia; Robert G. Anderson Jr., 20, of Greenville; and James L. Solomon Jr., 33, a graduate student from Sumter.

State troopers and State Law Enforcement Division agents patrolled streets surrounding the midtown campus.

Marine With One Leg Passes Parachute Test

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP)—A tough Marine, who had to prove his right to remain in one of the toughest branches of the Marine Corps despite loss of a leg, did it with ease Wednesday — making a perfect parachute jump into a lake.

It was Sgt. Donald N. Hamblen's 216th leap, but his first since last Sept. 21 when his chute dropped him onto 12,000-volt power lines. The 5-foot-10 Korean War veteran's left leg was burned and later amputated just below the knee.

Hamblen, 31, from Augusta, Maine, with a handicap most would call crippling, resolved not only to remain a Marine but to stay in his 1st Force Reconnaissance Co.—a crack outfit whose men must pass rigid physical tests on land, on and under water and in the air.

The jump was the final test. He already had won permission to become the Marine Corps' only one-legged member. He'd passed physical tests on land and water.

He guided himself expertly to within 50 yards of a pickup boat in Lake O'Neil.

Fifteen feet above the water, he slipped his harness and—wearing full combat gear including heavy boots—dropped into the lake. He was swimming toward the boat before his chute hit the water.

Hamblen himself, the strong and silent type, played down the heroics: "It's good to be back in harness again," he said simply. "My tin leg caused absolutely no interference during the jump."

These were the steps on his comeback campaign: First, a strenuous fitness campaign. He ran, swam, did calisthenics.

Race Barriers Fall At Old Ala. College

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP)—Racial barriers fell Wednesday at Alabama's oldest chartered college with the court-ordered enrollment of Wendell Wilkie Gunn, 20, at Florence State College.

It was the third Alabama college to admit Negroes this year under federal court orders. In June, two Negroes were admitted to the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa and another entered the university's extension center at Huntsville.

Sinatra Accused Of Hosting Mobster

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The Nevada Gaming Control Board Wednesday charged singer Frank Sinatra with playing host to a Chicago underworld figure at his Lake Tahoe resort, the Cal-Neva Lodge.

The board's complaint says the crooner knowingly hosted Momo Salvatore (Sam) Giancana at the lodge between July 17 and 28.

In allegedly doing this, Sinatra may have violated a Nevada gaming regulation which prohibits "catering to persons of notorious, unsavory reputation."

Giancana is one of 11 persons included in the Nevada "Black book" as persona non grata at any Nevada casino. Intentionlly catering to any black book member is grounds for license revocation.

Sen. Goldwater Blasts "Kennedy Clan" Policy

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Wednesday night President Kennedy is taking the nation down the road of "irresponsible spending, questionable defense and dubious foreign relations."

In a sweeping attack on the Democratic administration, Goldwater said in a speech prepared for the National Federation of Republican Women that the New Frontier has adopted a "daddy knows best" attitude in an effort to regulate, not govern, the people.

As a potential candidate for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, Goldwater called on Republicans to quit tagging each other with labels. This was an obvious reference to the recent statement of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a possible rival for the nomination, that the "radical right" was trying to make Goldwater its captive.

Attacking what he called "the Kennedy clan" and the administration's foreign policy, Goldwater said:

"We are forced to make judgments out of half-truths, to form policy on the thin ice of evasion and concealed facts.

"Today there aren't 10 men in America who know the full truth about Cuba, all the facts of the test ban treaty, or the commitments made on behalf of this nation with governments dedicated to the idea of destroying us.

"I don't mind the Kennedys keeping some family secrets, but there is such a thing as carrying clannishness too far."

Typhoon Gloria Rakes Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) —Typhoon Gloria, with center winds of 140 miles an hour, smashed across Formosa Wednesday night. It deluged the island with nearly two feet of rain and marooned more than 100,000 persons on dikes along the Tamsui River here.

The massive storm, biggest of the Pacific season so far, roared in from the Philippines, poured 21 inches of rain on Formosa in 36 hours and sent streams surging through cities and villages.

At least five persons were reported killed on Formosa, raising the over-all death toll of the typhoon to at least 22. The storm had left 17 dead in its sweep across the northern Philippines.

Police feared the casualty figures might run into the thousands, with other thousands made homeless by the winds and the floods. American military families were forced to leave their homes on low-lying lands.

Three persons were killed at Hsinchu near Taipei when the winds blew a train off the rails and sent the engine and first car tumbling down an embankment into a raging river.

Airline Strike Set For Oct. 10 By Machinists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Association of Machinists announced Wednesday it will strike United Air Lines Oct. 10. A spokesman said IAM workers have also approved strike action against Trans World Airlines and similar votes are under way against five other carriers.

If the strikes take place—and they could be delayed by presidential action—a major segment of the nation's commercial air transport could be snarled simultaneously in a dispute over wages and fringe benefits.

Frank Heisler, airline coordinator for the AFL-CIO union, said the strike votes now being taken involve employes of Northwest, Braniff, Continental, Eastern and National Airlines.

Three-fourths approval is required, plus approval of the IAM Executive Council here, Heisler said.

Only the walkout threatened against United has reached that stage of approval. Negotiations broke down last Friday and an offer of arbitration by the National Mediation Board was rejected by the union.

The strike against United is scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Oct. 10, Heisler said.

"Weird" Notes

Ransom Demanded For 2 Missing Girls

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The mothers of two small girls believed to have been kidnaped by a candy-carrying stranger Wednesday received "weird" scribbled notes, one demanding $2,000 ransom for the return of the children.

Detective Inspector Calvin Hawkinson said the letters appeared to be the work of cranks but "we are taking them seriously until we find out otherwise."

The letters, scribbled in large handwriting with a pen, were found in the women's mail boxes.

Hawkinson said the notes looked like "crank letters." He said they gave police no leads to the whereabouts or fate of the girls, missing for five days.

The children, Melissa Ann Lee, 5, and Barbara Ann Foshaug, 4, were last seen Saturday evening talking with a man who offered them candy. A 5-year-old playmate said the tall, black-haired stranger forced Melissa into his car and Barbara followed voluntarily.

Hawkinson refused to confirm a statement by Mrs. Melvin Leverett, 23, mother of Melissa Ann, that the notes were written in the same handwriting. He also declined to say whether they had been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), which entered the case Tuesday.

FBI investigators were not immediately available for comment. Earlier Wednesday they said they had "nothing new to report."

A naval helicopter, communicating with two homicide squads on the ground via walkie-talkie radio, scoured rooftops in the area.

Mrs. Leverett said the note she received was "weird. . .written in poor handwriting, like a kid or a nut." She said Mrs. Erla Foshaug, mother of Barbara Ann, received another "weird" letter written in the same handwriting.

"It shook me up," Mrs. Leverett said. "I don't know what to think now. I hope and pray they're alive."

She said the letter "asked for $2,000 if I wanted to see my little girl again — I don't know where we'd get that kind of money."

Jackie Paints For Yule Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Christmas cards bearing reproductions of two paintings of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will be sold throughout the country this fall to help raise funds for the proposed national cultural center here.

The White House said Wednesday in making the announcement that the original water colors were painted by the First Lady this year while vacationing on Cape Cod. A spokesman said Mrs. Kennedy did the paintings specially for the cards and that it was her own idea.

Hazardous Trip

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP)—Two young East German boys negotiated a Communist mine field and crawled through barbed wire Wednesday to visit their grandparents in West Germany.

Police said they would be returned via a less hazardous route.

Three Negro Students Enter S. Carolina U.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Three Negroes registered without incident at the University of South Carolina Wednesday and drove another breach into the South's crumbling resistance to public school integration.

In a registration procedure carefully staged by university officials, a Negro coed and two male students signed up for the fall term—cracking an all-white tradition that had stood for 86 years.

Forced to integrate by federal court decree, the university admitted Miss Henri Monteith, 18, of Columbia; Robert G. Anderson Jr., 20, of Greenville; and James L. Solomon Jr., 33, a graduate student from Sumter.

Marine With One Leg Passes Parachute Test

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP)—A tough Marine, who had to prove his right to remain in one of the toughest branches of the Marine Corps despite loss of a leg, did it with ease Wednesday — making a perfect parachute jump into a lake.

It was Sgt. Donald N. Hamblem's 216th leap, but his first since last Sept. 21 when his chute dropped him onto 12,000-volt power lines. The 5-foot-10 Korean War veteran's left leg was burned and later amputated just below the knee.

Hamblen, 31, from Augusta, Maine, with a handicap most would call crippling, resolved not only to remain a Marine but to stay in his 1st Force Reconnaissance Co.—a crack outfit whose men must pass rigid physical tests on land, on and under water and in the air.

The jump was the final test. He already had won permission to become the Marine Corps' only one-legged member. He'd passed physical tests on land and water.

He guided himself expertly to within 50 yards of a pickup boat in Lake O'Neil.

Fifteen feet above the water, he slipped his harness and—wearing full combat gear including heavy boots—dropped into the lake. He was swimming toward the boat before his chute hit the water.

Hamblen himself, the strong and silent type, played down the heroics: "It's good to be back in harness again," he said simply. "My tin leg caused absolutely no interference during the jump."

These were the steps on his comeback campaign: First, a strenuous fitness campaign. He ran, swam, did calisthenics.

Race Barriers Fall At Old Ala. College

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP)—Racial barriers fell Wednesday at Alabama's oldest chartered college with the court-ordered enrollment of Wendell Wilkie Gunn, 20, at Florence State College.

It was the third Alabama college to admit Negroes this year under federal court orders. In June, two Negroes were admitted to the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa and another entered the university's extension center at Huntsville.

Sinatra Accused Of Hosting Mobster

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The Nevada Gaming Control Board Wednesday charged singer Frank Sinatra with playing host to a Chicago underworld figure at his Lake Tahoe resort, the Cal-Neva Lodge.

The board's complaint says the crooner knowingly hosted Momo Salvatore (Sam) Giancana at the lodge between July 17 and 28.

In allegedly doing this, Sinatra may have violated a Nevada gaming regulation which prohibits "catering to persons of notorious, unsavory reputation."

Giancana is one of 11 persons included in the Nevada "Black book" as persona non grata at any Nevada casino. Intentionlly catering to any black book member is grounds for license revocation.

Sen. Goldwater Blasts "Kennedy Clan" Policy

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Wednesday night President Kennedy is taking the nation down the road of "irresponsible spending, questionable defense and dubious foreign relations."

In a sweeping attack on the Democratic administration, Goldwater said in a speech prepared for the National Federation of Republican Women that the New Frontier has adopted a "daddy knows best" attitude in an effort to regulate, not govern, the people.

As a potential candidate for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, Goldwater called on Republicans to quit tagging each other with labels. This was an obvious reference to the recent statement of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a possible rival for the nomination, that the "radical right" was trying to make Goldwater its captive.

Attacking what he called "the Kennedy clan," and the administration's foreign policy, Goldwater said:

"We are forced to make judgments out of half-truths, to form policy on the thin ice of evasion and concealed facts.

"Today there aren't 10 men in America who know the full truth about Cuba, all the facts of the test ban treaty, or the commitments made on behalf of this nation with governments dedicated to the idea of destroying us.

"I don't mind the Kennedys keeping some family secrets, but there is such a thing as carrying clannishness too far."

Typhoon Gloria Rakes Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) —Typhoon Gloria, with center winds of 140 miles an hour, smashed across Formosa Wednesday night. It deluged the island with nearly two feet of rain and marooned more than 100,000 persons on dikes along the Tamsui River here.

The massive storm, biggest of the Pacific season so far, roared in from the Philippines, poured 21 inches of rain on Formosa in 36 hours and sent streams surging through cities and villages.

At least five persons were reported killed on Formosa, raising the over-all death toll of the typhoon to at least 22. The storm had left 17 dead in its sweep across the northern Philippines.

Police feared the casualty figures might run into the thousands, with other thousands made homeless by the winds and the floods. American military families were forced to leave their homes on low-lying lands.

Three persons were killed at Hsinchu near Taipei when the winds blew a train off the rails and sent the engine and first car tumbling down an embankment into a raging river.

Teenagers In Racial Clash At South Bend

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Rock-throwing and fist fights between white persons and Negroes during an abortive end to a free party for 6,000 teen-agers caused police Wednesday to map plans for beefed-up patrols at high school football games.

The youngsters, worked into a hand-clapping frenzy by the gyrations of a rock 'n' roll singer, started the melee when lights in a football stadium were turned off Tuesday night for one number.

Police, who ordered the lights turned back on and rushed into the stands to break up scuffles, cut the program short and sent the teen-agers home a few minutes later as battling continued.

"If the thing had gone another half hour, we would have had a riot," Police Inspector Cornelius Nicholas said.

Nicholas' 16-year-old daughter was one of the spectators at the community-sponsored "Salute to the Future" show and told her father she saw several officers running up in the stands and breaking up fist fights.

Nicholas said other fights and rock-hurlings were reported as the milling crowd left the stadium at School Field and split into smaller groups as they started home.

He added that all of those reported to police involved Negroes attacking smaller groups of white youths.

Three white youths were treated at Memorial Hospital for bruises.

Lt. Neal Hans, head of the police department's Juvenile Bureau, said extra men—totaling about 30 city policemen and Civil Defense patrolmen—were assigned to the stadium, located in an all-white neighborhood on the East Side.

Hans also said extra police would be on duty at future events involving large teen-age crowds.

Nicholas said no arrests were made.

Police said earlier incidents of similar teen-age fighting in the city had not followed the racial pattern which evolved in the melee. The city has had little racial trouble of any nature in the past.

Suspicious Fires

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — After three fires in the local income tax office, Scottish detectives are becoming suspicious. They pointed out that each of the fires has been in the department where the income tax forms are stacked.

Young Concert Violinist Ends Her Life At 17

COVENTRY, Conn. (AP) — It was routine for pretty Penny Ambrose to practice seven or eight hours daily on the violin.

She had done it since she was 7, and now, at 17, she was acclaimed as a young concert musician of exceptional promise.

But Tuesday, after she practiced, Penny walked into the family garage, got into a car and started the engine. Her mother, who was out, found her body later. State police said it was an apparent suicide.

A neighbor, Ellen Wennerberg, who called an ambulance and then helped in attempts to revive the girl, said she left a note that said: "Dear mother, I love you dearly."

That was all. No reason—nothing.

Penny, whose real name was Priscilla Anne, had won a scholarship to the Mannes College of Music in New York City when she was 10.

She and her mother, Mrs. Peter Cam Ambrose, lived in New York three days a week. Penny studied at the Coventry Day School two days a week. Her mother tutored her the rest of the time. Later, she studied at the New York Professional Children's School.

Her father is a tool engineer. She had one brother, who is 21.

Penny made both her concert debut and a national television appearance on the Telephone Hour when she was 13. Last November, at 16, she was the youngest entry in the Wieniawski violin competition in Poznan, Poland. She had played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Malfeasance Trial Of Prosecutor Opens

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP)—An all-male jury was selected and one witness testified as the malfeasance trial of State's Atty. Charles A. Norris opened Wednesday in St. Marys County Circuit Court.

The trial, originally scheduled to start Thursday, opened one day early to permit testimony from Trial Magistrate William M. Loker Jr., who is slated to make an out-of-town trip.

The three-judge panel postponed opening statements until Thursday.

Norris, 29, was indicted Aug. 9, on a charge that he failed to question a witness in connection with a grand jury investigation of a gambling raid June 13 near Charlotte Hall.

Only minutes before, white motorists had cursed the two girls, Patricia Marcus and Josephine Powell, when the car in which they were riding home from West End High School at the end of the school day got tied up in heavy traffic.

The driver pulled around a corner and stopped after the rock shattered the right front window of the car, and a crowd, composed mostly of white teen-agers, quickly gathered.

Police were unable to determine immediately who threw the rock. A police riot squad, sprinting the 1½ blocks from the school, restored order within minutes.

The Negro girls were reluctant to discuss the incident with newsmen. No one tried to attack the girls or their driver.

It was the first reported outbreak of violence in the second day of school desegregation in Birmingham, although a noisy crowd of several hundred white students boycotted West End High again.

COREman Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Karl D. Gregory, chairman of the Washington Housing Committee of the Congress of Racial Equality, was fired Wednesday.

He was dismissed by the Washington chairman for CORE, Julius W. Hobson, for issuing what Hobson called "unauthorized and unverified complaints" of racial discrimination by Washington area developers.

The announcement of Gregory's dismissal followed disclosure that CORE had accused a Northern Virginia developer of discriminating against a Negro couple without knowing that the developer had sold a home to another Negro couple.

CORE complained to the President's Committee on Equal Opportunity in Housing that a Negro test applicant from CORE had been subjected to discrimination by subterfuge.

However, it was disclosed later that a Negro Army sergeant and his wife—with no prompting from anyone—had bought a home in the same development about an hour before the CORE representative arrived.

CORE's complaint was sent to the President's committee by Gregory.

Fly Girls' Skirts Expand To Fit Bulging Tummies

LONDON (AP) — A British airline has announced introduction of a self-expanding skirt for high-flying stewardesses.

"The new skirt," said a spokesman for the British Overseas Airways Corp., "will have an elastic panel with a two-button adjuster on the side."

Pausing for emphasis he added: "It should take care of those bulging tummies in the air."

Bulging tummies in the air?

"Oh, yes," he said, "Boyle's Law, you know."

What's Boyle's Law?

"The volume and pressure of a gas vary inversely."

Come again, please?

"It's this way—as the girls ascend to an altitude of say 5,000 feet and above, their tummies swell.

"This makes their skirts too tight and quite naturally they don't like it."

The long-suffering girls finally complained officially about the bulge. They said their skirts fit beautifully on the ground but not so beautifully in the air.

"The first of the skirts should be in the air this week," said the spokesman.

Teacher Fingerprint Ruling Is Reaffirmed By State Board

BALTIMORE (AP)—The State Board of Education reaffirmed Wednesday a previous ruling which ordered the Montgomery County Board of Education to rescind its controversial resolution on the fingerprint records of teachers.

Since 1961, the Montgomery school system has taken fingerprints of employes and sent them to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for comparison against possible criminal records. If anything was turned up, school officials checked with local police on details of the offense.

On May 27, the county board voted 4-3 to remove the fingerprint records from the schools and turn them over to local police. The state board, on July 2, ordered the county board to rescind the resolution, contending such records should not be kept by an agency outside the school system.

The Montgomery County Board of Education then asked that the state board's order be clarified, so it would not be construed to prevent the transfer of FBI information to local police for checking.

The state board said Wednesday no change in its order was necessary, and that the procedure adopted two years ago could still be carried out.

Three teachers have challenged the county board's resolution in court, charging it violated their privacy and was a breach of contract.

However, Circuit Court officials said they must first decide if the state board has authority to order the county resolution rescinded. That case will be heard Monday. If the court rules the state board's order is valid, the teachers' suit would become moot.

Gives Brain Rest

LONDON (UPI)—Mrs. Anastasia O'Farrell said Tuesday her scholarship winning 11-year-old son David, just brought back by police after running away for two weeks, has left home 10 times over the past year because he gets bored.

"I think his brain is so active he goes off like this to give it a rest," she said.

Nazism Revived In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A Nazi revival is taking place in this South American country, complete with black-shirted youths, swastikas and anti-Jewish proclamations.

The movement, picking up the name of the defunct Chilean National Socialist party, claims to have 6,000 card-carrying members ready to take part actively in politics again.

"We are anti-Communists and anti-Semites," says leader Franz Pfeiffer Richter, 27, a law student born in Chile of German parents. "Our movement follows the same rules set by Hitler in Germany," he added in a interview, "but we are against violence and we will seek power by legal and constitutional ways."

Fragile - looking, thinly - mustachioed Pfeiffer presides over meetings wearing a black shirt and a swastika-marked armband. He is called commander by youngsters who follow him around in heel-clicking Prussian style.

"Most members of our movement are young people, but we also have the support of many former leaders of the old National Socialist party of Chile," says Pfeiffer.

"We are out to revive the old party, after almost 25 years of inactivity," said Pfeiffer. He said the new movement was formed a year ago but it was kept underground until now.

Although there has been no government reaction, officials tend to dismiss the Nazi group as outmoded and unimportant.

News Commentary

By CARLOS MENDO

MADRID (UPI)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's 25-year-old regime is riding out a new threat to its authority from striking coal miners in politically-conscious northern Spain.

During the past two months an estimated 15,000-20,000 miners have been idled by strikes or lock-outs in the Asturias and Leon regions.

The trouble so far this year has not reached the same proportions as in the summer of 1962 when the dismissal of a coal-cutter sparked a strike that snowballed into the worst labor crisis faced by the Franco government.

The coal fields situation at present is described in official quarters as "delicate" and the authorities apparently are anxious to avoid taking any action that might be interpreted by the miners as provocative. Informed sources said there have been no arrests.

Sources well qualified to judge the situation said that the strikes, which are illegal under Spanish law, appeared to be largely political in their inspiration.

The trouble started over the size of the bonus paid out annually on July 18, anniversary of the start of the civil war, but the sources said the workers have put forward no major specific labor claims.

Asturias and Leon, on the other hand, the sources said, were Socialist strongholds in the days of the Republic, and even today known members of the clandestine Spanish Socialist Party operate there.

These sources said the government had good reason to handle the situation carefully. The 1962 outbreak at its height affected 150,000 persons and cost Spain about $300 million.

The sources said officials wanted to avoid the spread of strikes to other northern industrial regions, and would like to see the problem settled without any direct governmental intervention.

The sources added that the government was believed unwilling to take stern measures against the strikers because such action would run counter to the present liberalization trend in Spain.

They said, however, that the government was not underestimating the extent of the problem it faces, and could be expected to take firm action at the end of the summer vacation, late in September, if no solution has been reached before then by negotiators on the scene.

The sources said new labor regulations issued at the end of the 1962 series of strikes gave more flexibility to the government-sponsored unions to deal with labor troubles.

The unions, organized on the basis of "vertical syndicalism" with employers and employes embodied in the one organization, so far have been unable to negotiate an agreement.

The miners were reported to harbor distrust of the syndicalist system on grounds that under it their representatives were in a weak bargaining position.

The strikes this year were called at a time when elections to select more than half a million union representatives were being held throughout Spain.

Employers claim to be mystified by the strikes. They point out that the minimum basic salary of the miners is 150 pesetas ($2.50) per day. They say that with piece work, family allowances and special cheap food and clothing the miners enjoy one of the highest living standards in Spain.

In some cases, when trouble started in the pits, the mine owners took direct action and locked the workers out. However, early in August orders were issued to mining companies to re-admit all strikers willing to return to work.

The owners fear that the government will ask them to increase miners' wages. They have told the government a new pay boost would place them in a precarious economic position.

Air Pollution Hearings Due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, chairman of a Senate subcommittee studying air pollution, said Tuesday his group will hold hearings across the nation soon.

The Maine Democrat hopes to direct public attention to what he considers the dangers of dirty air.

Now conducting Senate public works subcommittee hearings on the subject here, he specifically mentioned Los Angeles as one of the new hearing sites.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., told Muskie he supported a Senate bill under subcommittee consideration for a national research program to study air pollution controls by providing federal aid to state and local programs.

California smog problems are frequently cited as classic reasons for additional research to obtain clean air.

Testifying Tuesday was Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, representing the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

He criticized a House-passed bill, similar to the Senate measure, because he thinks it will hurt local municipalities.

Daley said that under the House measure, there are no explicit provisions which will permit local air pollution control agencies to deal directly with the federal government.

Nippard To Enter 5th District Race

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Lewis S. Nippard, counsel for the Howard County commissioners, announced Tuesday he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from Maryland's 5th District.

A Democrat, Richard E. Lankford of Annapolis, has held the seat from Howard, Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert Counties for four terms. He is expected to be a candidate for reelection.

Late Eddie Duchin's Son Plays Piano, Too, But Plans To Be Actor

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The name is Peter Duchin, he is 26 and, like his late and famous father, Eddie, he plays the piano and leads a suave dance band.

But unlike father, son Peter plans to be an actor for the screen, too, he said in an interview.

"My dad appeared in several movies but he didn't act, he always played himself," said Peter, tall, broad-shouldered and dark, and as handsome as his father.

"I want to be an actor as well as a bandleader. I've studied acting for two years in New York. I can work in films in the daytime and still play with the band at night."

Young Duchin will make his debut in New York this fall in a film, "The World of Henry Orient", starring Peter Sellers. Duchin will not portray a musician or even come near the piano.

Next he will work as another non-musician in "What A Way To Go" with Shirley Maclaine.

Peter admitted he cornered all this success at 26 largely because of his father's celebrated name. Eddie Duchin dominated popular dance music during the 30's and 40's and after his death was immortalized on celluloid in 1958 when Tyrone Power and Kim Novak starred in "The Eddie Duchin Story."

"Having a famous father is an advantage in that it's an entree to meet people that otherwise you couldn't get to," said Peter.

"But it has two disadvantages: (a) you are compared to your father, and (b) a lot more is expected of you and once you are there, you have to produce as much."

But even though he may become a reigning matinee idol in the movies, he will continue to carry on the family tradition by smiling over his piano at dancers in the St. Regis Hotel in New York and at society parties.

"I love music. I love to play the piano," he said. "I started at 5. My father forced me to play. That's the only way to start children in music, isn't it?

"When I was in college, I decided to play piano professionally, like my father. I played with an Army band when I was in the Army in Panama. Then I decided to form my own band of 11 pieces, and opened at the St. Regis last September."

Plane On Mercy Mission Shot Down By Laos Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—An unarmed Air America C47 on a rice-dropping mission over central Laos with three Americans and four Laotians aboard was shot down in flames by Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft cannon, informed sources said Tuesday.

Company spokesmen reported the plane missing on Saturday. Search planes sighted the wreckage of the aircraft that night northeast of Thakek. There was no sign of life.

The sources said the plane was piloted by Joseph Cheney (hometown unavailable). The C47, chartered by the Laotian government, strayed off course and passed within a few thousand feet of a known Communist Pathet Lao anti - aircraft installation, the sources said.

Cheney radioed Air America's operations base at Savannakhet that the plane was hit. Operations asked for a damage report and Cheney replied about two minutes later that the aircraft was on fire. His radio then went silent.

Laotian Information Minister Phoumi Vongvichit, who represents the Pathet Lao faction in the coalition government with the neutralists and right-wing, has warned that all Air America flights are subject to Communist reprisals.

The sources said the existence of the Communist anti-aircraft battery near the village of Nhomarrath has been known and Air American pilots normally fly well out of range of the 37 mm cannon.

The plane is the third Air America aircraft to be shot down by the Reds in the past year. A C123 cargo plane was downed in the Plain of Jars on Nov. 27, 1962 and its American pilot and co-pilot killed. Last Jan. 5, another C123 was shot down in northwestern Laos but both crewmen—an American and a Canadian—parachuted to safety.

The planes are chartered by the government to supply anti-Communist Meo tribesmen in remote areas of the country. The government says the planes carry only rice and other relief supplies. The Pathet Lao has charged the planes also are dropping guns and other weapons.

Market Cart Theft Almost Houston Fad

By KENNETH CARR

HOUSTON (UPI) — Supermarket managers in Houston automatically cringe when they see a housewife push a cart of groceries out the front door. Some of the carts will go home with the groceries.

The theft of grocery carts has become almost a fad in this city.

The carts, which cost from $25 to $50, often end up as barbecue grills, laundry carts or baby buggies.

Suburban stores regularly lose as many as 50 carts a week. Most of them are returned by the shopper or found abandoned by store employes.

T. M. Maass, manager of an A&P supermarket on the west side, sends a truck out daily to eight nearby apartment complexes and rounds up most of the stray carts. Last year, the truck crew found three carts in a swimming pool, another in a moving van and seven at a washateria.

Charles Rovello, manager of a Weingarten store, doesn't really mind if a housewife takes a cart home — as long as she returns it.

"We want to help people get their groceries home," said Rovello, "and we are happy to let them take the carts if they bring them back."

But, he added, fewer than half the shoppers who "borrow" the carts return them. Most are found abandoned.

The real loss comes from carts that are converted to barbecue pits or even portable chicken coops.

"Kids are the main problems," said another store manager, Richard Newton. "They tear them up for all kinds of purposes. One kid put the wheels on a soap box racer."

Houston markets are trying to stop the wandering carts by offering a cheaper cart that the shopper can buy and take home legally. The managers prefer this solution to another — a magnetic border around marking lots that locks the wheels of carts being pushed off the property.

Rovello sums up the problem this way:

"We understand her problem and are sympathetic," he said. "But we fear she doen't realize our."

News Commentary

By CARLOS MENDO

MADRID (UPI)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's 25-year-old regime is riding out a new threat to its authority from striking coal miners in politically-conscious northern Spain.

During the past two months an estimated 15,000-20,000 miners have been idled by strikes or lock-outs in the Asturias and Leon regions.

The trouble so far this year has not reached the same proportions as in the summer of 1962 when the dismissal of a coal-cutter sparked a strike that snowballed into the worst labor crisis faced by the Franco government.

The coal fields situation at present is described in official quarters as "delicate" and the authorities apparently are anxious to avoid taking any action that might be interpreted by the miners as provocative. Informed sources said there have been no arrests.

Sources well qualified to judge the situation said that the strikes, which are illegal under Spanish law, appeared to be largely political in their inspiration.

The trouble started over the size of the bonus paid out annually on July 18, anniversary of the start of the civil war, but the sources said the workers have put forward no major specific labor claims.

Asturias and Leon, on the other hand, the sources said, were Socialist strongholds in the days of the Republic, and even today known members of the clandestine Spanish Socialist Party operate there.

These sources said the government had good reason to handle the situation carefully. The 1962 outbreak at its height affected 150,000 persons and cost Spain about $300 million.

The sources said officials wanted to avoid the spread of strikes to other northern industrial regions, and would like to see the problem settled without any direct governmental intervention.

The sources added that the government was believed unwilling to take stern measures against the strikers because such action would run counter to the present liberalization trend in Spain.

They said, however, that the government was not underestimating the extent of the problem it faces, and could be expected to take firm action at the end of the summer vacation, late in September, if no solution has been reached before then by negotiators on the scene.

The sources said new labor regulations issued at the end of the 1962 series of strikes gave more flexibility to the government-sponsored unions to deal with labor troubles.

The unions, organized on the basis of "vertical syndicalism" with employers and employes embodied in the one organization, so far have been unable to negotiate an agreement.

The miners were reported to harbor distrust of the syndicalist system on grounds that under it their representatives were in a weak bargaining position.

The strikes this year were called at a time when elections to select more than half a million union representatives were being held throughout Spain.

Employers claim to be mystified by the strikes. They point out that the minimum basic salary of the miners is 150 pesetas ($2.50) per day. They say that with piece work, family allowances and special cheap food and clothing the miners enjoy one of the highest living standards in Spain.

In some cases, when trouble started in the pits, the mine owners took direct action and locked the workers out. However, early in August orders were issued to mining companies to re-admit all strikers willing to return to work.

The owners fear that the government will ask them to increase miners' wages. They have told the government a new pay boost would place them in a precarious economic position.

Air Pollution Hearings Due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, chairman of a Senate subcommittee studying air pollution, said Tuesday his group will hold hearings across the nation soon.

The Maine Democrat hopes to direct public attention to what he considers the dangers of dirty air.

Now conducting Senate public works subcommittee hearings on the subject here, he specifically mentioned Los Angeles as one of the new hearing sites.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., told Muskie he supported a Senate bill under subcommittee consideration for a national research program to study air pollution controls by providing federal aid to state and local programs.

California smog problems are frequently cited as classic reasons for additional research to obtain clean air.

Testifying Tuesday was Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, representing the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

He criticized a House-passed bill, similar to the Senate measure, because he thinks it will hurt local municipalities.

Daley said that under the House measure, there are no explicit provisions which will permit local air pollution control agencies to deal directly with the federal government.

The earth is composed of about 70 per cent water and 30 per cent land.

Nippard To Enter 5th District Race

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Lewis S. Nippard, counsel for the Howard County commissioners, announced Tuesday he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from Maryland's 5th District.

A Democrat, Richard E. Lankford of Annapolis, has held the seat from Howard, Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert Counties for four terms. He is expected to be a candidate for reelection.

Late Eddie Duchin's Son Plays Piano, Too, But Plans To Be Actor

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The name is Peter Duchin, he is 26 and, like his late and famous father, Eddie, he plays the piano and leads a suave dance band.

But unlike father, son Peter plans to be an actor for the screen, too, he said in an interview.

"My dad appeared in several movies but he didn't act, he always played himself," said Peter, tall, broad-shouldered and dark, and as handsome as his father.

"I want to be an actor as well as a bandleader. I've studied acting for two years in New York. I can work in films in the daytime and still play with the band at night."

Young Duchin will make his debut in New York this fall in a film, "The World of Henry Orient", starring Peter Sellers. Duchin will not portray a musician or even come near the piano.

Next he will work as another non-musician in "What A Way To Go" with Shirley Maclaine.

Peter admitted he cornered all this success at 26 largely because of his father's celebrated name. Eddie Duchin dominated popular dance music during the 30's and 40's and after his death was immortalized on celluloid in 1958 when Tyrone Power and Kim Novak starred in "The Eddie Duchin Story."

"Having a famous father is an advantage in that it's an entree to meet people that otherwise you couldn't get to," said Peter.

"But it has two disadvantages: (a) you are compared to your father, and (b) a lot more is expected of you and once you are there, you have to produce as much."

But even though he may become a reigning matinee idol in the movies, he will continue to carry on the family tradition by smiling over his piano at dancers in the St. Regis Hotel in New York and at society parties.

"I love music. I love to play the piano," he said. "I started at 5. My father forced me to play. That's the only way to start children in music, isn't it?

"When I was in college, I decided to play piano professionally, like my father. I played with an Army band when I was in the Army in Panama. Then I decided to form my own band of 11 pieces, and opened at the St. Regis last September."

The Maine Democrat hopes to direct public attention to what he considers the dangers of dirty air.

Now conducting Senate public works subcommittee hearings on the subject here, he specifically mentioned Los Angeles as one of the new hearing sites.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., told Muskie he supported a Senate bill under subcommittee consideration for a national research program to study air pollution controls by providing federal aid to state and local programs.

California smog problems are frequently cited as classic reasons for additional research to obtain clean air.

Testifying Tuesday was Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, representing the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

He criticized a House-passed bill, similar to the Senate measure, because he thinks it will hurt local municipalities.

Daley said that under the House measure, there are no explicit provisions which will permit local air pollution control agencies to deal directly with the federal government.

Nippard To Enter 5th District Race

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Lewis S. Nippard, counsel for the Howard County commissioners, announced Tuesday he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from Maryland's 5th District.

A Democrat, Richard E. Lankford of Annapolis, has held the seat from Howard, Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert Counties for four terms. He is expected to be a candidate for reelection.

Late Eddie Duchin's Son Plays Piano, Too, But Plans To Be Actor

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The name is Peter Duchin, he is 26 and, like his late and famous father, Eddie, he plays the piano and leads a suave dance band.

But unlike father, son Peter plans to be an actor for the screen, too, he said in an interview.

"My dad appeared in several movies but he didn't act, he always played himself," said Peter, tall, broad-shouldered and dark, and as handsome as his father.

"I want to be an actor as well as a bandleader. I've studied acting for two years in New York. I can work in films in the daytime and still play with the band at night."

Young Duchin will make his debut in New York this fall in a film, "The World of Henry Orient", starring Peter Sellers. Duchin will not portray a musician or even come near the piano.

Next he will work as another non-musician in "What A Way To Go" with Shirley Maclaine.

Peter admitted he cornered all this success at 26 largely because of his father's celebrated name. Eddie Duchin dominated popular dance music during the 30's and 40's and after his death was immortalized on celluloid in 1958 when Tyrone Power and Kim Novak starred in "The Eddie Duchin Story."

"Having a famous father is an advantage in that it's an entree to meet people that otherwise you couldn't get to," said Peter.

"But it has two disadvantages: (a) you are compared to your father, and (b) a lot more is expected of you and once you are there, you have to produce as much."

But even though he may become a reigning matinee idol in the movies, he will continue to carry on the family tradition by smiling over his piano at dancers in the St. Regis Hotel in New York and at society parties.

"I love music. I love to play the piano," he said. "I started at 5. My father forced me to play. That's the only way to start children in music, isn't it?

"When I was in college, I decided to play piano professionally, like my father. I played with an Army band when I was in the Army in Panama. Then I decided to form my own band of 11 pieces, and opened at the St. Regis last September."

Plane On Mercy Mission Shot Down By Laos Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—An unarmed Air America C47 on a rice-dropping mission over central Laos with three Americans and four Laotians aboard was shot down in flames by Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft cannon, informed sources said Tuesday.

Company spokesmen reported the plane missing on Saturday. Search planes sighted the wreckage of the aircraft that night northeast of Thakek. There was no sign of life.

The sources said the plane was piloted by Joseph Cheney (hometown unavailable). The C47, chartered by the Laotian government, strayed off course and passed within a few thousand feet of a known Communist Pathet Lao anti-aircraft installation, the sources said.

Cheney radioed Air America's operations base at Savannakhet that the plane was hit. Operations asked for a damage report and Cheney replied about two minutes later that the aircraft was on fire. His radio then went silent.

Laotian Information Minister Phoumi Vongvichit, who represents the Pathet Lao faction in the coalition government with the neutralists and right-wing, has warned that all Air America flights are subject to Communist reprisals.

The sources said the existence of the Communist anti-aircraft battery near the village of Nhomarrath has been known and Air American pilots normally fly well out of range of the 37 mm cannon.

The plane is the third Air America aircraft to be shot down by the Reds in the past year. A C123 cargo plane was downed in the Plain of Jars on Nov. 27, 1962 and its American pilot and co-pilot killed. Last Jan. 5, another C123 was shot down in northwestern Laos but both crewmen—an American and a Canadian—parachuted to safety.

The planes are chartered by the government to supply anti-Communist Meo tribesmen in remote areas of the country. The government says the planes carry only rice and other relief supplies. The Pathet Lao has charged the planes also are dropping guns and other weapons.

Market Cart Theft Almost Houston Fad

By KENNETH CARR

HOUSTON (UPI) — Supermarket managers in Houston automatically cringe when they see a housewife push a cart of groceries out the front door. Some of the carts will go home with the groceries.

The theft of grocery carts has become almost a fad in this city.

The carts, which cost from $25 to $50, often end up as barbecue grills, laundry carts or baby buggies.

Suburban stores regularly lose as many as 50 carts a week. Most of them are returned by the shopper or found abandoned by store employes.

T. M. Maass, manager of an A&P supermarket on the west side, sends a truck out daily to eight nearby apartment complexes and rounds up most of the stray carts. Last year, the truck crew found three carts in a swimming pool, another in a moving van and seven at a washateria.

Charles Rovello, manager of a Weingarten store, doesn't really mind if a housewife takes a cart home — as long as she returns it.

"We want to help people get their groceries home," said Rovello, "and we are happy to let them take the carts if they bring them back."

But, he added, fewer than half the shoppers who "borrow" the carts return them. Most are found abandoned.

The real loss comes from carts that are converted to barbecue pits or even portable chicken coops.

"Kids are the main problems," said another store manager, Richard Newton. "They tear them up for all kinds of purposes. One kid put the wheels on a soap box racer."

Houston markets are trying to stop the wandering carts by offering a cheaper cart that the shopper can buy and take home legally. The managers prefer this solution to another — a magnetic border around marking lots that locks the wheels of carts being pushed off the property.

Rovello sums up the problem this way:

"We understand her problem and are sympathetic," he said. "But we fear she doen't realize our."

Snow Ball To Be Held On January 18

The annual Snow Ball January 18 and a "Paper Back Novelty" tea October 16 were announced at the meeting of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary conducted by Mrs. Raymond Lapp Jr. yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club. Reporting on the Snow Ball, Mrs. Joseph Pellerzi said Brad Hunt's Orchestra will play. Mrs. William Geppert said the tea will be at the nurses' home from 3 until 4:30 Mrs. Richard Trevaskis outlined plans for remodeling the nurses' reception room and redecorating the nurses' quarters. Mrs. George Newman reported her committee is supplying books, games and craft material for the pediatric department. It also was reported that the new Addressograph plates are in use. Mrs. Douglas Smith reported her group has made 22,972 surgical dressings. Discussing plans for the new wing of the hospital, John Moberly said he hopes construction will begin in three weeks. He explained the five-story building will have space on the ground floor for air conditioner, emergency lighting, electrical system, supply storage, a modern medical records department, doctors' lounge and medical library.

There are to be six large operating rooms on the first floor, a central supply department, recovery room and new cystoscopy department; on the second floor, 50 medical and surgical patients; third floor, a maternity department and newborn nursery; fourth floor will have a complete pediatric department, equipped with playrooms, feeding room, nurseries, examining and treatment room.

All rooms in the new wing will have private toilet facilities, built-in dressers and closets, and provide not only signal lights but audible communication, also piped-in oxygen from a central control source to every patient's room, telephones and TV at every bed.

When the old building is remodeled, the superintendent said, there will be a waiting room on each floor. He also stated that there the number of employes will raise from the present 451 to 560.

Mrs. Gladys Brooks reported that with the completion of the new wing she hopes to increase the nursing school, which had 48 students this year.

Mrs. W. A. VanOrmer introduced the new members. They are Mrs. Allen Gentry, Mrs. Herman Millotti, Mrs. John Agathon, Mrs. Jean Dale, Mrs. James Warden, Mrs. Barney Liebowitz, Mrs. Arthur Bauer, Mrs. Carol Hammer, Mrs. Blair Herman, Mrs. John Searles, Mrs. Robert Roberts, Mrs. Norman Young, Mrs. Samuel Clingan, Mrs. Wilson Couter, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. L. E. Randall, Mrs. Ruthella Fey, Mrs. Carl Daum, Mrs. Raymond Twaites, Mrs. Raymond Phillippi, Mrs. LaVerne Hahn, Mrs. Ralph Ballin, Mrs. Richard Bolyard, Mrs. Albert Cook, Mrs. Alfred DeMartino, Mrs. Charles Giornesto, Mrs. Robert Hager, Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Mrs. E. E. Loar, Mrs. Albert Paye, Mrs. John Robinson Jr., Mrs. Vincent Valls, Mrs. Fred Sharer, Mrs. Glenn Zembower, Mrs. Frank Scheu, Mrs. B. O. Coberly Sr., and Mrs. B. O. Coberly Jr.

OPEN FALL SEASON—Memorial Hospital Auxiliary installed the officers at the fall luncheon meeting yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club. Seated are Mrs. Raymond Lapp Jr., president, Mrs. William Geppert, first vice president; standing, Mrs. Ralph Sell Jr., second vice president; Mrs. James Reinhart, secretary; Mrs. James Weber, financial secretary, and Mrs. Wesley McGraw Jr., treasurer. John Moberly discussed the new wing to the hospital and the Choral Group sang several selections.

OES Star Points Will Be Honored

Cumberland Chapter 56, O.E.S., will have the first meeting of the fall sessions tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Ruth Klingler, worthy matron, and Rex Swisher, worthy patron, will preside at the business session.

The Star Points of Cumberland and surrounding chapters will be guests for the evening and a ceremony will be presented in their honor by the following officers: Mrs. Klingler, Mrs. Barbara Williams, conductress; Mrs. Helen Swisher, associate conductress; Mrs. Alberta Morton, secretary; Miss Margaret Barnard, marshal; Mrs. Erma Burkett, chaplain; and Mrs. Lillian Zimmerman, treasurer. Mrs. Louise Emerick will be the soloist for the program.

Advance Night in Cumberland Chapter has been changed from September 27 to October 11.

After the meeting a social hour will be held with Mrs. Mildred Conley and Mrs. Vera Evans as co-hostesses.

Bridge Winners Announced

With a score of 107½, playing North - South Mrs. William A. Douglas and A. J. Feigus topped the field in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club game, Tuesday. The average in the North-South was 94½. Other winners were Robert Dezen, Dr. Paul Castelle, 106½; Miss Kathryn Laughlin, Mrs. Madeline Mewshaw, 104½; John Wilkinson and Morton Peskin, 100½.

East - West winners with 106½ were Mrs. Phoebe Boyer, William Douglas; Mrs. James Rexroad, Miss Alice Stakem, 94; Mrs. Russell Bortz, Sumner Hirsch, 92; Mrs. Mary Deal and Mrs. Delbert Kitzmiller, 84. The average was 84. Eight and one half tables were in play.

Beth Jacob Women's League will hold a card party Saturday at 8 p. m. in the vestry room of the synagogue. Mrs. Bertram Friedland and Mrs. Ida Fram are cochairmen. Refreshments will be served and table prizes will be awarded. The public is invited. Following the party Harry Klion, Washington, guest cantor, will conduct a "Selichot" service.

District Date Is Changed

Because of the cardiac seminar September 26, the meeting of District 1, Maryland Nurses Association will be held September 18, instead of the 25th, Mrs. Dorothy Emerson announces. It will be at Memorial Hospital.

A tentative outline of the educational program for the year will be made and reports given. All members are urged to attend.

Elks Dance Saturday

Tommy Smithem's Orchestra will play for the weekly dance Saturday night at Cumberland Lodge 63, BPO Elks, South Centre Street.

The dance will begin at 9:30 p. m. and reservations should be made by Friday.

Xi Beta Reviews Manual; Committees Announced

A "Three Star" chapter, Xi Beta Exemplar, Beta Sigma Phi, reviewed the BSP manual for the yardstick and discussed the programs for the year at the meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Juanita Brinsmade, Hillcrest Drive.

It was decided to combine the programs so as to have outside speakers and activities. Each member selected a date for the program she will give.

Mrs. Brinsmade conducted the meeting and announced her committees. Other officers serving with her are Mrs. Josephine Miltenberger, vice president; Mrs. Caroline Griffin, secretary, and Mrs. Almeda Poole, treasurer.

The membership committee consists of Mrs. Miltenberger, chairman, Mrs. Griffin and Miss Dorothy Lee Campbell; program, Miss Margaret Lester chairman, Miss Ruth Lester, Mrs. Poole; ways and means, Miss Eleanor Albright, Mrs. Virginia Ward, Miss Martha Lee Heron and Mrs. Griffin; social, Mrs. Poole, Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Ruth Lester, Mrs. Griffin; City Council representatives, Mrs. Brinsmade and Mrs. Poole, with Miss Ruth Lester and Miss Helene Schultz alternates; telephone, Mrs. Charlotte Judy and Mrs. Ward; and service, Mrs. Ward, Miss Schutz and Mrs. Ann McKenzie.

Hostesses will be named at the next meeting, which will be September 24 at the home of Miss Albright, Columbia Street.

Those present were Miss Albright, Miss Heron, Mrs. Poole, Mrs. McKenzie, Miss Schutz, Mrs. Griffin, Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Ruth Lester and Mrs. Miltenberger.

Society Gives To Firemen

A contribution to the fire company was voted at the meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Calvary Methodist Church held at the church in Ridgeley.

The program "The Church Speaks—or Dies" was in charge of Mrs. Rosalie Spangler and Mrs. William Spangler. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Blain Poling.

Reports were given by the various secretaries. Mrs. James Perry, spiritual life secretary, announced that prayer circles were being held each Thursday at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Marion Phillips, missionary education secretary, told about the seminar in Frostburg Methodist Church.

It was reported that 18 calls had been made to the sick during the month. The president announced that three new floors had been installed in the parsonage. The group voted to contribute $10 to the Ridgeley Volunteer Fire Company.

Mrs. Carroll Walker, Mrs. Joseph Nelson and Mrs. Lewis Kinsman were also present.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read a great deal about ESP (extra-sensory perception) and I am sure I have it.

Frequently I know a telephone is going to ring several seconds before it actually does. Sometimes, when the phone rings I know who's on the line. I've had hunches about letters the day before I receive them. I often know precisely how certain people will finish a sentence even though they have said only three or four words.

This uncanny ability has been with me for a long time. In school I always seemed to know when I was going to be called on to recite. I was also able to read a certain boy's mind. (I quit going with him.)

Now I have a strong feeling that a certain young man who is casual about me would make the best husband in the world. Should I tel. him? — MISS L.

DEAR MISS L.: I have only five senses and I'm not so sure about THEM, so please don't ask me to advise a girl who can read a boy's mind.

It is not very good sense (even taking ESP into account) to suggest marriage to a young man who is casual about you. Forget it.

DEAR READERS: Here is an open confidential to the 4,578 people who wrote to tell me that "Honor Your Father and Mother" is the Fourth Commandment and not the Fifth Commandment, as I said in a recent column. One reader even suggested that I accept 10 lashes with the tassels of an old prayer shawl.

There are various versions of the scriptures and the Commandments appear in different order according to which version of the Bible you're reading. The Bible which I read says "Honor Your Father and Mother" is the Fifth Commandment and I accept the apologies of all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been both camp counselor and administrator in church camps for Juniors (boys between 9 and 12 years of age) for more than 10 years. Almost without exception whenever you see a homesick child who rebels against camp discipline he is reacting to overly protective parents.

I remember one mother in particular who returned to the camp gate after three heart-rendering farewells—using first one excuse, and then another. She was deeply hurt because her son didn't hang on to her skirt. The father of the boy finally led the sobbing woman away assuring her that the boy really did love her.

Children who are the problems at camp are invariably the ones who have been pampered at home. Their mothers try to prolong their infancy. Only once did I see a father who was guilty of this.

I'm sorry I didn't have a chance to work with Vincent who phoned his ma to "come and get him." Perhaps I could have changed the course of his life. — PENTWATER, MICH.

DEAR PENTWATER: Thanks for a fine letter. I hope Vincent's ma sees it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter married a man I can't tolerate. He has an irritating voice and dramatizes every trivial incident until I could scream. I try not to be critical of him because I don't want to make my daughter unhappy, but it's impossible to be on guard every moment. My daughter be-

Snow Ball To Be Held On January 18

The annual Snow Ball January 18 and a "Paper Back Novelty" tea October 16 were announced at the meeting of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary conducted by Mrs. Raymond Lapp Jr. yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club. Reporting on the Snow Ball, Mrs. Joseph Pellerzi said Brad Hunt's Orchestra will play. Mrs. William Geppert said the tea will be at the nurses' home from 3 until 4:30 Mrs. Richard Trevaskis outlined plans for remodeling the nurses' reception room and redecorating the nurses' quarters. Mrs. George Newman reported her committee is supplying books, games and craft material for the pediatric department. It also was reported that the new Addressograph plates are in use. Mrs. Douglas Smith reported her group has made 22,972 surgical dressings. Discussing plans for the new wing of the hospital, John Moberly said he hopes construction will begin in three weeks. He explained the five-story building will have space on the ground floor for air conditioner, emergency lighting, electrical system, supply storage, a modern medical records department, doctors' lounge and medical library.

There are to be six large operating rooms on the first floor, a central supply department, recovery room and new cystoscopy department; on the second floor, 50 medical and surgical patients; third floor, a maternity department and newborn nursery; fourth floor will have a complete pediatric department, equipped with playrooms, feeding room, nurseries, examining and treatment room.

All rooms in the new wing will have private toilet facilities, built-in dressers and closets, and provide not only signal lights but audible communication, also piped-in oxygen from a central control source to every patient's room, telephones and TV at every bed.

When the old building is remodeled, the superintendent said, there will be a waiting room on each floor. He also stated that there the number of employes will raise from the present 451 to 560.

Mrs. Gladys Brooks reported that with the completion of the new wing she hopes to increase the nursing school, which had 48 students this year.

Mrs. W. A. VanOrmer introduced the new members. They are Mrs. Allen Gentry, Mrs. Herman Millotti, Mrs. John Agathon, Mrs. Jean Dale, Mrs. James Warden, Mrs. Barney Liebowitz, Mrs. Arthur Bauer, Mrs. Carol Hammer, Mrs. Blair Herman, Mrs. John Searles, Mrs. Robert Roberts, Mrs. Norman Young, Mrs. Samuel Clingan, Mrs. Wilson Couter, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. L. E. Randall, Mrs. Ruthella Fey, Mrs. Carl Daum, Mrs. Raymond Twaites, Mrs. Raymond Phillippi, Mrs. LaVerne Hahn, Mrs. Ralph Ballin, Mrs. Richard Bolyard, Mrs. Albert Cook, Mrs. Alfred DeMartino, Mrs. Charles Giornesto, Mrs. Robert Hager, Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Mrs. E. E. Loar, Mrs. Albert Paye, Mrs. John Robinson Jr., Mrs. Vincent Valls, Mrs. Fred Sharer, Mrs. Glenn Zembower, Mrs. Frank Scheu, Mrs. B. O. Coberly Sr., and Mrs. B. O. Coberly Jr.

OPEN FALL SEASON—Memorial Hospital Auxiliary installed the officers at the fall luncheon meeting yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club. Seated are Mrs. Raymond Lapp Jr., president, Mrs. William Geppert, first vice president; standing, Mrs. Ralph Sell Jr., second vice president; Mrs. James Reinhart, secretary; Mrs. James Weber, financial secretary, and Mrs. Wesley McGraw Jr., treasurer. John Moberly discussed the new wing to the hospital and the Choral Group sang several selections.

OES Star Points Will Be Honored

Cumberland Chapter 56, O.E.S., will have the first meeting of the fall sessions tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Ruth Klingler, worthy matron, and Rex Swisher, worthy patron, will preside at the business session.

The Star Points of Cumberland and surrounding chapters will be guests for the evening and a ceremony will be presented in their honor by the following officers: Mrs. Klingler, Mrs. Barbara Williams, conductress; Mrs. Helen Swisher, associate conductress; Mrs. Alberta Morton, secretary; Miss Margaret Barnard, marshal; Mrs. Erma Burkett, chaplain; and Mrs. Lillian Zimmerman, treasurer. Mrs. Louise Emerick will be the soloist for the program.

Advance Night in Cumberland Chapter has been changed from September 27 to October 11.

After the meeting a social hour will be held with Mrs. Mildred Conley and Mrs. Vera Evans as co-hostesses.

Bridge Winners Announced

With a score of 107½, playing North - South Mrs. William A. Douglas and A. J. Feigus topped the field in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club game, Tuesday. The average in the North-South was 94½. Other winners were Robert Dezen, Dr. Paul Castelle, 106½; Miss Kathryn Laughlin, Mrs. Madeline Mewshaw, 104½; John Wilkinson and Morton Peskin, 100½.

East - West winners with 106½ were Mrs. Phoebe Boyer, William Douglas; Mrs. James Rexroad, Miss Alice Stakem, 94; Mrs. Russell Bortz, Sumner Hirsch, 92; Mrs. Mary Deal and Mrs. Delbert Kitzmiller, 84. The average was 84. Eight and one half tables were in play.

District Date Is Changed

Because of the cardiac seminar September 26, the meeting of District 1, Maryland Nurses Association will be held September 18, instead of the 25th, Mrs. Dorothy Emerson announces. It will be at Memorial Hospital.

A tentative outline of the educational program for the year will be made and reports given. All members are urged to attend.

Elks Dance Saturday

Tommy Smithem's Orchestra will play for the weekly dance Saturday night at Cumberland Lodge 63, BPO Elks, South Centre Street.

The dance will begin at 9:30 p. m. and reservations should be made by Friday.

Xi Beta Reviews Manual; Committees Announced

A "Three Star" chapter, Xi Beta Exemplar, Beta Sigma Phi, reviewed the BSP manual for the yardstick and discussed the programs for the year at the meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Juanita Brinsmade, Hillcrest Drive.

It was decided to combine the programs so as to have outside speakers and activities. Each member selected a date for the program she will give.

Mrs. Brinsmade conducted the meeting and announced her committees. Other officers serving with her are Mrs. Josephine Miltenberger, vice president; Mrs. Caroline Griffin, secretary, and Mrs. Almeda Poole, treasurer.

The membership committee consists of Mrs. Miltenberger, chairman, Mrs. Griffin and Miss Dorothy Lee Campbell; program, Miss Margaret Lester chairman, Miss Ruth Lester, Mrs. Poole; ways and means, Miss Eleanor Albright, Mrs. Virginia Ward, Miss Martha Lee Heron and Mrs. Griffin; social, Mrs. Poole, Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Ruth Lester, Mrs. Griffin; City Council representatives, Mrs. Brinsmade and Mrs. Poole, with Miss Ruth Lester and Miss Helene Schultz alternates; telephone, Mrs. Charlotte Judy and Mrs. Ward; and service, Mrs. Ward, Miss Schutz and Mrs. Ann McKenzie.

Hostesses will be named at the next meeting, which will be September 24 at the home of Miss Albright, Columbia Street.

Those present were Miss Albright, Miss Heron, Mrs. Poole, Mrs. McKenzie, Miss Schutz, Mrs. Griffin, Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Ruth Lester and Mrs. Miltenberger.

Society Gives To Firemen

A contribution to the fire company was voted at the meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Calvary Methodist Church held at the church in Ridgeley.

The program "The Church Speaks—or Dies" was in charge of Mrs. Rosalie Spangler and Mrs. William Spangler. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Blain Poling.

Reports were given by the various secretaries. Mrs. James Perry, spiritual life secretary, announced that prayer circles were being held each Thursday at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Marion Phillips, missionary education secretary, told about the seminar in Frostburg Methodist Church.

It was reported that 18 calls had been made to the sick during the month. The president announced that three new floors had been installed in the parsonage. The group voted to contribute $10 to the Ridgeley Volunteer Fire Company.

Mrs. Carroll Walker, Mrs. Joseph Nelson and Mrs. Lewis Kinsman were also present.

Beth Jacob Women's League will hold a card party Saturday at 8 p. m. in the vestry room of the synagogue. Mrs. Bertram Friedland and Mrs. Ida Fram are cochairmen. Refreshments will be served and table prizes will be awarded. The public is invited. Following the party Harry Klion, Washington, guest cantor, will conduct a "Selichot" service.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read a great deal about ESP (extra-sensory perception) and I am sure I have it.

Frequently I know a telephone is going to ring several seconds before it actually does. Sometimes, when the phone rings I know who's on the line. I've had hunches about letters the day before I receive them. I often know precisely how certain people will finish a sentence even though they have said only three or four words.

This uncanny ability has been with me for a long time. In school I always seemed to know when I was going to be called on to recite. I was also able to read a certain boy's mind. (I quit going with him.)

Now I have a strong feeling that a certain young man who is casual about me would make the best husband in the world. Should I tel. him? — MISS L.

DEAR MISS L.: I have only five senses and I'm not so sure about THEM, so please don't ask me to advise a girl who can read a boy's mind.

It is not very good sense (even taking ESP into account) to suggest marriage to a young man who is casual about you. Forget it.

DEAR READERS: Here is an open confidential to the 4,578 people who wrote to tell me that "Honor Your Father and Mother" is the Fourth Commandment and not the Fifth Commandment, as I said in a recent column. One reader even suggested that I accept 10 lashes with the tassels of an old prayer shawl.

There are various versions of the scriptures and the Commandments appear in different order according to which version of the Bible you're reading. The Bible which I read says "Honor Your Father and Mother" is the Fifth Commandment and I accept the apologies of all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been both camp counselor and administrator in church camps for Juniors (boys between 9 and 12 years of age) for more than 10 years. Almost without exception whenever you see a homesick child who rebels against camp discipline he is reacting to overly protective parents.

Workshop To Be Held October 14

Plans to hold another miscellaneous workshop were formulated at the meeting of the LaVale Homemakers Club, which was held Monday following the annual fall luncheon. It was at the LaVale fire hall, with members of the Ladies Auxiliary serving the luncheon.

The workshop is to be held at 11 a. m., October 14, preceding the regular meeting. Items will be made for the club's Christmas bazaar. Each member is to bring a box lunch.

Mrs. T. E. Williamson opened the business session with the flag salute Mrs. Ernest Screen read the club collect Mrs. Irene Firey read "Words of Wisdom." The hymn, "Call Jehovah Thy Salvation," was read by the club in unison. Roll call was answered with each naming her favorite plant.

A report on the August picnic was given by Mrs. Williamson. She said 29 members and guests attended. She also reported on adult camp July 29 to August 3. Mrs. J. Wesley Utterback, delegate to College Park in June, showed slides and reported on the week there.

"Pennies for Friendship" were collected.

Re Temple Party-Show, Bazaar Dates Announced

The fall calendar of fund raising events was announced by Mrs. Sara Lindsay at the meeting of Re Temple 118, Daughters of the Nile and past queens were honored.

The FALL-A-RAMA, a card party and style show, with fashions by Heinrich's, will be held September 17 at 8 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club. Tickets may be obtained from any member or by calling Mrs. Rebecca Duff, PA 2-3464. A rummage sale is scheduled for October 4, at the former location of the Sterling Electric Co., Bedford and North Centre Streets. "The Queen's Holiday Fair," a Christmas bazaar, will be held December 2, at the Masonic Temple. Members are invited to participate in the workshops being held.

Mrs. Lindsay reported on the supreme session of the Supreme Temple in Reno, Nev., in June. Included in the report were contributions made by the 122 temples to the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children and to the Daughters of the Nile's own Convalescent Relief Fund, for the purchase of orthopedic equipment for out-patients, which approximated $850,000 announcement of the schedule by Mrs. Dixie Layman, Reno, supreme queen, of her official visits to the subordinate temples, with the local temple scheduled for December 18; instructions were given for the 50th anniversary of organization of the Daughters of the Nile to be observed October 27, by a Founders' Day tea; each temple was instructed to compile a history. Portland, Ore., was named as the hostess city for the supreme session in June 1964; and the appointment of Mrs. Dorothea E. Wickard, past queen of Re Temple, to supreme deputy.

Mrs. Alberta Hunter, orthopedic chairman, reported on sewing projects for the Greenville and Philadelphia hospitals. Sewing will be resumed Monday at the Shrine Club at 10 A. M., with the evening group meeting September 25, at the home of Mrs. Lindsay, 14 Helman Drive, LaVale.

Degrees will be conferred at a ceremonial in October.

Following the session Mrs. Ann Bennett, Mrs. Dorothea Wickard, Mrs. Anna Reed, Mrs. Ethel Zimmerman, Mrs. Gladys Close, past queens; and Mrs. Ella Crabbe, honorary past queen, were honored and presented bracelet charms inscribed with the year of their reign. Mrs. Wickard also was congratulated on her supreme appointment. One of the organizers of the local temple, she served as second queen and at present is ritualistic director. Mrs. Wickard previously served on the supreme finance committee.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♡

South's opening bid of two no trump in today's hand is not taken from the book, inasmuch as he has only 21 high card points and lacks a true stopper in hearts. But, seated as he was in fourth position, he feared that a one club bid might be passed out if the outstanding strength were evenly divided. As it was, North had just enough to raise him to three no trump.

West opened the four of hearts and, without giving the matter much thought, declarer routinely played a low heart from dummy, for this assured him of taking one trick in the suit no matter how the adverse honors were divided. East's queen of hearts held the trick and he returned the ten. West was tempted to duck the lead to the king to preserve communications in the suit with his partner, since West had no outside entry to run the hearts after they became established.

On the other hand, he was somewhat reluctant to permit declarer to gain access to the North hand to make a play thru East. West finally chose to play the ace and another heart, leaving South to find his own way.

Declarer was in his hand without even the remotest chance of reaching the dummy. He cashed the ace of clubs in the vague hope that the king might drop. When that card held firm, South found himself restricted to eight tricks—three clubs, two diamonds, two spades and one heart.

South passed up his only legitimate chance for success at the opening gun when he failed to put up dummy's king of hearts. In order to win nine tricks, he must bring in the entire club suit which entails a successful finesse against the king. While the normal play in hearts is to duck the opening lead into declarer's jack, considerations of safety must be foregone in the present instance in the interest of seizing the only available opportunity to reach the North hand.

When the king of hearts holds the first trick, South is in position to assay the club finesse, but he must proceed carefully. If, for example, he leads the jack of clubs, East will duck and now the next lead must be won by declarer's ten. When West shows out on the second round, South is unable to pick up the king. In order to win four tricks in the suit, declarer must play the nine initially. When the nine holds, the jack is led next so that the lead can be retained by North for the next round. Only by playing in this manner can South win nine tricks.

Former Teacher Is Honored

Members of the Bethany Bible Class of Grace Baptist Church entertained in honor of Mrs. James Kirkpatrick, who resigned as teacher to become superintendent of the Sunday school.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who had taught the class for 26 years, was presented a "friendship garden" and silver treasure chest.

The secretary's report was given and a letter was read from Linda Byer, LaVale 4-H delegate to camp at Pleasant Valley, thanking the club for the scholarship given to her. A report on the club's fair activities was given by Mrs. Kenneth Drumm, chairman. Announcement was made of the Rural Women's Short Course dinner, to be held October 3 at LaVale fire hall. The meeting closed with the group singing "The Yellow Rose of Texas."

Twenty-three members and two guests attended. The latter were Mrs. Lora Twigg, member of the Mapleside Homemakers Club, and Mrs. Shaffer, from the Bowling Green club.

Zone Meeting October 7

A fall zone meeting of the combined Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Cumberland area was announced at the Hagerstown District Seminar-Institutes, held Tuesday in First Methodist Church, Frostburg. It will be held October 7 at Kingsley church, Cumberland.

"Our Mission Today" was the theme of the combined seminar-institutes, sponsored by the Hagerstown District WSCS and the Baltimore Conference Board of Missions.

Devotions for the opening session were by Rev. Harold B. Wright. Mrs Albert Cook, president of the Frostburg society, was in charge of the orientation. Mrs. M. D. Hughson presented the literature and Mrs. R. J. Barbero, Hagerstown district secretary of missionary education, gave a preview of the study.

A study of "Christian Mission in Southern Asia" was given by Mrs. Charles Lavery, Baltimore, conference secretary of missionary education; "The Changing City Challenges the Church," Mrs. Raymond Roderick, Hagerstown, conference secretary of promotion; "The Christian Family and Its Money," Mrs. Harold Downey, Hagerstown district secretary of Christian social relations; and "Christian Perfection," Mrs. Stanley Harrell, Hagerstown district secretary of spiritual life.

During the afternoon Mrs. Jack Ault and Mrs. Herbert Cessna conducted missionary education for children; Mrs. Louis Emerick and Mrs. Ralph Hoelzer, for youth; and Mrs. Melvin Hughson and Mrs. Walter Greene, visual aids. The program book, "Witness Through Service" was presented by Mrs. G. M. Ohler, Hagerstown, district vice president. A number of the latest visual aid resources were demonstrated with films and filmstrips.

A medical missionary on leave from the United Christian Hospital in Lanore, West Pakistan, Dr. Donald E. Bowes was the institute speaker in the evening. Rev. Raymond L. Roderick gave the benediction; Rev. W. W Patterson the devotionals and Rev George A. Blankner, Shepherdstown, the report of the conference board of missions.

High-Pressure Chamber Is Donated To Hospital

BALTIMORE (AP) — Physicians at University Hospital plan to perform a special type of surgery inside a $250,000 high-pressure chamber originally built as an experimental space rocket case.

Hercules Powder Co., Wilmington, Del., has donated the chamber to the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore, it was announced Wednesday.

The hospital said the donation was made after its chief of thoracic surgery, Dr. R. Adams Cowley, read about the rocket case and saw its possibilities for hyperbaric oxygen theraby. This new technique involves supersaturation of the blood with oxygen.

A team of Maryland surgeons has been exploring the technique for three years since watching it demonstrated in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. This surgery also has been performed successfully in Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

The advantage of the pressure chamber is that blood plasma becomes so saturated with oxygen it can supply needs of the tissues directly without the body's red blood cells transporting the oxygen.

University Hospital said this makes the treatment useful in such conditions as carbon monoxide poisoning, when red blood cells cannot transport oxygen. The hospital said it might also be useful in strokes, heart surgery, barbiturate poisoning, shock cases and infections by microorganisms which live without oxygen.

Hercules said most surgery would be performed at pressures of 2 to 3 atmospheres but the chamber can withstand pressure up to 20 atmospheres.

The chamber was made by bonding glass fibers in an epoxy resin. Pressure, temperature and humidity are controlled automatically. It is 25 feet long, 13 feet in diameter and the glass fiber walls are about 1½ inches thick.

Hercules said the chamber came out of research at its Rockey Hill, N.J., plant.

Sen. Beall To Vote For Test Ban Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., announced on the floor Wednesday that he will vote to ratify the nuclear test ban treaty with Russia even though he does not regard it as a cure-all.

"Notwithstanding our justifiable distrust of the Soviets and our awareness of the limitations of the treaty," he said, "we are mindful of the grave danger of nuclear war and the advantage of keeping open any channel, however remote, for the avoidance of nuclear worldwide destruction.

Packing Plant Strike Violence Results In Suits

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Violence at a food packing plant in Trappe has resulted in two damage suits totaling $40,000 against a union.

Twelve persons were injured, none seriously, when a bus carrying migrant workers into the Trappe Frozen Foods Corp. plant was heavily stoned Aug. 21. State Police said all the windows of the bus were shattered.

Striking members of Local 1109, United Packing House, Food and Allied Workers, AFL-CIO, were picketing the plant in Trappe when the bus was stoned.

The driver of the bus, George Felix of Hurlock, and a company employe, Charles F. Willis, each filed suit for $20,000 damages Monday in Talbot County Circuit Court. Named defendants in both suits were Local 1109 of Cambridge; the national union headquartered in Chicago and Martin C. Blacknell of Cambridge, Local 1109 president.

Willis, maintenance supervisor at Trappe Frozen Foods, also named Leon Anderson of Grasonville, a member of Local 1109, a defendant in his suit.

Willis said in his suit that he and another employe, Theodore Mills, tried to enter the plant in Willis' car Aug. 21 when 20 to 30 pickets acting under orders of Blacknell threw bottles, chair legs, blocks of cement and stones, damaging his car. Willis also contended he was grabbed through the car door and beaten.

The suit filed by Felix said he was driving the migrants to the plant when pickets began hurling bottles, chair legs, stones and bricks. He said his bus was damaged and he feared for the safety of himself and his passengers.

Fifth Howard Officer Resigns

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Another member of the Howard County police force resigned Wednesday.

Cpl. J. Elwood Kaufmann said he was resigning from the force largely because "of the developments in the department, particularly the suspension of Lt. Harry Harrison. I feel there is no future for me in this department."

Four other county police officers have resigned in the past four months and Harrison was suspended by Chief Jack L. Larrimore on general charges of neglect of duty, inefficiency and breach of discipline.

Chief Larrimore has been repeatedly criticized for high handed and high pressure supervision of the force, harassment of members and pressure on the older policemen.

He has denied the charges.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — It will be a legal holiday in Maryland Thursday to observe the defense of Baltimore against the British in the War of 1812.

Taking the day off will be state, city and county employes. The schools will be open, however, and so will banks.

BALTIMORE (AP)—City Comptroller Hyman A. Pressman revived Wednesday the idea of a tax on deposits in savings and loan associations. Bills to institute a statewide tax on such savings have failed repeatedly in the legislature.

Pressman is recommending a city tax to avoid any increase next year in the property levy.

FREDERICK (AP) — The Hood College Board of Associates has announced its approval for a plan to raise $50,000 to build the Edwin R. Price Memorial Auditorium in honor of the board's late chairman.

Jacob R. Ramsburg, the board's current chairman, announced the decision Wednesday.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Directors of Western Maryland Railway Co. declared Wednesday the regular quarterly dividends to stockholders.

They will be 70 cents a share on the first preferred cumulative seven per cent stock, 15 cents on first preferred cumulative five per cent, 40 cents on the second preferred non-cumulative four per cent, and 25 cents for common.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Maritime Trades Department of the AFL-CIO announced Wednesday it will help get sailing again the Constellation, first warship of the U.S. Navy.

The Constellation is being restored in Baltimore where it was launched in June, 1798. It is hoped to have it ready to go to New York for exhibition at the World's Fair next spring.

The AFL-CIO said it will solicit contributions from its 29 member unions and assist with skilled workers.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Walter J. Sanislawski was in a street telephone booth calling his wife. A man pulled him out and punched hin in the face.

Glen Allen explained to the judge Wednesday he was fighting with his wife and thought the man in the booth was calling police.

Allen was arrested anyway and sentenced to 12 months.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland sales tax collections in August totalled $8,240,238, an increase of 11.6 per cent over the same month last year, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced.

The collections were $616,772 above official estimates. Goldstein said $100,000 from this will be deducted for a reserve fund to reimburse contractors for taxes collected on materials for federal projects, if the state loses a case now on appeal to the Supreme Court.

21 Fathers Appear

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—An early morning bed check saved Alameda County $20,000 in welfare funds, Supervisor Robert E. Hannon reported.

In visits to 417 homes where homes where mothers were drawing aid to needy children checks—presumably because the head of the household was missing—welfare officials turned up 21 apparent fathers.

X-Ray Device Curbs Sought

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland's first proposed regulations of X-ray machines and other radiation producing devices will be presented for approval to the Board of Health in Annapolis Sept. 27.

The rules are aimed primarily at controlling radiation from medical and dental machines, Howard E. Chaney, Maryland public health radiation specialist, said Wednesday.

They also will outlaw statewide fluroscope machines used in some stores to fit shoes.

If the regulations are adopted, all X-ray machines in the state will have to be registered with the health department. Standards on exposure limits, shielding and operation will be established.

In citing a need for regulations, Chaney said 70 per cent out of 1,400 X-ray machines tested in dentist offices recently required admustment.

As to shoe fitting devices, Chaney said they were unnecessary for determining the proper size and in the case of children they could be dangerous.

Astronauts At Martin Co.

BALTIMORE (AP) — "Vice presidents can't make high quality parts," Air Force Maj. Virgil I. Grissom, America's second astronaut, said in a pep talk Wednesday to nearly 9,000 workers at the Martin Co.

Grissom, accompanied by the most recent U.S. space pilot, Maj. Leroy G. Cooper, attended a rally launching the missile manufacturer's program "Zero Defects" at its Middle River plant. The program is aimed at inspiring individual pride in quality workmanship.

"I think there should be zero defects pins on everyone's clothes from janitors to vice presidents," Grissom said. "I say it that way because vice presidents can't make high quality parts. It is the people in the shops who are doing the work and I want to see them wearing the pins."

He told the Martin employes "As far as I am concerned we are very pleased with the way that Titan has turned out."

The Titan, originally built by Martin as an intercontinental ballistics missile is being modified as a booster for the Gemini capsule in which the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to send two pilots into space.

High-Pressure Chamber Is Donated To Hospital

BALTIMORE (AP) — Physicians at University Hospital plan to perform a special type of surgery inside a $250,000 high-pressure chamber originally built as an experimental space rocket case.

Hercules Powder Co., Wilmington, Del., has donated the chamber to the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore, it was announced Wednesday.

The hospital said the donation was made after its chief of thoracic surgery, Dr. R. Adams Cowley, read about the rocket case and saw its possibilities for hyperbaric oxygen theraby. This new technique involves supersaturation of the blood with oxygen.

A team of Maryland surgeons has been exploring the technique for three years since watching it demonstrated in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. This surgery also has been performed successfully in Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

The advantage of the pressure chamber is that blood plasma becomes so saturated with oxygen it can supply needs of the tissues directly without the body's red blood cells transporting the oxygen.

University Hospital said this makes the treatment useful in such conditions as carbon monoxide poisoning, when red blood cells cannot transport oxygen. The hospital said it might also be useful in strokes, heart surgery, barbiturate poisoning, shock cases and infections by microorganisms which live without oxygen.

Hercules said most surgery would be performed at pressures of 2 to 3 atmospheres but the chamber can withstand pressure up to 20 atmospheres.

The chamber was made by bonding glass fibers in an epoxy resin. Pressure, temperature and humidity are controlled automatically. It is 25 feet long, 13 feet in diameter and the glass fiber walls are about 1½ inches thick.

Hercules said the chamber came out of research at its Rockey Hill, N.J., plant.

Sen. Beall To Vote For Test Ban Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., announced on the floor Wednesday that he will vote to ratify the nuclear test ban treaty with Russia even though he does not regard it as a cure-all.

"Notwithstanding our justifiable distrust of the Soviets and our awareness of the limitations of the treaty," he said, "we are mindful of the grave danger of nuclear war and the advantage of keeping open any channel, however remote, for the avoidance of nuclear worldwide destruction.

Packing Plant Strike Violence Results In Suits

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Violence at a food packing plant in Trappe has resulted in two damage suits totaling $40,000 against a union.

Twelve persons were injured, none seriously, when a bus carrying migrant workers into the Trappe Frozen Foods Corp. plant was heavily stoned Aug. 21. State Police said all the windows of the bus were shattered.

Striking members of Local 1109, United Packing House, Food and Allied Workers, AFL-CIO, were picketing the plant in Trappe when the bus was stoned.

The driver of the bus, George Felix of Hurlock, and a company employe, Charles F. Willis, each filed suit for $20,000 damages Monday in Talbot County Circuit Court. Named defendants in both suits were Local 1109 of Cambridge; the national union headquartered in Chicago and Martin C. Blacknell of Cambridge, Local 1109 president.

Willis, maintenance supervisor at Trappe Frozen Foods, also named Leon Anderson of Grasonville, a member of Local 1109, a defendant in his suit.

Willis said in his suit that he and another employe, Theodore Mills, tried to enter the plant in Willis' car Aug. 21 when 20 to 30 pickets acting under orders of Blacknell threw bottles, chair legs, blocks of cement and stones, damaging his car. Willis also contended he was grabbed through the car door and beaten.

The suit filed by Felix said he was driving the migrants to the plant when pickets began hurling bottles, chair legs, stones and bricks. He said his bus was damaged and he feared for the safety of himself and his passengers.

Fifth Howard Officer Resigns

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Another member of the Howard County police force resigned Wednesday.

Cpl. J. Elwood Kaufmann said he was resigning from the force largely because "of the developments in the department, particularly the suspension of Lt. Harry Harrison. I feel there is no future for me in this department."

Four other county police officers have resigned in the past four months and Harrison was suspended by Chief Jack L. Larrimore on general charges of neglect of duty, inefficiency and breach of discipline.

Chief Larrimore has been repeatedly criticized for high handed and high pressure supervision of the force, harassment of members and pressure on the older policemen.

He has denied the charges.

Pastor Not Allowed To Land At Shannon

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI)—Immigration officials Tuesday refused to allow the Rev. Clennon King, a preacher from Albany, Ga., to land at Shannon Airport.

King, a passenger on a charter flight from New York to Luxembourg, requested permission to land when the plane made a stopover at Shannon Airport. The immigration officials who interviewed him refused to say why they turned down his request.

"Probably they didn't like my long, dark, curly tresses," said King, who added he was a preacher of "The Church of God in Christ."

He said before re-boarding his flight, "I want to preach the word of God to European people and I want to start with the people of London. If I got off here at Shannon it would be easier for me to get there."

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

HOMEFRONT, U.S.A. (UPI)—claims she's trapped and I'll bet:

—Her telephone and doorbell blotto. Or else she wears ear plugs.

—Her home's appliances and utilities always work just dandy.

—She's shut off newspaper, mail and milk deliveries.

—She somehow keeps the children from breaking into the isolation cell into which she has sentenced herself.

Sure. She might flutter and sputter about being trapped. But she's more wrapped than trapped—enclosed in a cozy cocoon spun by herself. She's got to work courageously to keep up the trappings of the "trapped housewife" syndom—or she's liable to untrap herself.

These observations aren't so many blasts of hot air from a female with ample lungs. No, ma'am. They're based on personal experience.

Recently I was sentenced to several weeks in the mortgaged cottage. With more pain than pleasure, I looked forward to experiencing the trapped housewife's twinges as the hinges on the garden gate creaked to the closed position.

I had no sooner resigned myself to the first wave of itches and twitches of isolation when the phone rang. It was a wrong number. But the caller's mistake reminded me the phone could be used anytime I wanted to emancipate myself.

Anytime I got lonesome I used the thing to settle little points of curiosity. Samples: called the library to learn if more men than women have overdue books; called the town hall to ask why we don't have walking trails on our street; called to get the weather forecast and time.

Between times, the phone had a habit of ringing — and voices on the other end made an assortment of requests. Samples: Please give some blood, buy some floor polish to help fellow humans in need, sign up for the truth-of-the-month club—and so it went.

In response to calls, I promised to help out one day in the school cafeteria, spend a weekend collecting for the youth fund—and other pledges to help me avoid the sinking into the quicksand of boredom that's trapped other wives.

What else helped: Things breaking down. During my trapped weeks, I got to meet my friendly neighborhood plumber, electrician and the man who supplies bottled gas for the stove.

Mail men and milk men, I discovered, tend to gab in the high style of the old-fashioned washer woman. Just say the first word to either and then try to get a syllable in edgewise.

Even the "good humor" man helped save me. When there's a child around and the day's hot, you just gotta get out in the yard and scream your lungs out when you hear the ting-a-ling of the ice cream wagon.

To make this a true test of the trapped feeling, I didn't drive once during the concentrated service of time on the homefront.

I think I emerged somewhat the wiser. When things got dullest, reading worked wonders.

The youngster and adult — trapped together — liked best passages from "Alice in Wonderland," "Winnie the Pooh," and the Bible.

Only Negroes Please

PARIS (UPI)—Bruno Coquatrix, a leading French variety show promoter, said Wednesday the only American artists to give successful performances here were Negroes.

Coquoatrix, proprietor of the Olympic Music Hall, said "no American star with white skin has ever been a success here. To please the French, American performers must have black skin."

Dartmouth College In Midst Of Cultural Explosion

By ALLAN PRIAULX

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Dartmouth College, founded in 1769 to "tame" the Indian, now is in the midst of a 20th century cultural explosion.

And the prime movers in the new project are proud of their success.

It's a certainty that a comeback-to-earth alumnus of founder Eleazar Wheelock's days wouldn't know the place today; it's also a good bet that a graduate of even a few years ago would be startled at the changes.

The college on the hill still is the haven of the traditionally husky athlete in his bulky green sweater and Dartmouth's prowess was proved last year by an undefeated football team. But returning alumni find today's Dartmouth man is of a different ilk, perhaps smarter.

The loyal alumni apparently approve because they just gave a record $1,378,497 to the 1963 fund drive.

The most astonighing change is that there are girls studying on campus, at least for the summer.

Nearly two centuries passed in which the only girls on campus were being escorted by a Big Green man.

Hopkins Center, a $10 million cultural show place virtually started the new burst of artistic and performing endeavor.

Dartmouth people point out the school always was active in these fields. But they admit there never was anything like the developments of the past few years.

The modernistic center, designed by New York architect Wallace Harrison and entirely unlike the traditional colonial campus, is perhaps the biggest all-purpose "cultural palace" under one roof anywhere.

Among other facilities, it has six art and sculpture galleries, seven art studios, two theaters, three music auditoriums and 28 large and small rehearsal rooms. There's even a soda shop and a ballroom.

Dartmouth turns away about three out of every four boys who apply and more and more of her students are going on to graduate work, a recognized "status symbol" among colleges.

A summer arts program initiated this year and called by some the epitome of Dartmouth's "new look" has kept the Hopkins Center bustling with 12 symphony and chamber concerts and continuing performances of three repertory plays ranging from Shakespeare to Shaw.

"It's surprising and more than marvelous," said center director Warner Bentley in a recent interview.

"We were taking a chance by refusing to present 'light' music and 'John Loves Mary' type drama during the summer. And although we had about half-houses at first, we're now playing to full houses."

Bentley imported Broadway performers John Tanner, Claude Harz, Carol Teitel and Nancy Cole as the nucleus of the repertory group. He recruited some top summer stock and off-Broadway actors for supporting roles.

Pastor Not Allowed To Land At Shannon

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI)—Immigration officials Tuesday refused to allow the Rev. Clennon King, a preacher from Albany, Ga., to land at Shannon Airport.

King, a passenger on a charter flight from New York to Luxembourg, requested permission to land when the plane made a stopover at Shannon Airport. The immigration officials who interviewed him refused to say why they turned down his request.

"Probably they didn't like my long, dark, curly tresses," said King, who added he was a preacher of "The Church of God in Christ."

He said before re-boarding his flight, "I want to preach the word of God to European people and I want to start with the people of London. If I got off here at Shannon it would be easier for me to get there."

Rip Van Winkle Couldn't Sleep with Nagging Backache

Now! You can get the fast relief you need from nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains that often cause restless nights and miserable tired-out feelings. When these discomforts come on with over-exertion or stress and strain—you want relief—want it fast! Another disturbance may be mild bladder irritation following wrong food and drink—often setting up a restless uncomfortable feeling.

Doan's Pills work fast in 3 separate ways: 1. by speedy pain-relieving action to ease torment of nagging backache, headaches, muscular aches and pains, 2. by soothing effect on bladder irritation, 3. by mild diuretic action tending to increase output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

Enjoy a good night's sleep and the same happy relief millions have for over 60 years. For convenience, ask for the large size. Get Doan's Pills today!

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

HOMEFRONT, U.S.A. (UPI)—claims she's trapped and I'll bet:

—Her telephone and doorbell blotto. Or else she wears ear plugs.

—Her home's appliances and utilities always work just dandy.

—She's shut off newspaper, mail and milk deliveries.

—She somehow keeps the children from breaking into the isolation cell into which she has sentenced herself.

Sure. She might flutter and sputter about being trapped. But she's more wrapped than trapped—enclosed in a cozy cocoon spun by herself. She's got to work courageously to keep up the trappings of the "trapped housewife" syndom—or she's liable to untrap herself.

These observations aren't so many blasts of hot air from a female with ample lungs. No, ma'am. They're based on personal experience.

Recently I was sentenced to several weeks in the mortgaged cottage. With more pain than pleasure, I looked forward to experiencing the trapped housewife's twinges as the hinges on the garden gate creaked to the closed position.

I had no sooner resigned myself to the first wave of itches and twitches of isolation when the phone rang. It was a wrong number. But the caller's mistake reminded me the phone could be used anytime I wanted to emancipate myself.

Anytime I got lonesome I used the thing to settle little points of curiosity. Samples: called the library to learn if more men than women have overdue books; called the town hall to ask why we don't have walking trails on our street; called to get the weather forecast and time.

Between times, the phone had a habit of ringing — and voices on the other end made an assortment of requests. Samples: Please give some blood, buy some floor polish to help fellow humans in need, sign up for the truth-of-the-month club—and so it went.

In response to calls, I promised to help out one day in the school cafeteria, spend a weekend collecting for the youth fund—and other pledges to help me avoid the sinking into the quicksand of boredom that's trapped other wives.

What else helped: Things breaking down. During my trapped weeks, I got to meet my friendly neighborhood plumber, electrician and the man who supplies bottled gas for the stove.

Mail men and milk men, I discovered, tend to gab in the high style of the old-fashioned washer woman. Just say the first word to either and then try to get a syllable in edgewise.

Even the "good humor" man helped save me. When there's a child around and the day's hot, you just gotta get out in the yard and scream your lungs out when you hear the ting-a-ling of the ice cream wagon.

To make this a true test of the trapped feeling, I didn't drive once during the concentrated service of time on the homefront.

I think I emerged somewhat the wiser. When things got dullest, reading worked wonders.

The youngster and adult — trapped together — liked best passages from "Alice in Wonderland," "Winnie the Pooh," and the Bible.

Only Negroes Please

PARIS (UPI)—Bruno Coquatrix, a leading French variety show promoter, said Wednesday the only American artists to give successful performances here were Negroes.

Coquoatrix, proprietor of the Olympic Music Hall, said "no American star with white skin has ever been a success here. To please the French, American performers must have black skin."

Dartmouth College In Midst Of Cultural Explosion

By ALLAN PRIAULX

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)—Dartmouth College, founded in 1769 to "tame" the Indian, now is in the midst of a 20th century cultural explosion.

And the prime movers in the new project are proud of their success.

It's a certainty that a come-back-to-earth alumnus of founder Eleazar Wheelock's days wouldn't know the place today; it's also a good bet that a graduate of even a few years ago would be startled at the changes.

The college on the hill still is the haven of the traditionally husky athlete in his bulky green sweater and Dartmouth's prowess was proved last year by an undefeated football team. But returning alumni find today's Dartmouth man is of a different ilk, perhaps smarter.

The loyal alumni apparently approve because they just gave a record $1,378,497 to the 1963 fund drive.

The most astonishing change is that there are girls studying on campus, at least for the summer.

Nearly two centuries passed in which the only girls on campus were being escorted by a Big Green man.

Hopkins Center, a $10 million cultural show place virtually started the new burst of artistic and performing endeavor.

Dartmouth people point out the school always was active in these fields. But they admit there never was anything like the developments of the past few years.

The modernistic center, designed by New York architect Wallace Harrison and entirely unlike the traditional colonial campus, is perhaps the biggest all-purpose "cultural palace" under one roof anywhere.

Among other facilities, it has six art and sculpture galleries, seven art studios, two theaters, three music auditoriums and 28 large and small rehearsal rooms. There's even a soda shop and a ballroom.

Dartmouth turns away about three out of every four boys who apply and more and more of her students are going on to graduate work, a recognized "status symbol" among colleges.

A summer arts program initiated this year and called by some the epitome of Dartmouth's "new look" has kept the Hopkins Center bustling with 12 symphony and chamber concerts and continuing performances of three repertory plays ranging from Shakespeare to Shaw.

"It's surprising and more than marvelous," said center director Warner Bentley in a recent interview.

"We were taking a chance by refusing to present 'light' music and 'John Loves Mary' type drama during the summer. And although we had about half-houses at first, we're now playing to full houses."

Bentley imported Broadway performers John Tanner, Claude Harz, Carol Teitel and Nancy Cole as the nucleus of the repertory group. He recruited some top summer stock and off-Broadway actors for supporting roles.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

During the past summer months two college students have been working in my Washington office as Congressional interns. It was certainly a pleasant and worthwhile contribution to my office program to have had the splendid assistance of these interested and informed young men. More than that, however, the boys themselves had a unique opportunity to observe and participate firsthand in the workings of our national government. One of the young men was Mark Levy, a senior this fall at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Mark was the recipient of an American Political Science Association grant that enabled him to spend the summer in our Sixth Congressional District office. The second student with me over the past months was Reginald Kearney, who will be entering his junior year at Morgan State College in Baltimore. Reg is a participant in the Institute for Political Education at Morgan State and was the recipient of a Ford Foundation grant. Both boys were fine and welcome additions to my staff and I am sure their summer experiences have given them valuable new knowledge and understanding of the United States Congress.

American foreign policy is in trouble. The alarming fact is that it is dangerously riddled with indecision, confusion, and vacillation. Cracks in our regional defensive alliances are evident and our allies are far from content with the way Washington is articulating and carrying out the foreign policy of the free world. The United States continues in a state of acute cold war conflict with the Communists in Cuba, Latin America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. We continue to have trouble with many of our friends in such areas as Pakistan, Viet Nam, France, and Western Europe—where we are now engaged in a ridiculous kind of "chicken war." Certainly, if the American position in the world is to be restored, we must develop new and creative methods of executing a constructive foreign policy. And most importantly we must develop a foreign policy which will restore America to a position of leadership which our national concepts and ideals entitle us to assume.

Now that the Labor Day recess has come and gone and the fall season draws near, a number of important bills soon will be considered by the full House of Representatives. The big tax package now being drafted into final form by the House Ways and Means Committee is very close to final House consideration. It still faces possible delay in the Senate, however, where a civil rights filibuster might yet develop and also where a number of influential Senators remain absolutely opposed to a tax cut without the Administration making a serious effort to cut back on expenditures. The present timetable looks something like this—the tax bill probably will come up for House vote by mid-September. After that, the Senate Finance Committee will hold extensive hearings, which may take 4 to 6 weeks, followed by 2 or more weeks of executive sessions. The measure will then go to the Senate, which, unlike the House, has unlimited Floor debate. Any Senate changes in the bill from the House passed version must go to a joint Senate-House conference to iron out the differences. With this timetable in mind, final passage of the tax bill at this Session of Congress remains somewhat in doubt, with January 1, 1964 increasingly mentioned as the effective date of any probable tax cut.

Candian Wheat Bought By Russia

OTTAWA (UPI) —The Canadian wheat board has sold 11 million bushels of wheat, valued at $22 million to the Soviet Union, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Tuesday.

He said the sale was for cash, as in the past.

The wheat is for shipment from St. Lawrence and Pacific Coast ports during the period from September through November.

The last purchase of wheat by U.S.S.R. was in the 1960-61 crop year when 7.5 million bushels were purchased.

The board was making the announcement from its Winnipeg headquarters, Sharp said.

Cahokia Mound in the suburbs of East St. Louis, Ill., was built by prehistoric ancestors of American Indians. It occupies more space than any of the pyramids at Giza, one of the Seven Wonders of the ancient world.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

During the past summer months two college students have been working in my Washington office as Congressional interns. It was certainly a pleasant and worthwhile contribution to my office program to have had the splendid assistance of these interested and informed young men. More than that, however, the boys themselves had a unique opportunity to observe and participate firsthand in the workings of our national government. One of the young men was Mark Levy, a senior this fall at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Mark was the recipient of an American Political Science Association grant that enabled him to spend the summer in our Sixth Congressional District office. The second student with me over the past months was Reginald Kearney, who will be entering his junior year at Morgan State College in Baltimore. Reg is a participant in the Institute for Political Education at Morgan State and was the recipient of a Ford Foundation grant. Both boys were fine and welcome additions to my staff and I am sure their summer experiences have given them valuable new knowledge and understanding of the United States Congress.

American foreign policy is in trouble. The alarming fact is that it is dangerously riddled with indecision, confusion, and vacillation. Cracks in our regional defensive alliances are evident and our allies are far from content with the way Washington is articulating and carrying out the foreign policy of the free world. The United States continues in a state of acute cold war conflict with the Communists in Cuba, Latin America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. We continue to have trouble with many of our friends in such areas as Pakistan, Viet Nam, France, and Western Europe—where we are now engaged in a ridiculous kind of "chicken war." Certainly, if the American position in the world is to be restored, we must develop new and creative methods of executing a constructive foreign policy. And most importantly we must develop a foreign policy which will restore America to a position of leadership which our national concepts and ideals entitle us to assume.

Now that the Labor Day recess has come and gone and the fall season draws near, a number of important bills soon will be considered by the full House of Representatives. The big tax package now being drafted into final form by the House Ways and Means Committee is very close to final House consideration. It still faces possible delay in the Senate, however, where a civil rights filibuster might yet develop and also where a number of influential Senators remain absolutely opposed to a tax cut without the Administration making a serious effort to cut back on expenditures. The present timetable looks something like this—the tax bill probably will come up for House vote by mid-September. After that, the Senate Finance Committee will hold extensive hearings, which may take 4 to 6 weeks, followed by 2 or more weeks of executive sessions. The measure will then go to the Senate, which, unlike the House, has unlimited Floor debate. Any Senate changes in the bill from the House passed version must go to a joint Senate-House conference to iron out the differences. With this timetable in mind, final passage of the tax bill at this Session of Congress remains somewhat in doubt, with January 1, 1964 increasingly mentioned as the effective date of any probable tax cut.

Candian Wheat Bought By Russia

OTTAWA (UPI) —"The Canadian wheat board has sold 11 million bushels of wheat, valued at $22 million to the Soviet Union, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Tuesday.

He said the sale was for cash, as in the past.

The wheat is for shipment from St. Lawrence and Pacific Coast ports during the period from September through November.

The last purchase of wheat by U.S.S.R. was in the 1960-61 crop year when 7.5 million bushels were purchased.

The board was making the announcement from its Winnipeg headquarters, Sharp said.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

Former President Eisenhower has struck out boldly against the "gimme" attitude of many people. He refers to the endless debate over taxation, saying that people recognize the fact that Government spending is entirely too high and are critical of high taxes, but many of them, at the same time, continue selfishly to ask that the Government do for them or their communities what they should do for themselves. The former President, like other thoughtful Americans in all walks of life, fears that there has been a "widespread deterioration of our moral strength" and that we "seem to be losing our capacity to bear our own responsibilities unflinchingly."

VIETNAM ORDEAL — In the hot war in Southeast Asia, in which the United States is deeply involved, things are going bad for us. Our 12,000 troops in South Vietnam—to help the government in power fight the Communist guerrilla forces, called the Viet Cong —are making very little progress, and a number of our soldiers and Army officers have been killed. Though we're currently paying the bills to the tune of some $1,500,000 a day and have poured in $2,500,000,000 to support the government, we have very little to say about how the war is run. The campaign against the Reds has been disrupted and weakened by the behavior of the South Vietnam President, Ngo Dinh Diem. Diem appears more determined to preserve his power than to destroy the Comunist Viet Cong guerrillas. This past week, President Diem, urged on by a stern family oligarchy, used the South Vietnam Army to invade the sanctity of Saigon pagodas and violently arrest hundreds of Buddhist monks and nuns, charging them with fomenting a coup against his regime. The invasion of the pagodas, which were left in shambles, and the wholesale arrests, followed by the declaration of martial law in Saigon, brought worldwide protests against the South Vietnam Government, including the poignant resignation of President Diem's Ambassador to Washington. Many Saigon student leaders openly oposed the Diem regime and were promptly jailed.

The situation was complicated by persistent rumors that the President had lost effective control of his younger brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who, together with his wife, has been an outspoken and influential advocate of Buddhist repression, and that Nhu was about to openly assume government leadership, and the further rumors that the South Vietnam Army might not remain loyal to the existing regime.

Into this confused atmosphere, new American Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge arrived to assume his post. Almost imediately, the student leaders who had been arrested in the crackdown apealed to him to side against the regime which we have been supporting and financing.

Though Saigon was the scene of the repression, meaningful decisions stemming from it must be made in Washington. We are suddenly faced with a serious crisis.

The Reds gained greatly from our Government's deal on Laos, next door. Let us hope that South Vietnam does not prove to be a second defeat for us in that area.

EXTRAVAGANCE — Dulles International Airport is too big to hide, even 'way down in rural Virginia. No doubt the sponsors of this white elephant, costing the taxpayers some $110,000,000, would like to hide it, particularly since it can't make ends meet and the taxpayers must now be called on to pay a huge deficit every year. Right now, the operating deficit runs to about $1,500,000 a year, and that's in addition to the financing costs, which are being ignored. It is now estimated that Dulles will not make its expenses until the year 1978. Until then, the taxpayers will make up the yearly deficit and try to forget the original cost. Dulles will continue to lose money and be a burden because of its ridiculous location 29 miles south and west of Washington and 70 hectic miles from Baltimore. Travelers complain that they find the trip to Dulles or from Dulles both time-consuming and expensive. One-way taxi fare from Dulles to Washington is $11.

The unnecessary extravagance of keeping up White-Elephant Dulles, down in rural Virginia, comes into sharp focus in the light of the existence of Friendship International Airport, located on a super expressway between Washington and Baltimore. Friendship was built in 1950 to handle jet aircraft serving both Washington and Baltimore. Friendship is more convenient to Washington than is Dulles; the overall trip from planeside Dulles to the airport bus terminal in downtown Washington takes you longer than from planeside Friendship. Friendship is closer to down town Baltimore by nearly two hours. Friendship handled all jet travel for both cities for over 3 years, and it is capable of handling three to four times that volume! Even now, the only jet airport serving both Baltimore and Washington is Friendship. Why Dulles then? Is Dulles less expensive for airlines to use? On the contrary, it costs airlines up to three times as much to use Dulles, causing at least one airline to cut back on its number of flights.

You may wonder why Dulles was built in the first place, and, more to the point now, why we are "sending good money after bad" in paying the big deficit each year to operate Dulles. That makes two of us!

MORE POWER — Addressing the American Bar Association's 86th annual meeting recently, its president, Sylvester C. Smith, said: "There is every indication that the Federal administrative agencies are again reaching out for power extending their jurisdiction beyond the intended delegation granted by the Congress. . . We should seek the prompt enactment of legislation that will bring the Federal administrative process within the true concept of our representative form of government."

14 MINORITY PRESIDENTS — Three Presidents of the United States were elected despite the fact that they received fewer votes than did their respective chief opponents. They were John Quincy Adams in 1824, Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876, and Benjamin Harrison in 1888. Adams' election was decided by the House of Representatives, and Hayes' election by a special Congressional commission; Harrison, after coming out second best in popular votes, received a majority of the Electoral College votes. In 11 other Presidential elections, the successful candidate received less than 50 per cent of the popular vote. The last time this happened was in 1960, when John F. Kennedy edged out Richard M. Nixon.

LOSING LIKE TRUE DIPLOMATS — There is speculation about what some future pep-talks may sound like, since the President has tossed athletics into the diplomacy mill. By Executive Order, President Kennedy has established an "Interagency Committee On International Athletics," saying that "it is vital" that the United States take notice of amateur athletic competitions which "have a potential effect upon the foreign relations of this Nation." Can't you just hear coaches of the future saying something like this:

"O.K., fellas, we got a big vote coming up in the U.N., — so I want you to get out there and really make it look good, but, for Pete's sake, lose!"

OR

"Civil Service or no Civil Service, you hit Tito's nephew that hard again and you're off the team!"

OR

"Fine show, Old Boy, you're losing like a true diplomat!"

Incidental Information

MOSCOW (AP) — An inhabitant of an allegedly imperialistic power on the other side of the Atlantic asked if it was possible to walk into a Moscow hardware store and buy a hammer and sickle.

Well, it is.

It took a visit to three hardware stores to find one which had any farm implements at all, but once the right one was found, a sickle could be bought for 40 kopecs, equal to 44 cents, and a hammer for 63 kopecs, about 70 cents.

It can only be added that neither one was a great bargain at the price, low as it is.

Pigs Were 'Psychoanalyzed' By Researchers

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Research shows that pigs, like people, enjoy togetherness, have leaders, and become irritable, according to G. B. Phillips of Auburn University.

In one experiment, researchers discovered that pigs preferred to eat in groups rather than alone. Another test proved that one pig in each pen — not necessarily the largest—emerged as leader. And one farmer found that he could solve the problem of tail-biting in the pig pen by giving his hogs a toy, an old tire which he hung above the feed floor. The pigs started playing with the tire and forgot about the tail-biting.

Tower To Rise Again

SYDNEY (AP) — The 210-foot-high clock tower of the Sydney General Post Office, which was removed in 1942 in case of enemy attack, is soon to be reerected. The government has let a contract for 86,844 Australian pounds ($194,000) for its restoration. It cost 17,000 Australian pounds ($38,000) to demolish and remove. The job is expected to be finished by June, 1964.

The situation was complicated by persistent rumors that the President had lost effective control of his younger brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who, together with his wife, has been an outspoken and influential advocate of Buddhist repression, and that Nhu was about to openly assume government leadership, and the further rumors that the South Vietnam Army might not remain loyal to the existing regime.

Into this confused atmosphere, new American Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge arrived to assume his post. Almost imediately, the student leaders who had been arrested in the crackdown apealed to him to side against the regime which we have been supporting and financing.

Though Saigon was the scene of the repression, meaningful decisions stemming from it must be made in Washington. We are suddenly faced with a serious crisis.

The Reds gained greatly from our Government's deal on Laos, next door. Let us hope that South Vietnam does not prove to be a second defeat for us in that area.

EXTRAVAGANCE — Dulles International Airport is too big to hide, even 'way down in rural Virginia. No doubt the sponsors of this white elephant, costing the taxpayers some $110,000,000, would like to hide it, particularly since it can't make ends meet and the taxpayers must now be called on to pay a huge deficit every year. Right now, the operating deficit runs to about $1,500,000 a year, and that's in addition to the financing costs, which are being ignored. It is now estimated that Dulles will not make its expenses until the year 1978. Until then, the taxpayers will make up the yearly deficit and try to forget the original cost. Dulles will continue to lose money and be a burden because of its ridiculous location 29 miles south and west of Washington and 70 hectic miles from Baltimore. Travelers complain that they find the trip to Dulles or from Dulles both time-consuming and expensive. One-way taxi fare from Dulles to Washington is $11.

The unnecessary extravagance of keeping up White-Elephant Dulles, down in rural Virginia, comes into sharp focus in the light of the existence of Friendship International Airport, located on a super expressway between Washington and Baltimore. Friendship was built in 1950 to handle jet aircraft serving both Washington and Baltimore. Friendship is more convenient to Washington than is Dulles; the overall trip from planeside Dulles to the airport bus terminal in downtown Washington takes you longer than from planeside Friendship. Friendship is closer to down town Baltimore by nearly two hours. Friendship handled all jet travel for both cities for over 3 years, and it is capable of handling three to four times that volume! Even now, the only jet airport serving both Baltimore and Washington is Friendship. Why Dulles then? Is Dulles less expensive for airlines to use? On the contrary, it costs airlines up to three times as much to use Dulles, causing at least one airline to cut back on its number of flights.

You may wonder why Dulles was built in the first place, and, more to the point now, why we are "sending good money after bad" in paying the big deficit each year to operate Dulles. That makes two of us!

MORE POWER — Addressing the American Bar Association's 86th annual meeting recently, its president, Sylvester C. Smith, said: "There is every indication that the Federal administrative agencies are again reaching out for power extending their jurisdiction beyond the intended delegation granted by the Congress. . . We should seek the prompt enactment of legislation that will bring the Federal administrative process within the true concept of our representative form of government."

14 MINORITY PRESIDENTS — Three Presidents of the United States were elected despite the fact that they received fewer votes than did their respective chief opponents. They were John Quincy Adams in 1824, Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876, and Benjamin Harrison in 1888. Adams' election was decided by the House of Representatives, and Hayes' election by a special Congressional commission; Harrison, after coming out second best in popular votes, received a majority of the Electoral College votes. In 11 other Presidential elections, the successful candidate received less than 50 per cent of the popular vote. The last time this happened was in 1960, when John F. Kennedy edged out Richard M. Nixon.

LOSING LIKE TRUE DIPLOMATS — There is speculation about what some future pep-talks may sound like, since the President has tossed athletics into the diplomacy mill. By Executive Order, President Kennedy has established an "Interagency Committee On International Athletics," saying that "it is vital" that the United States take notice of amateur athletic competitions which "have a potential effect upon the foreign relations of this Nation." Can't you just hear coaches of the future saying something like this:

"O.K., fellas, we got a big vote coming up in the U.N., — so I want you to get out there and really make it look good, but, for Pete's sake, lose!"

OR

"Civil Service or no Civil Service, you hit Tito's nephew that hard again and you're off the team!"

OR

"Fine show, Old Boy, you're losing like a true diplomat!"

Incidental Information

MOSCOW (AP) — An inhabitant of an allegedly imperialistic power on the other side of the Atlantic asked if it was possible to walk into a Moscow hardware store and buy a hammer and sickle.

Well, it is.

It took a visit to three hardware stores to find one which had any farm implements at all, but once the right one was found, a sickle could be bought for 40 kopecs, equal to 44 cents, and a hammer for 63 kopecs, about 70 cents.

It can only be added that neither one was a great bargain at the price, low as it is.

Pigs Were 'Psychoanalyzed' By Researchers

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Research shows that pigs, like people, enjoy togetherness, have leaders, and become irritable, according to G. B. Phillips of Auburn University.

In one experiment, researchers discovered that pigs preferred to eat in groups rather than alone. Another test proved that one pig in each pen — not necessarily the largest—emerged as leader. And one farmer found that he could solve the problem of tail-biting in the pig pen by giving his hogs a toy, an old tire which he hung above the feed floor. The pigs started playing with the tire and forgot about the tail-biting.

Tower To Rise Again

SYDNEY (AP) — The 210-foot-high clock tower of the Sydney General Post Office, which was removed in 1942 in case of enemy attack, is soon to be reerected. The government has let a contract for 86,844 Australian pounds ($194,000) for its restoration. It cost 17,000 Australian pounds ($38,000) to demolish and remove. The job is expected to be finished by June, 1964.

Former Local Resident Promoted By N.Y. Firm

Charles E. Wickard, a native of Cumberland, has been promoted to senior vice president of the New York City advertising firm of Johnstone Inc., subsidiary of Interpublic Inc.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Wickard, LaVale, he previously had held the dual post of account supervisor and administrative director of the Johnstone firm.

Wickard graduated from the University of Maryland with a bachelor of science degree. During his senior year at College Park he was president of the Student Government Association.

He served two years in the Air Force and was public information officer at Chanute AFB, Ill., with the rank of first lieutenant.

Employed by the DuPont firm in Wilmington, Del., prior to his service in the armed forces, Wickard was named manager of its men's wear advertising after his release from the Air Force.

He later was an account executive with McCann-Erickson, New York City advertising company, and then joined Johnstone.

Pennsylvania Contractor Low Bidder On Route 40 Job

A Monroeville, Pa., firm is the apparent low bidder on a State Roads Commission project of improving a portion of U. S. Route 40 near Hancock.

The project will eliminate a bad stretch of road that extends eastward from Interstate Route 70, and actually will be an extension of that highway.

The apparent low bid was $3,107,560.24 by the Ralph Myers Construction Corporation of Monroeville. Other low bids were by Henry C. Eastburn, Inc., of Newark, Del., $3,177,426.02, and E. D. Plummer and Sons, Chambersburg, Pa., $3,297,099.40.

Five other firms submitted bids on the proposal, according to John B. Funk, director of the SRC.

The contract calls for the grading, draining and surfacing of Interstate 70 from Millstone to Licking Creek, a distance of 2.894 miles. Included in the specifications is .632 mile of interchange ramps made of flexible pavements.

A three-span steel beam and girder bridge will be constructed under the contract, the spans measuring 70, 102 and 61 feet, and with a 20-foot roadway.

Also called for is the grading and draining of a Western Maryland Railway relocation for 1.534 miles, south toward the C&O Canal.

The new dual-lane highway will be placed partly on the present railway bed, Funk explaining the existing roadway will be removed and then reconstructed as part of the upper slope of the new road.

The stretch to be improved runs through the area known as Parkhead, the existing highway being a narrow concrete road on a hillside above the Western Maryland lines.

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) —Ivor Wooley, 18, was put on probation Tuesday for being a bad loser.

CUF Golden Gifts Raises $33,475 At Kickoff

The Cumberland Golden Gifts Division of the seventh County United Fund campaign took a big step forward its $125,000 goal Tuesday as a total of $33,475 was pledged during the division's kickoff meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

J. Carson Dowell, executive vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and Robert Hunter Jr., procurement administrator at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, set October 2 as the target date for reporting victory in surpassing the division goal.

Included among the kickoff Big Gifts were two single corporate gifts of $7,000 each, setting off a campaign of competition between Dowell and Hunter, whose separate campaign teams tried to outdo the other with early pledges at the dinner meeting.

Hunter told the group of Cumberland area professional and business leaders that "Our job this year is big, but it can be accomplished with a sincere effort on the part of each of us. We have the strongest United Fund in Maryland and West Virginia, and certainly we want to keep this reputation."

He added, "You are an inspired group of community leaders dedicated to the concept that our communities will be better places in which to work, to live and raise our families. This is an opportunity for us to serve our communities and help to strengthen our day-by-day relationships in our business and professional world.

Dowell told the group that the momentum created by the big giving of Golden Gifts will carry through the other divisions of the campaign as all United Givers give toward the overall $394,533 goal for CUF's 28 participating agencies. "You must remember," Dowell remarked, "that your one gift is for 28 agencies which, if there were no County United Fund, would be asking 28 different times for contributions."

Walter E. Dyck, manager of Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, general campaign chairman, also spoke and told those attending of the important job that lies ahead of them.

Dyck has provided for a small gift to be presented to each Golden Giver in the 1963 campaign as a "token of appreciation for doing your part in your community."

Captains named for the 19 teams in the Golden Gifts Division and their goals are William R. Carscaden, $8,100; Glenn E. Martin, $11,200; E. Blair Harman, $3,000; James A. Bailey, $5,600; Samuel Moses, $9,600; Hal D Barber, $2,600; Harry A. Smith Jr., $14,500; Charles E. Stutzman, $6,000.

William Walsh, $7,500; Arch M. Hutcheson, $4,800; William P. Durland, $3,500; John S. Wilson, $2,500; Leonard E. Erickson, $4,100; Charles L. Herath, $3,100; Robert Hunter Jr., $11,000; Earl D. Nonnenmann, $10,000; Lester J. Auker, $17,265; David J. Moreland, $4,500, and James C. Warden, $3,600.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A singer who makes a hit record sometimes finds that it can be a double-edged sword, one which has him repeating the tune thousands of times.

It's not unusual for somebody to ask Bing Crosby to croon "White Christmas" in the dead of summer heat. Or Gene Autry might be asked to sing his Christmas hit, "Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer," as autumn's leaves begin to fall.

Singers take all this as the price of popularity, but privately, some of them admit that it can be boring.

Frankie Laine, a vocalist who has 14 gold records, each symbolic of one of his tunes that sold at least one million copies, estimates that he has repeated his hits thousands of times.

Frank's big hits include "Mule Train," "That's My Desire," "Wild Goose," "Jezebel" and "Shine."

Frankie estimates that he's sung "Mule Train" more than 4,500 times since it became a hit in 1949. It's approximately the same for several of his other big records.

"Wild Goose has no feathers left," joked Laine. "I've been averaging about two shows a night for 30 weeks a year. And I sing those hits each show. So you can see how they'll add up."

Laine said that half the "Mule Train" requests come from women who tell him the song was popular when they were being courted by their husbands.

"I don't think the song is particularly conducive to romance," Laine said, "but to each his own."

Constant repetition can kill a popular song, said Laine, citing the short lives of current hits. In some cases it's a blessing that they die a quick death.

"The kids have a tough time putting together a repertoire today," he said. "A singer has the number one song, and before he can complete a tour the tune isn't number one anymore. If the song is number one for eight weeks, it's a big hit. We used to last for eight months."

Patti Page, winner of 13 gold records, is faced with the same situation as Laine.

"The problem is to find ways of doing songs differently," she said. "But audiences want to hear them sung the way they were recorded. So I cut the songs down and use them in a medley of 20 tunes that I've recorded."

There's one gratifying aspect about the problem of constantly repeating hit songs. Only successful singers have it.

Man's Best Friend?

HYDE VAD, Denmark (AP) — Hunter Frede Iversen shot a duck. The duck fell into a ditch, and Iversen waded in when his retriever refused to take the plunge. Prancing with excitement on the bank, the dog trod on the trigger of Iversen's gun firing a barrel of buckshot into the hunter's leg. Iversen was taken to the hospital, minus duck, plus dog.

Snakes Alive!

MASSAPEQUA, N. Y. (AP) — Neighbors of Martin Towne are intrigued with his new pets but they're glad to hear he won't be letting them run loose.

Towne keeps two 4-year-old pythons from South America in a cage in the living room. He claims his wife and young daughter share his delight in watching the graceful creatures move about.

"After the neighbors visited our home and got used to the pythons they seemed to enjoy them almost as much as we do," the reptile enthusiast reported.

CUF Golden Gifts Raises $33,475 At Kickoff

The Cumberland Golden Gifts Division of the seventh County United Fund campaign took a big step forward its $125,000 goal Tuesday as a total of $33,475 was pledged during the division's kickoff meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

J. Carson Dowell, executive vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and Robert Hunter Jr., procurement administrator at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, set October 2 as the target date for reporting victory in surpassing the division goal.

Included among the kickoff Big Gifts were two single corporate gifts of $7,000 each, setting off a campaign of competition between Dowell and Hunter, whose separate campaign teams tried to outdo the other with early pledges at the dinner meeting.

Hunter told the group of Cumberland area professional and business leaders that "Our job this year is big, but it can be accomplished with a sincere effort on the part of each of us. We have the strongest United Fund in Maryland and West Virginia, and certainly we want to keep this reputation."

He added, "You are an inspired group of community leaders dedicated to the concept that our communities will be better places in which to work, to live and raise our families. This is an opportunity for us to serve our communities and help to strengthen our day-by-day relationships in our business and professional world.

Dowell told the group that the momentum created by the big giving of Golden Gifts will carry through the other divisions of the campaign as all United Givers give toward the overall $394,533 goal for CUF's 28 participating agencies. STANLEY S. SPEAKE

First session of a consumer credit and collection course will open in Cumberland next Monday under the instruction of Sterling S. Speake of the Educational Division of the International Consumer Credit Association, St. Louis.

A large number of business and professional people have enrolled in this short course, considered helpful in methods of handling credit accounts and collecting, according to Phyllis Mentecky, manager of the Credit Bureau of Cumberland, which is sponsoring the school.

Local businessmen doing a consumer credit business, together with bankers, and other credit and collection personnel are invited to attend the first meeting Monday.

All phases of consumer credit and collection operations will be covered during the course, which will be held from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Advance enrollments may be made by contacting the Credit Bureau, Miss Mentecky said.

Former Local Man Promoted

Walter L. McIntosh, former assistant plant accountant here, has been appointed vice president-administration of Celanese Polymer Company, a division of the Celanese Corporation of America.

McIntosh joined the Celanese organization at the Amcelle plant in 1953, where he was located for four years. Afterwards he worked for one year as supervisor of general corporate accounting in Charlotte, N. C.

Before taking this newly created post with the polymer company, McIntosh served the past five years as controller of the Celanese Company.

He is a 1948 graduate of Ben Franklin University, from which he received a master's degree in accounting. Previous to joining Celanese he held several other positions, including that of accounting instructor at his alma mater.

McIntosh is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the District of Columbia Certified Public Accountants and the National Association of Accountants. He presently resides in Wyckoff, N. J.

Ruling Made On Tax Notices

Delinquent tax notices should contain the legal designation of properties as they are recorded in the land records of Allegany County in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

This was the ruling Tuesday by Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, in a request for the elimination of the designations made by Francis Philpot, county tax collector.

Philpot had asked that the liber and folio numbers as the properties are recorded be dropped as they called for additional work on the part of the staff.

Getty noted in his written opinion in the form of a letter to Philpot that the description is necessary so that it can pinpoint the exact property that is delinquent as some persons own a number of properties.

This information is also necessary on the notice as it must be carried on in the event of a tax sale.

He concluded that while the county law does not specifically require this information, he sees no good reason for not putting it on the notice.

Truck Drivers, Celanese Agree

Negotiations were completed Saturday on a two-year contract for Celanese truck drivers as members of Teamsters Union voted to accept the company's offer made to the union negotiation committee Friday.

William R. King, manager of the Celanese trucking division, said the settlement involves increases in mileage rates paid both drivers of single and double man vehicles. It also provides pay for funeral leave and pay for holidays falling on Saturday.

Members of the union negotiating committee were Charles E. Stutzman, union business manager, and drivers Charles Mueller, William Rowley and Clarence Smith.

UPIDC Host To Meet Today

The Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company will be host to the Maryland Economic Development Commission at a luncheon today at 1 p.m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The state commission will hold a meeting at 10 a.m. today at the Fort Cumberland Hotel during which this region's economic and unemployment problems will be discussed.

The luncheon will feature a talk by John L. Sweeney Jr., director of President Kennedy's Appalachian Regional Commission and assistant to Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Trailer Court Permit Denied

Grace L. Connor, RD 5, Winchester Road, Tuesday was denied approval for a trailer court by the LaVale Zoning Board.

John L. Conway, board chairman, said a special meeting on the application was held in the LaVale Fire Hall.

Conway said many residents of the area attended and all protested the granting of the trailer court permit.

Conway said the board decided that the location was not proper for a trailer court due to the congestion in the area and also the existing residential development.

Five dwelling and sign permits were approved by the board.

Garrett County Grand Jury Indicts Three Persons

Four indictments were returned by the September term of the Garrett County grand jury when it convened in Garrett County Circuit Court, Oakland.

One indictment was returned for the capital offense of rape, two others on morals charges and the fourth on a charge of false pretense on which the accused man remains at large.

The charge of rape was placed against Frank Earl Brown, 38, whose post office address is Shaw, W. Va. Charged with the rape of an 11-year-old girl in Garrett County, Brown has been held in Garrett County Jail since his arrest Saturday.

The alleged incident is reported to have occurred Tuesday, September 3. Brown was arrested by Trooper Donald A. Tucker and Sheriff James E. Frantz.

The two morals indictments were returned against Carl William Lundy, about 50, of Burlington, who has been receiving treatment at the Clifton T. Perkins psychiatric clinic in Baltimore where he was taken May 8 on the petition of his attorney, Dwight Stover.

Lundy was arrested March 12 by Tfc. Milton G. Hart criminal investigator of the Maryland State Police.

Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Wayne Wilt said the man charged with false pretense is still at large.

The Garrett County petit jury will convene Monday, September 23, to begin consideration of criminal and civil cases.

The grand jury session lasted only one day. Convening Monday at 10 a. m. and receiving the charge from Judge Stuart F. Hamill, it was dismissed at 5 p.m.

Dry Again

CHARITON, Iowa (UPI)—A long and bitter battle finally brought a liquor-by-the-drink law to the formerly dry state of Iowa on July 4.

After only nine wet weeks, Lucas County took advantage of a "reverse local option" in the law to vote itself dry once more.

STANLEY S. SPEAKE

First session of a consumer credit and collection course will open in Cumberland next Monday under the instruction of Sterling S. Speake of the Educational Division of the International Consumer Credit Association, St. Louis.

A large number of business and professional people have enrolled in this short course, considered helpful in methods of handling credit accounts and collecting, according to Phyllis Mentecky, manager of the Credit Bureau of Cumberland, which is sponsoring the school.

Local businessmen doing a consumer credit business, together with bankers, and other credit and collection personnel are invited to attend the first meeting Monday.

All phases of consumer credit and collection operations will be covered during the course, which will be held from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Advance enrollments may be made by contacting the Credit Bureau, Miss Mentecky said.

Former Local Man Promoted

Walter L. McIntosh, former assistant plant accountant here, has been appointed vice president-administration of Celanese Polymer Company, a division of the Celanese Corporation of America.

McIntosh joined the Celanese organization at the Amcelle plant in 1953, where he was located for four years. Afterwards he worked for one year as supervisor of general corporate accounting in Charlotte, N. C.

Before taking this newly created post with the polymer company, McIntosh served the past five years as controller of the Celanese Company.

He is a 1948 graduate of Ben Franklin University, from which he received a master's degree in accounting. Previous to joining Celanese he held several other positions, including that of accounting instructor at his alma mater.

McIntosh is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the District of Columbia Certified Public Accountants and the National Association of Accountants. He presently resides in Wyckoff, N. J.

Ruling Made On Tax Notices

Delinquent tax notices should contain the legal designation of properties as they are recorded in the land records of Allegany County in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

This was the ruling Tuesday by Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, in a request for the elimination of the designations made by Francis Philpot, county tax collector.

Philpot had asked that the liber and folio numbers as the properties are recorded be dropped as they called for additional work on the part of the staff.

Getty noted in his written opinion in the form of a letter to Philpot that the description is necessary so that it can pinpoint the exact property that is delinquent as some persons own a number of properties.

This information is also necessary on the notice as it must be carried on in the event of a tax sale.

He concluded that while the county law does not specifically require this information, he sees no good reason for not putting it on the notice.

Truck Drivers, Celanese Agree

Negotiations were completed Saturday on a two-year contract for Celanese truck drivers as members of Teamsters Union voted to accept the company's offer made to the union negotiation committee Friday.

William R. King, manager of the Celanese trucking division, said the settlement involves increases in mileage rates paid both drivers of single and double man vehicles. It also provides pay for funeral leave and pay for holidays falling on Saturday.

Members of the union negotiating committee were Charles E. Stutzman, union business manager, and drivers Charles Mueller, William Rowley and Clarence Smith.

UPIDC Host To Meet Today

The Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company will be host to the Maryland Economic Development Commission at a luncheon today at 1 p.m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The state commission will hold a meeting at 10 a.m. today at the Fort Cumberland Hotel during which this region's economic and unemployment problems will be discussed.

The luncheon will feature a talk by John L. Sweeney Jr., director of President Kennedy's Appalachian Regional Commission and assistant to Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Trailer Court Permit Denied

Grace L. Connor, RD 5, Winchester Road, Tuesday was denied approval for a trailer court by the LaVale Zoning Board.

John L. Conway, board chairman, said a special meeting on the application was held in the LaVale Fire Hall.

Conway said many residents of the area attended and all protested the granting of the trailer court permit.

Conway said the board decided that the location was not proper for a trailer court due to the congestion in the area and also the existing residential development.

Five dwelling and sign permits were approved by the board.

Garrett County Grand Jury Indicts Three Persons

Four indictments were returned by the September term of the Garrett County grand jury when it convened in Garrett County Circuit Court, Oakland.

One indictment was returned for the capital offense of rape, two others on morals charges and the fourth on a charge of false pretense on which the accused man remains at large.

The charge of rape was placed against Frank Earl Brown, 38, whose post office address is Shaw, W. Va. Charged with the rape of an 11-year-old girl in Garrett County, Brown has been held in Garrett County Jail since his arrest Saturday.

The alleged incident is reported to have occurred Tuesday, September 3. Brown was arrested by Trooper Donald A. Tucker and Sheriff James E. Frantz.

The two morals indictments were returned against Carl William Lundy, about 50, of Burlington, who has been receiving treatment at the Clifton T. Perkins psychiatric clinic in Baltimore where he was taken May 8 on the petition of his attorney, Dwight Stover.

Lundy was arrested March 12 by Tfc. Milton G. Hart criminal investigator of the Maryland State Police.

Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Wayne Wilt said the man charged with false pretense is still at large.

The Garrett County petit jury will convene Monday, September 23, to begin consideration of criminal and civil cases.

The grand jury session lasted only one day, Convening Monday at 10 a. m. and receiving the charge from Judge Stuart F. Hamill, it was dismissed at 5 p.m.

Dry Again

CHARITON, Iowa (UPI)—A long and bitter battle finally brought a liquor-by-the-drink law to the formerly dry state of Iowa on July 4.

After only nine wet weeks, Lucas County took advantage of a "reverse local option" in the law to vote itself dry once more.

PTA Meets Today

Wiley Ford PTA will hold its monthly meeting today at the school. Room Visitation will be held from 7 to 7:30 p.m. with a business meeting to follow.

Civic Group To Raise Funds For MD Drive

The Tri-State Civic Club, organized to assist health and welfare organizations, will meet today at 7 p.m. at the home of Fulton-Myers Post 153, American Legion.

John Wormack, president, said plans will be formulated to sponsor a dance for the benefit of the current Muscular Dystrophy campaign. The organization's most recent contribution was $100 to the Cancer Society.

Plans also will be made concerning the club's third anniversary celebration, Wormack said.

Nice Dog, But

WATFORD, England (UPI) — Frank Pettit, a kennel director, said Wednesday he was looking for a person with "plenty of money" to take care of Trigger, a full-grown St. Bernard dog which eats 7 pounds of meat and biscuits each day.

"She is very friendly and well mannered," Pettit said, "but her appetite frightens people."

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Sachet Sense

One of the loveliest and daintiest of all personal accessories, the sachet, is most often overlooked.

Sachet, when properly used and placed, can give a sustained fragrance. If used properly, it will trail a magnetic aroma wherever you go. It becomes part of you—a distinct facet of your personality.

Choose the scent best suited to your personality. A floral fragrance, for instance, is an especially happy choice right now through the warmer months.

Slip sachet bags into the pockets of clothes. Scatter them among pieces of your lingerie, gloves, scarves, and handkerchiefs. Also put them in your hat boxes and hang them over your dress hangers. This will give a day long and night aura of fragrance.

If you place sachet powder in open bowls, it will fill a room with a pleasant fragrance. Alongside your bed, it woos sweet dreams.

Women who find that liquid fragrance stales on their skin have been very successful with sachet-saturated cotton pellets worn inside their bras. Should you find that perfume "just doesn't cling, "learn to use a liquid skin sachet.

Once you form the delightful "sachet habit" wou'll start being remembered for a lovely fragrance. This can, of course, be one of the nicest compliments you can pay those around you.

Good Quality Apple Crop Seen For This Area

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — A good quality Eastern apple crop—but shorter over-all and lower in processing tonnage than last year—was the picture painted for about 200 Virginia and West Virginia growers here.

Representatives of the apple industry from New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia outlined the situaton regarding this year's apple crop in the East at a meeting conducted by the Virginia Agricultural Marketing Association.

Credit to Appalachian processors was voiced for what was termed "concessions" made in prices this year. There was no dollar and cents mention of prices allowed at the meeting because of antitrust laws.

Ward Cooper, manager of the American Agricultural Marketing Association, told the growers "the signs appear to be those of opportunity for processors and growers."

Ben. R. Lacey III of Front Royal said processing apples are down in Virginia this year, but coloring is better than usual. He said the fresh sales potentional is very good.

Stanley Eye of Harpers Ferry said quality in West Virginia generally is good, but the supply for processing is down.

Mrs. Eckhart Top Fair Winner

The Cumberland Fair was discussed at the meeting of the Midlothian Homemakers Club held recently at the home of Mrs. Herman Winters, who presided. It was announced that the club received $15 for its demonstration.

Mrs. Edwin Eckhart, member of the club, was reported top winner at the fair, in the Homemakers department. She received a cash sum of $24.75. Her exhibits included a chair cover, upholstered chair, and stool, refinished furniture and several items of clothing. The report was made by Mrs. Blaine Willetts, who also told of the demonstration she gave of liquid embroidery, assisted by Mrs. Russell Lancaster. Mrs. Eckhart also demonstrated fancy sewing.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Handel Price playing two Welsh hymns. A discussion was held on different kinds of house plants. Routine reports were given by Mrs. James Loar and Miss Edith Ritchie.

Following the meeting Mrs. Bruce Simmons was honored with a baby shower. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Nellie Ritchie and Miss Ritchie. Eighteen members attended.

He's Forgiven

SOUTH BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP)—When Gilberto Grant, Fort Dix, N.J., finally showed up in court on a motor vehicle code violation charge, he had a good excuse for being almost three years late.

The young soldier, charged October 22, 1960, with failing to keep right, was shipped out to Korea immediately afterwards.

Treadmill Tests Horses' Hearts

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Royal Veterinary College here has developed a technique for studying the heart action of race horses without chasing them around a track.

The school had determined by post mortems that most race horses die of heart failure, but since a horse's heart pumps only about 30 quarts of blood per minute while resting as compared to 150 to 200 while racing, many cases of horse heart trouble can be detected only when the horse is active. By using a "rolling mat" or conveyor belt system, the horse can run at speeds of up to 25 miles an hour and still be subjected to electrocardiogram and blood pressure tests.

The Department of Agriculture reports cotton classers determine cotton grades by color, smoothness of ginning and foreign matter in the cotton.

Grape experts report the year has seen a 50 per cent increase in the number of acres of grapes treated with gibberellin — a vitamin-like substance.

India's Tangled Planning Problem

Having correctly read the smoke signals arising from Capitol Hill, Prime Minister Nehru has withdrawn India's request for a $512 million loan to help build the controversial Bokaro steel mill. Nehru could be sure the funds would not be forthcoming, so his gesture merely adds a gracious touch to reality.

The Bokaro project fell into noticeable disfavor with Congress following the Clay Committee's recommendation that this country stop dispensing foreign aid to government-operated establishments that compete with private enterprise. The new mill was intended for the public sector of India's infant steel industry, there to join three plants financed by the Soviet Union, Britain and West Germany. Two other Indian steel mills are privately owned.

But competition in this instance is hardly the most pertinent factor. Private capital is not eager to invest in India, least of all in heavy industry. The absence of quality ore and paucity of skilled labor make such operations marginal at best.

India no doubt could use more steel and products of heavy industry. But far greater is the need to feed and adequately clothe its populace. India's necessary concentration on industry under a succession of five-year plans detracts from agriculture and the ability to provide essential consumer goods.

Compulsory Arbitration

The suggestion has been made that Congress, having headed off a nationwide railroad strike by imposing compulsory arbitration on the unions, has created a precedent that will be invoked in the future to prevent any and all big industry-wide or regionally important work stoppages.

Since the suggestion contains an element of prophetic truth, it is worth close analysis. Clearly some sort of precedent has been established, and the labor chiefs of the nation will have to walk warily in the years ahead before taking their issues to street and picket line. But as long as labor retains its crucial voting power in politically important states, compulsory arbitration measures will hardly be used indiscriminately. Whether or not they are to be invoked by Congress in the future to control the course of labor-management disputes will almost certainly depend on a definition of what it takes to "paralyze" the American economy.

A big newspaper strike in an important metropolitan area is hardly worth the cost to any of the unions involved. It weakens newspapers, which is a bad thing for anyone connected with them. But just what does such a strike "paralyze"? It slows business, it is a dreadful inconvenience, but there are bootleg ways of getting information. The life of New York City went on during the recent strike, though at a muted and frequently boring pace.

If there is ever to be a nationwide strike in steel again, it would be called "paralytic" by some. But would it be truly so? Taft-Hartley procedures can always be counted on to give warning of a coming steel stoppage, and this gives the manufacturers of steel products an opportunity to build up their raw steel inventories. Even after the inventories have been used up, people can "make do" with existing steel products for a long time. And in many instances there are acceptable substitutes for steel, such as plastics, aluminum and fiberglass.

A big strike in the automobile industry could continue for months without putting people off the roads of America. Car owners would simply keep the old jalopies rolling as they did for four years in World War II.

So what kind of strike is truly "paralytic"? The answer would seem to be only a strike that has an important "goods-to-market" angle. A nationwide railroad work stoppage would obviously serve to keep all manner of industries from functioning by cutting them off from their raw material sources at one end and from their customers at the other. It would deprive people of food, fuel, and all manner of necessities. This could be defined as truly "paralytic," meaning that motion in essential life-sustaining areas would be stopped.

So the scope of the Congressional precedent in settling the railroad featherbed dispute becomes clear: compulsory arbitration will in all probability be invoked in the future whenever a strike threatens to keep a wide variety of goods from moving into the marketplace.

This means that Jimmy Hoffa's truckdrivers will hardly be permitted to strike uniformly all across the nation. It means that the longshoremen's and the seamen's unions must think twice before attempting to close down the waterborne freight business. Hoffa and the maritime unions are in the "goods-to-market" sector of the economy just as much as the railroads. The truckdrivers and the longshoremen could truly paralyze the economy.

The "goods-to-market" test gives Congress an important piece of litmus paper to use in considering future compulsory arbitration measures. The fact that this promises Walter Reuther of the auto workers and David McDonald of the steel workers an immunity that must be denied to Jimmy Hoffa and the maritime chiefs may not seem equitable to truck drivers, longshoremen or sailors. But industries differ in their essential nature. The nation's rails and motor roads and docksides have an "eminent domain" angle, and the government has a duty to see that the political power of eminent domain is used to serve all the people where it impinges on goods-to-market movement. Paralysis in any wide "goods-to-market" operation is essentially different from paralysis in an industry that sells products whose use can be postponed, or substituted for, without bringing the functions of life to a standstill.

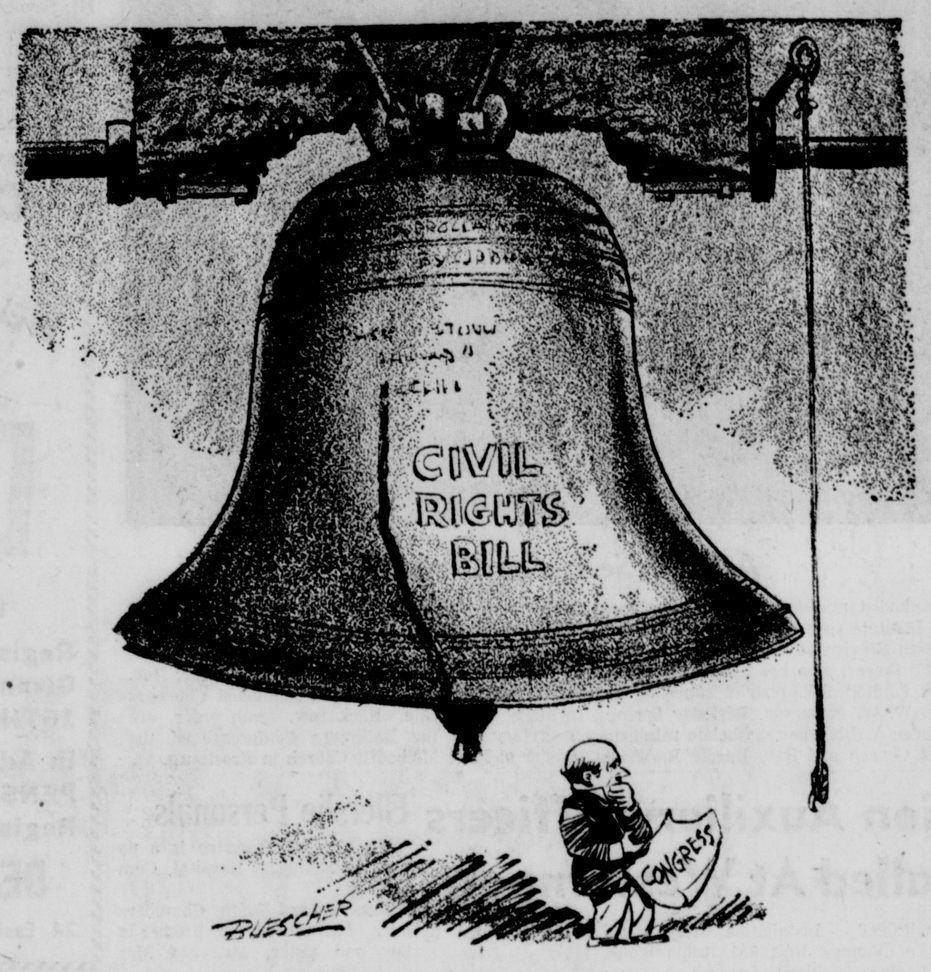
Let Freedom Ring



Religious Freedom Is Beginning In Spain, But Progress Is Very Slow

By Drew Pearson

MADRID—Because of the difficulty which Protestants have had in Spain, I went to see the head of the Spanish Reformed Church, Bishop Santos Molina.

My taxi driver, pointing to a sign in the front of the church, observed this was an English church, and I did not realize at the time the significance of his remark. Because it is forbidden for all other Protestant churches to designate on the outside of their buildings the fact that they are churches. The British Episcopal mission in Madrid is the sole exception, the pastor of that church being the spiritual adviser to the British Embassy.

A caretaker finally answered my ring at the big iron gate and escorted me upstairs through very modest living quarters to the small, cramped study of Bishop Santos. He proved to be a quiet-spoken man with clear blue eyes and strong clean-out features, who said that recently the problem of Protestants in Madrid had improved.

"All of the Protestant churches in Madrid have now been permitted to reopen," Bishop Santos said. "We cannot open new churches without permission, and the government is reluctant to give permission.

"There are still some Protestant churches closed in other parts of Spain," he said, "but Foreign Minister Castiella is trying hard to improve our position. He is endeavoring to get a law adopted guaranteeing religious freedom."

I learned from the Bishop that there are ten Protestant churches in Madrid.

"The Jews have an easier time than the Protestants," said the Bishop, "because the Catholic Church is not afraid that people will be converted to Judaism. There is fear that we may win some converts.

The Church Budget

"The question of the Catholic Church in Spain," the Bishop continued, "Is one of economics. The government pays the priests and it also appropriates the money for church administration.

"Nobody knows just how much money is appropriated today. But here is the budget for 1929." The Bishop fished around in his littered desk and pulled out a very worn government decree which showed that in 1929 the Minister of Grace and Justice had a budget of 40 million pesetas for civil matters and 60 mililon pesetas for church matters.

"Today the ecclesiastical budget is much, much greater, though it remains a secret. However, we do know that in 1952, 72 million pesetas were advanced for the Ecclesiastical Conference in Barcelona alone. And this," said the Bishop, "was at a time when Spain was starving."

I asked about church teaching in the public schools.

"The priests have a right to come into the public schools to inspect the religious worship," replied Bishop Santos. "Some Protestant fathers have protested Catholic services in the schools and have had their children exempted."

The Bishop took me through his church, a very modest building which bore a plaque showing it was the gift of Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Ireland, and "The People of Ireland and England on Dec. 1, 1892." With some pride the Bishop showed me his altar, pulpit, and vestments. The floors were worn, and outside in the courtyard the family wash was hanging on the line.

I told him that I had recently been in Rumania, a Communist country which discourages church worship but where the churches were crowded. In contrast, I had been in Greece where the government supports the Greek Orthodox Church, and the churches were empty.

"One church is like one company selling merchandise," said the Bishop. "If there's no competition the product deteriorates. There must be freedom of religious worship for all churches. The Greek government pays the priests in Greece and the Greek people see no difference between the government and the church. It is the same here in Spain. Out of a population of 30 million, all Catholic, there are only 3 to 4 million actually practicing Catholics."

Frank Church Discussion

Bishop Santos Molina, who is the chairman of the Defense Committee for Protestant Churches, said that the man who has done most to unpadlock the Protestant churches is Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella, who last month contributed a significant article to "America," official organ of the Jesuits. Thurston N. Davis, managing editor of "America," in introducing Castiella's article, made this comment:

"New forces are moving in Spain . . . . Spain seems to be cautiously trying on for size her own version of an apertura a sinestra. It isn't a wide opening to be sure; perhaps it would be more accurate to view it only as a slight crack in the door. But liberalizing forces are at work....

"Spain is trying to construct a legal framework within which she can allow her tiny minority of Protestants a full measure of freedom of conscience. This has not been an easy or a simple task.

"Those who find Sr. Castiella's article tentative, qualified, wary, should recall that Spaniards have had little or no experience of religious pluralims since 1492."

In the article that follows, the Foreign Minister, whom Bishop Santos gives credit for helping Protestant freedom, states quite frankly that the basic decision must be up to the Vatican. This points to a paradoxical conflict between the Spanish government and the Catholic Church. More and more the church has been opposing the Spanish government on political matters while the government has been opposing the church somewhat on ecclesiastical matters — a development which will be reported in an early column.

Personal Friendship And Political Rivalry

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There appeared last Saturday in the press and on TV throughout the country a photograph showing Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona chatting with President Kennedy after a White House ceremony honoring a retired Air Force general. The news dispatches said Mr. Kennedy, looking over the crowd, saw the Senator — who could be his Republican opponent next year for the Presidency — and, calling him by his first name, summoned him to his side to share the limelight.

The incident was no surprise to anyone who is familiar with Washington customs, but it probably was puzzling to too many people who seem to think that, because persons differ in politics, they can't be friends. Indeed, as Mr. Kennedy called out to "Barry," there was some laughter and one correspondent wrote that the President, "presumably aware of the political incongruity," hastened to say: "we are all friends."

It was an incident which emphasizes that, under the American system of government, political differences can be sharp, but most of the men who hold office or aspire to elected posts realize that personal feelings must always be secondary, if not repressed, and that what counts is the thoughtful presentation of one's side of a controversial question.

Again and again, not only in federal election contests but in state and local campaigns, men who have been intimate friends find themselves running for office on opposite sides. The public may have a hard time being convinced from some of the speeches that there is no deep-seated personal antagonism. But there are few instances where the loser of an election is not among the first to extend his congratulations to the winner.

It has always been the view of his writer that controversies should be reported and analyzed in the press, too, without regard to personal feelings, though it's hard sometimes to get readers to believe such an impersonal approach is possible.

The last ten men who have been President of the United States and whom this writer has known seemed to be likeable persons, but, when certain criticisms were written about every one of them, some readers took it for granted each time that personal antagonism was involved.

Thus, for example, letters come in nowadays which use the word "hate." It is stated that nobody could criticize a President without having some feeling of hate or dislike. Such letters are depressing because the American system of public debate and a free press apparently is not thoroughly understood or appreciated by the authors of such missives.

President Kennedy, for example, is a very likeable person. This writer considers him a man with a conscientious desire to serve the public. As a member of the House of Representatives and as a Senator, Mr. Kennedy became known in official circles, and reporters had a chance to talk with him and get acquainted.

If a poll were taken among the writers who criticize him, it might well be found that his most vehement critics never have had and do not have now any personal dislike for the President. He truly has an attractive personality, and so has his brother, the Attorney General.

But those who analyze the news feel a responsibility to the constituency they serve — particularly to readers who really want an evaluation of issues and events based on history, on honest judgment and on convictions formed over years of observation and awareness of the difference between sound and unsound public policies. To color the argument, however, with one's personal likes or dislikes is to ignore the main reason why public confidence is reposed in a free press.

A view expressed by a news writer or analyst may subsequently be proved wrong, but there's also a chance it may be proved right. If it is wrong, no harm is done because it will be disregarded by the persons in office who have the final responsibility for the action taken. But if the criticism happens to be right, it could serve as a deterrent if the issue arises again. These are matters that have nothing to do with likes or dislikes, with personal feelings or emotions. One can like President Kennedy very much and still write impersonally about policies that need revision. In fact, if there were no adverse criticism, there would be little chance to make revisions opportunely, and the public interest would not be served.

Senator Goldwater may be Mr. Kennedy's opponent next year, and it may be taken for granted the two men will emphatically disagree and earnestly criticize one another in the campaign. But — and let the portrait painters of America's "image" abroad take notice — the two political adversaries will remain friends.

Inside Washington

LEADERSHIP RISKS — At first glance, one would think that leadership of either party group in the Senate would be a political asset to the incumbent. However, the opposite has ofttimes proved to be the case.

A few years back, Sen. William Knowland of California gained a national reputation in his role as Senate Republican leader. His opposite number, Sen. Scott W. Lucas of Illinois was the much-quoted Democratic leader.

Knowland dropped into political oblivion when his long-range plan to seek the presidency via the California governor's chair was short circuited. Lucas was defeated in his bid for re-election to the Senate.

Of course, the late Alben Barkley disproved the rule. He served as Senate Democratic leader for many years during the Roosevelt and Truman eras and was far and away the most popular and well-known figure in his native State of Kentucky.

The present Senate majority leader is Mike Mansfield of Montana. And his Republican foes out there are trying to find a strong person to run against him when he is scheduled to seek re-election next year.

JUST CALL ME JOE — Rep. Joe Richard Pool, D.-Tex., is, like most politicians, quite concerned about people getting his name straight.

Pool has been understandably disturbed about the thousands of letters he gets addressed to Rep. Al Joe Pool. He couldn't figure out why his constituents called him Al.

There's a lot in a name, come voting time, so Rep. Pool set out to find out why his voters called him Al. He discovered that in the official lists of Members of Congress, the contraction of his designation of "At Large" appears before his name. Now he knows why he's called Al, but doesn't know what to do about it.

But in his replies to constituents' letters he does make it clear that he's Rep. Joe Pool, Democrat-at-Large, of Texas.

Search For Father

By John Crosby

VENICE.

One of the big hits of the film festival here, one that is causing almost more talk than anything else, is the resurrection of a French comedian named Max Linder. His daughter, Maud Linder, estimates that not one in a hundred people here ever heard of him.

Linder made over 600 films in his career, which ran from 1906 to his suicide with his wife in 1925. They were very successful in their day and Linder's personality and style greatly influenced Charles Chaplin, who has acknowledged Linder as his master. In Chaplin's very earliest movies he used Linder's costume, the very opposite of a tramp's—top hat, spats, and walking stick.

Linder's personality, as revealed in a two-hour montage of some of his later work being shown here, will remind you very much of Chaplin and, curiously, of Douglas Fairbanks Sr., both of whom he preceeded. In the characterization he used in hundreds of films, he played the part of a very rich young man with a houseful of servants, a car, and a big wardrobe.

Like Chaplin and Fairbanks and, it sometimes seems, all that generation, he had tremendous physical agility and skill, jumping out of windows onto the backs of horses, dueling, falling downstairs. He was also a master of disguise, which Chaplin never was really, and in his innumerable flights from his comic enemies he'd suddenly become somebody else. With a hat, a couple of marbles in his cheeks, glasses, he'd become an old man, pouchy and stooped.

In one of the funniest sequences in the film, he plays two people, staging a fight behind a curtain to impress his girl. It was fresh, inventive, and full of the explosive energy that marked comedy of this era and this type. In another segment, he does the mirror bit—a servant behind a mirror that has been broken imitating his every move, an old bit but one that has never been done with more charm and impish grace.

As a comedian Linder casts himself more in the heroic mold than that of the little man who was the model for Chaplin, Buster Keaton, Harry Langdon, Harold Lloyd, and the others. In one of the best sequences, he's chased by the cops and takes refuge in a lions' cage where he promptly makes friends with a lionness, wrestles with her, and taunts the cops to come get him, which they are afraid to do. In the end he's caught by a monkey, which, his daughter says, is his way of showing what he thought of cops. They weren't smart enough to catch him, but a monkey was.

Linder made his films in Paris and, for three or four years, in Hollywood, where he became a friend of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. When Fairbanks did his picture, "The Three Musketeers," Linder did a parody on the film, using some of the sets from the Fairbanks picture.

In 1925, for reasons that can only be guessed at, Linder and his young wife joined in a suicide pact. Maud Linder thinks her father, who was 43 years old, was afraid of losing his young wife. Miss Linder was six months old at the time. Until she was 12 she didn't know she was Max Linder's daughter. When she found out, she was afraid to see his films, fearful she was the daughter of a low comedian.

One day she was walking down a street in Versailles and saw a sign, Max Linder, on an art theater. Impulsively, she went in and asked for a ticket. But it was a cinema club open only to members and she was turned away. Out on the sidewalk, she hesitated a moment, then went back in and cried: "But he was my father!"

After she saw her father's films, she said, "I was ashamed of being ashamed." Her life has been dedicated to winning some measure of recognition for her father. It's been a tremendous struggle to locate his films, to put them in condition to show, and to get the rights to show them. Linder was a complete film-maker. He wrote, directed, and acted in his films, and they are a complete expression of himself.

This kind of personal filmmaking went out years ago, but it's coming back strong. Today Jacques Tati, who wrote, directed, and acted in "Mr. Hulot's Holiday," is the same sort of filmmaker Linder was. But the really personal filmmakers of our time are not actors but directors like Federico Fellini and Ingmar Bergman, both of whose pictures are complete expressions of themselves, as Linder's were of himself.

Main Types Of Leukemia--Acute And Chronic

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A man from Alexandria wants a discussion on leukemia. He writes: "The recent death of Ernie Davis, nationally known football star from Syracuse, has beeen a great shock to many persons, especially those who have leukemia or who have a friend or relative with the disease.

"Most persons are unable to understand why no medical aid could have prolonged Davis' life, especially as he was gainfully employed the day before he died in a job requiring considerable physical strength."

Much of the perplexity about the illness of this man stems from the fact there are two main types of leukemia. He had the acute variety, which is replete with complications and fatal within a short time. It differs from the chronic type, which is more frequent and less violent. Most victims are older persons who live comfortably with the disease for years.

Before the advent of our modern anti-leukemia drugs, the majority with acute leukemia died within six to eight weeks after the disease was diagnosed. The acute variety favors children, and the younger the patient the more likely he is to respond to treatment. Several drugs are available to lower the elevated white cell count. The response, though temporary, prolongs life a year or more, provided complications do not arise.

I am not familiar with details of the death of Ernie Davis, but similar stories are familiar to physicians. Those with acute leukemia frequently have complicating hemorages into the brain, stomach, or under the skin. A fatal stroke may occur at any time—often a blessing in disguise.

The imune mechanism of those with leukemia is defective, which means an infection may take over despite the best treatment with antibiotics. Anemia also is common and may become a problem. Transfusions are helpful, especially when dizziness, shortness of breath, weakness, and chest pain develop.

CYST ON FOREHEAD

J. F. S. writes: Three months ago a wen, half the size of a pea, appeared on my forehead. Will it disappear in time? I am 75 years old.

REPLY

It may get smaller but it rarely disappears spontaneously. A wen is not serious unless it becomes infected. You are not too old to have it removed and I suggest surgery for lesions that are unsightly or bothersome.

HAIRY MOLE

M. P. writes: How can a person tell if a mole has become cancerous? Does is mean anything serious if hairs start growing in a mole?

REPLY

Cancer is suspected when these lesions change in size or color. The hairs are of no significance. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on moles.

DEFECTIVE SPINE

Mrs. B. writes: What causes a child to be born with spina bifida?

REPLY

NICOTINE STAINING

J.J. writes: Does smoking make the throat yellow, as it does the fingers?

REPLY

RECURRENCES DECREASE

L. M. writes: Do children outgrow the tendency to develop attacks of rheumatic fever?

REPLY

The tendency never is outgrown but recurrences are less likely as the child matures. Approximately 40 per cent experience another bout within one year after the initial attack unless special precautions are taken.

TOMORROW: The stress-agitated bowel.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Russell Lyne's characterization of a literary snob: a know-it-all who has not only read in advance galleys, the very book you are reading, but takes pleasure in telling you the names of all the earlier and more obscure books by the same author, and why each was superior to the better-known one that has come to your attention.

A would-be novelist submitted a manuscript to his favorite publisher, attached a note thereto reading, "Please tell me as soon as possible if you think my brainchild is Knopfable." Three days later he received a note from the head of the firm himself, brief but to the point: "Kno."

Culled by Art Linkletter from the examination papers of selected kiddies:

A. No. They're peculiar to me.

2. Q. What did Julius Caesar write?

Religious Freedom Is Beginning In Spain, But Progress Is Very Slow

By Drew Pearson

MADRID—Because of the difficulty which Protestants have had in Spain, I went to see the head of the Spanish Reformed Church, Bishop Santos Molina.

My taxi driver, pointing to a sign in the front of the church, observed this was an English church, and I did not realize at the time the significance of his remark. Because it is forbidden for all other Protestant churches to designate on the outside of their buildings the fact that they are churches. The British Episcopal mission in Madrid is the sole exception, the pastor of that church being the spiritual adviser to the British Embassy.

A caretaker finally answered my ring at the big iron gate and escorted me upstairs through very modest living quarters to the small, cramped study of Bishop Santos. He proved to be a quiet-spoken man with clear blue eyes and strong clean-cut features, who said that recently the problem of Protestants in Madrid had improved.

"All of the Protestant churches in Madrid have now been permitted to reopen," Bishop Santos said. "We cannot open new churches without permission, and the government is reluctant to give permission.

"There are still some Protestant churches closed in other parts of Spain," he said, "but Foreign Minister Castiella is trying hard to improve our position. He is endeavoring to get a law adopted guaranteeing religious freedom."

I learned from the Bishop that there are ten Protestant churches in Madrid.

"The Jews have an easier time than the Protestants," said the Bishop, "because the Catholic Church is not afraid that people will be converted to Judaism. There is fear that we may win some converts.

The Church Budget

"The question of the Catholic Church in Spain," the Bishop continued, "Is one of economics. The government pays the priests and it also appropriates the money for church administration.

"Nobody knows just how much money is appropriated today. But here is the budget for 1929." The Bishop fished around in his littered desk and pulled out a very worn government decree which showed that in 1929 the Minister of Grace and Justice had a budget of 40 million pesetas for civil matters and 60 milion pesetas for church matters.

"Today the ecclesiastical budget is much, much greater, though it remains a secret. However, we do know that in 1952, 72 million pesetas were advanced for the Ecclesiastical Conference in Barcelona alone. And this," said the Bishop, "was at a time when Spain was starving."

I asked about church teaching in the public schools.

"The priests have a right to come into the public schools to inspect the religious worship," replied Bishop Santos. "Some Protestant fathers have protested Catholic services in the schools and have had their children exempted."

The Bishop took me through his church, a very modest building which bore a plaque showing it was the gift of Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Ireland, and "The People of Ireland and England on Dec. 1, 1892." With some pride the Bishop showed me his altar, pulpit, and vestments. The floors were worn, and outside in the courtyard the family wash was hanging on the line.

I told him that I had recently been in Rumania, a Communist country which discourages church worship but where the churches were crowded. In contrast, I had been in Greece where the government supports the Greek Orthodox Church, and the churches were empty.

"One church is like one company selling merchandise," said the Bishop. "If there's no competition the product deteriorates. There must be freedom of religious worship for all churches. The Greek government pays the priests in Greece and the Greek people see no difference between the government and the church. It is the same here in Spain. Out of a population of 30 million, all Catholic, there are only 3 to 4 million actually practicing Catholics."

Frank Church Discussion

Bishop Santos Molina, who is the chairman of the Defense Committee for Protestant Churches, said that the man who has done most to unpadlock the Protestant churches is Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella, who last month contributed a significant article to "America," official organ of the Jesuits. Thurston N. Davis, managing editor of "America," in introducing Castiella's article, made this comment:

"New forces are moving in Spain . . . . Spain seems to be cautiously trying on for size her own version of an apertura a sinestra. It isn't a wide opening to be sure; perhaps it would be more accurate to view it only as a slight crack in the door. But liberalizing forces are at work....

"Spain is trying to construct a legal framework within which she can allow her tiny minority of Protestants a full measure of freedom of conscience. This has not been an easy or a simple task.

"Those who find Sr. Castiella's article tentative, qualified, wary, should recall that Spaniards have had little or no experience of religious pluralims since 1492."

In the article that follows, the Foreign Minister, whom Bishop Santos gives credit for helping Protestant freedom, states quite frankly that the basic decision must be up to the Vatican. This points to a paradoxical conflict between the Spanish government and the Catholic Church. More and more the church has been opposing the Spanish government on political matters while the government has been opposing the church somewhat on ecclesiastical matters — a development which will be reported in an early column.

Personal Friendship And Political Rivalry

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There appeared last Saturday in the press and on TV throughout the country a photograph showing Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona chatting with President Kennedy after a White House ceremony honoring a retired Air Force general. The news dispatches said Mr. Kennedy, looking over the crowd, saw the Senator — who could be his Republican opponent next year for the Presidency — and, calling him by his first name, summoned him to his side to share the limelight.

The incident was no surprise to anyone who is familiar with Washington customs, but it probably was puzzling to too many people who seem to think that, because persons differ in politics, they can't be friends. Indeed, as Mr. Kennedy called out to "Barry," there was some laughter and one correspondent wrote that the President, "presumably aware of the political incongruity," hastened to say: "we are all friends."

It was an incident which emphasizes that, under the American system of government, political differences can be sharp, but most of the men who hold office or aspire to elected posts realize that personal feelings must always be secondary, if not repressed, and that what counts is the thoughtful presentation of one's side of a controversial question.

Again and again, not only in federal election contests but in state and local campaigns, men who have been intimate friends find themselves running for office on opposite sides. The public may have a hard time being convinced from some of the speeches that there is no deep-seated personal antagonism. But there are few instances where the loser of an election is not among the first to extend his congratulations to the winner.

It has always been the view of his writer that controversies should be reported and analyzed in the press, too, without regard to personal feelings, though it's hard sometimes to get readers to believe such an impersonal approach is possible.

The last ten men who have been President of the United States and whom this writer has known seemed to be likeable persons, but, when certain criticisms were written about every one of them, some readers took it for granted each time that personal antagonism was involved.

Thus, for example, letters come in nowadays which use the word "hate." It is stated that nobody could criticize a President without having some feeling of hate or dislike. Such letters are depressing because the American system of public debate and a free press apparently is not thoroughly understood or appreciated by the authors of such missives.

President Kennedy, for example, is a very likeable person. This writer considers him a man with a conscientious desire to serve the public. As a member of the House of Representatives and as a Senator, Mr. Kennedy became known in official circles, and reporters had a chance to talk with him and get acquainted.

If a poll were taken among the writers who criticize him, it might well be found that his most vehement critics never have had and do not have now any personal dislike for the President. He truly has an attractive personality, and so has his brother, the Attorney General.

But those who analyze the news feel a responsibility to the constituency they serve — particularly to readers who really want an evaluation of issues and events based on history, on honest judgment and on convictions formed over years of observation and awareness of the difference between sound and unsound public policies. To color the argument, however, with one's personal likes or dislikes is to ignore the main reason why public confidence is reposed in a free press.

A view expressed by a news writer or analyst may subsequently be proved wrong, but there's also a chance it may be proved right. If it is wrong, no harm is done because it will be disregarded by the persons in office who have the final responsibility for the action taken. But if the criticism happens to be right, it could serve as a deterrent if the issue arises again. These are matters that have nothing to do with likes or dislikes, with personal feelings or emotions. One can like President Kennedy very much and still write impersonally about policies that need revision. In fact, if there were no adverse criticism, there would be little chance to make revisions opportunely, and the public interest would not be served.

Senator Goldwater may be Mr. Kennedy's opponent next year, and it may be taken for granted the two men will emphatically disagree and earnestly criticize one another in the campaign. But — and let the portrait painters of America's "image" abroad take notice — the two political adversaries will remain friends.

Inside Washington

LEADERSHIP RISKS — At first glance, one would think that leadership of either party group in the Senate would be a political asset to the incumbent. However, the opposite has ofttimes proved to be the case.

A few years back, Sen. William Knowland of California gained a national reputation in his role as Senate Republican leader. His opposite number, Sen. Scott W. Lucas of Illinois was the much-quoted Democratic leader.

Knowland dropped into political oblivion when his long-range plan to seek the presidency via the California governor's chair was short circuited. Lucas was defeated in his bid for re-election to the Senate.

Of course, the late Alben Barkley disproved the rule. He served as Senate Democratic leader for many years during the Roosevelt and Truman eras and was far and away the most popular and well-known figure in his native State of Kentucky.

The present Senate majority leader is Mike Mansfield of Montana. And his Republican foes out there are trying to find a strong person to run against him when he is scheduled to seek re-election next year.

JUST CALL ME JOE — Rep. Joe Richard Pool, D.-Tex., is, like most politicians, quite concerned about people getting his name straight.

Pool has been understandably disturbed about the thousands of letters he gets addressed to Rep. Al Joe Pool. He couldn't figure out why his constituents called him Al.

There's a lot in a name, come voting time, so Rep. Pool set out to find out why his voters called him Al. He discovered that in the official lists of Members of Congress, the contraction of his designation of "At Large" appears before his name. Now he knows why he's called Al, but doesn't know what to do about it.

But in his replies to constituents' letters he does make it clear that he's Rep. Joe Pool, Democrat-at-Large, of Texas.

Search For Father

VENICE.

One of the big hits of the film festival here, one that is causing almost more talk than anything else, is the resurrection of a French comedian named Max Linder. His daughter, Maud Linder, estimates that not one in a hundred people here ever heard of him.

Linder made over 600 films in his career, which ran from 1906 to his suicide with his wife in 1925. They were very successful in their day and Linder's personality and style greatly influenced Charles Chaplin, who has acknowledged Linder as his master. In Chaplin's very earliest movies he used Linder's costume, the very opposite of a tramp's—top hat, spats, and walking stick.

Linder's personality, as revealed in a two-hour montage of some of his later work being shown here, will remind you very much of Chaplin and, curiously, of Douglas Fairbanks Sr., both of whom he preceeded. In the characterization he used in hundreds of films, he played the part of a very rich young man with a houseful of servants, a car, and a big wardrobe.

Like Chaplin and Fairbanks and, it sometimes seems, all that generation, he had tremendous physical agility and skill, jumping out of windows onto the backs of horses, dueling, falling downstairs. He was also a master of disguise, which Chaplin never was really, and in his innumerable flights from his comic enemies he'd suddenly become somebody else. With a hat, a couple of marbles in his cheeks, glasses, he'd become an old man, pouchy and stooped.

In one of the funniest sequences in the film, he plays two people, staging a fight behind a curtain to impress his girl. It was fresh, inventive, and full of the explosive energy that marked comedy of this era and this type. In another segment, he does the mirror bit—a servant behind a mirror that has been broken imitating his every move, an old bit but one that has never been done with more charm and impish grace.

As a comedian Linder casts himself more in the heroic mold than that of the little man who was the model for Chaplin, Buster Keaton, Harry Langdon, Harold Lloyd, and the others. In one of the best sequences, he's chased by the cops and takes refuge in a lions' cage where he promptly makes friends with a lionness, wrestles with her, and taunts the cops to come get him, which they are afraid to do. In the end he's caught by a monkey, which, his daughter says, is his way of showing what he thought of cops. They weren't smart enough to catch him, but a monkey was.

Linder made his films in Paris and, for three or four years, in Hollywood, where he became a friend of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. When Fairbanks did his picture, "The Three Musketeers," Linder did a parody on the film, using some of the sets from the Fairbanks picture.

In 1925, for reasons that can only be guessed at, Linder and his young wife joined in a suicide pact. Maud Linder thinks her father, who was 43 years old, was afraid of losing his young wife. Miss Linder was six months old at the time. Until she was 12 she didn't know she was Max Linder's daughter. When she found out, she was afraid to see his films, fearful she was the daughter of a low comedian.

One day she was walking down a street in Versailles and saw a sign, Max Linder, on an art theater. Impulsively, she went in and asked for a ticket. But it was a cinema club open only to members and she was turned away. Out on the sidewalk, she hesitated a moment, then went back in and cried: "But he was my father!"

After she saw her father's films, she said, "I was ashamed of being ashamed." Her life has been dedicated to winning some measure of recognition for her father. It's been a tremendous struggle to locate his films, to put them in condition to show, and to get the rights to show them. Linder was a complete film-maker. He wrote, directed, and acted in his films, and they are a complete expression of himself.

This kind of personal filmmaking went out years ago, but it's coming back strong. Today Jacques Tati, who wrote, directed, and acted in "Mr. Hulot's Holiday," is the same sort of filmmaker Linder was. But the really personal filmmakers of our time are not actors but directors like Federico Fellini and Ingmar Bergman, both of whose pictures are complete expressions of themselves, as Linder's were of himself.

Main Types Of Leukemia--Acute And Chronic

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A man from Alexandria wants a discussion on leukemia. He writes: "The recent death of Ernie Davis, nationally known football star from Syracuse, has beeen a great shock to many persons, especially those who have leukemia or who have a friend or relative with the disease.

"Most persons are unable to understand why no medical aid could have prolonged Davis' life, especially as he was gainfully employed the day before he died in a job requiring considerable physical strength."

Much of the perplexity about the illness of this man stems from the fact there are two main types of leukemia. He had the acute variety, which is replete with complications and fatal within a short time. It differs from the chronic type, which is more frequent and less violent. Most victims are older persons who live comfortably with the disease for years.

Before the advent of our modern anti-leukemia drugs, the majority with acute leukemia died within six to eight weeks after the disease was diagnosed. The acute variety favors children, and the younger the patient the more likely he is to respond to treatment. Several drugs are available to lower the elevated white cell count. The response, though temporary, prolongs life a year or more, provided complications do not arise.

I am not familiar with details of the death of Ernie Davis, but similar stories are familiar to physicians. Those with acute leukemia frequently have complicating hemorages into the brain, stomach, or under the skin. A fatal stroke may occur at any time—often a blessing in disguise.

The imune mechanism of those with leukemia is defective, which means an infection may take over despite the best treatment with antibiotics. Anemia also is common and may become a problem. Transfusions are helpful, especially when dizziness, shortness of breath, weakness, and chest pain develop.

CYST ON FOREHEAD

J. F. S. writes: Three months ago a wen, half the size of a pea, appeared on my forehead. Will it disappear in time? I am 75 years old.

REPLY

It may get smaller but it rarely disappears spontaneously. A wen is not serious unless it becomes infected. You are not too old to have it removed and I suggest surgery for lesions that are unsightly or bothersome.

HAIRY MOLE

M. P. writes: How can a person tell if a mole has become cancerous? Does is mean anything serious if hairs start growing in a mole?

REPLY

Cancer is suspected when these lesions change in size or color. The hairs are of no significance. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on moles.

DEFECTIVE SPINE

Mrs. B. writes: What causes a child to be born with spina bifida?

REPLY

NICOTINE STAINING

J.J. writes: Does smoking make the throat yellow, as it does the fingers?

REPLY

RECURRENCES DECREASE

L. M. writes: Do children outgrow the tendency to develop attacks of rheumatic fever?

REPLY

The tendency never is outgrown but recurrences are less likely as the child matures. Approximately 40 per cent experience another bout within one year after the initial attack unless special precautions are taken.

TOMORROW: The stress-agitated bowel.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Russell Lyne's characterization of a literary snob: a know-it-all who has not only read in advance galleys, the very book you are reading, but takes pleasure in telling you the names of all the earlier and more obscure books by the same author, and why each was superior to the better-known one that has come to your attention.

A would-be novelist submitted a manuscript to his favorite publisher, attached a note thereto reading, "Please tell me as soon as possible if you think my brainchild is Knopfable." Three days later he received a note from the head of the firm himself, brief but to the point: "Kno."

Culled by Art Linkletter from the examination papers of selected kiddies:

1. Q. Are kangaroos peculiar to Australia?
A. No. They're peculiar to me.

2. Q. What did Julius Caesar write?
A. Latin.
3. Q. Who was Hamlet?
A. Hamlet was a small pig made famous by Shakespeare.
4 Q. What is a boom town?
A. A town settled by Daniel Boom.

You're Telling Me

By William Ritt

Zadok Dumkopf says he knows an author who wrote a novel about space travel, but it proved a flop—even though it was out of this world.

One of life's disappointments is to have the lawn one mowed so diligently all summer now completely covered with tree leaves.

On reading that synthetic fabric for clothing has been made from corn shucks, the man at the next desk says corn must be our most versatile grain — now you can wear it as well as eat, drink, call names and mark bingo cards with it.

And what puzzles Grandpappy Jenkins is why it is called a "down payment" when it too often is so high.

Lonaconing Annexation Protested By Delegation

LONACONING—Two delegations of local residents attended Monday night's council meeting to protest the proposed annexation of an outlying section of the town and also possible changing of two streets to one-way traffic.

Gibson Foote was spokesman for a group with a petition containing 38 names of those who are protesting the proposed inclusion of Watercliffe Street and Florida Way as part of incorporated Lonaconing.

Mayor Dewey Burns pointed out the benefits would include street lights, police protection, improved roads and the right to vote and participate in town government.

Mrs. Jennie Bell, who operates a business place on Robbin Street, was spokesman for the other group of protestants who oppose Robbin and Jackson street being one-way.

The mayor and council decided to continue the present traffic pattern on the two streets.

The lower end of Jackson Street from Ternent's Store to the Hanekamp Street intersection will have a yellow lined curb allowing 15-minute parking. The present meters are to be removed where the yellow line is painted.

Benjamin Zarger, commissioner of lights and water gave a report on the progress being made by the Potomac Edison Company which is replacing 1,000 lumen lights with 2,500 lumen lights of which there are about 50 in the community.

Speeding on east Main Street was brought to the attention of the council and it was decided to ask state police to operate radar in that section of town.

Building permits were issued to Mrs. Mabel Jackson for a two-car garage at Park Place; Charles W. Duckworth, the enclosure of a porch on Douglas Avenue; Russell Jefferies, an addition to his home on Island Street; and William D. Wattenschaidt for the enclosure of a porch on Church Street.

Mrs. Hanson has announced that the second clinic of the month will be held September 25th instead of the 26th due to the Heart Seminar to be conducted in Cumberland for the district nurses.

Dinner Set Tuesday

FROSTBURG—The Past Chiefs Association of Calanthe Temple 3, Pythian Sisters, will hold its annual dinner on Tuesday at Moon's Restaurant, Cumberland. Members planning to attend are asked to call Cornelia Lancaster at OV 9-6229 no later than Saturday.

Country Club Election Held

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Victor Wonn, Cash Valley Road, La Vale and Dr. William B. O'Connor, Frostburg, were elected to the Board of Directors of the Maplehurst Country Club at its meeting this week, and will serve until the annual meeting in April 1964.

Mrs. Wonn retired recently as trust officer of the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland and with her husband, has been very active in Maplehurst affairs. Mr. Wonn is also a member of the board.

Dr. O'Connor has been practicing dentistry on East Main Street coming here from Keyser, W. Va., several years ago. He also has been active in the Men's Golf Association at Maplehurst and has served on the House and Ways and Means Committees in the past.

Ernest Bampton, who succeeds Thomas Stewart as chairman of the house committee, announced that a dance for members and guests will be held at the clubhouse Saturday. Entertainment will be provided.

Flower Show This Weekend At Frostburg

FROSTBURG — The Seventh annual Flower Show of the Frostburg-Georges Creek Branch of the AAUW will be open to the public on Saturday from 3-9 p.m. and Sunday from 2-9 p.m. at the Thomas G. Pullen School.

Mrs. John Coburn, chairman of the show, "A Portfolio of Interpretations" has been assisted by Mrs. J. Donald Conner, Mrs. Robert C. Hager, Mrs. Joseph Martirano, Mrs. Lowell M. Sowers, Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Stewart.

Arrangements and horticultural exhibits may be placed between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday. Containers will be furnished for the horticultural division.

Detention Home Plans Progress

KEYSER — Members of the Mineral County Court and other county officials met to consider further action on the request made by Judge David E. Cuppett Jr. that a juvenile detention home is needed.

Judge Cuppett began the meeting by outlining what had been recommended including suggestions made by Robert Bennett, Morgantown architect. He submitted plans for the proposed addition to the court house and the court seemed favorable to the project.

Following the discussion Prosecuting Attorney C. Reeves Taylor, who is legal advisor to the County Court, was instructed to set up a meeting with Bennett at which the same group of people would hear his plans and discuss the structural aspects. Attorney Taylor was also instructed to investigate the possibility of participating in the accellerated works program which Judge Cuppett had hoped could be done when he made his first appeal over a year ago.

In addition to members of the Court, Judge Cuppett, and Taylor, others present were Circuit Clerk James A. Dixon, County Clerk Fred Hamill, Sheriff Earl Kemp, and Selby Jacobs, a representative of the Kiwanis Club, which has expressed interest in the home.

Lonaconing Annexation Protested By Delegation

LONACONING—Two delegations of local residents attended Monday night's council meeting to protest the proposed annexation of an outlying section of the town and also possible changing of two streets to one-way traffic.

Gibson Foote was spokesman for a group with a petition containing 38 names of those who are protesting the proposed inclusion of Watercliffe Street and Florida Way as part of incorporated Lonaconing.

Mayor Dewey Burns pointed out the benefits would include street lights, police protection, improved roads and the right to vote and participate in town government.

Mrs. Jennie Bell, who operates a business place on Robbin Street, was spokesman for the other group of protestants who oppose Robbin and Jackson street being one-way.

The mayor and council decided to continue the present traffic pattern on the two streets.

The lower end of Jackson Street from Ternent's Store to the Hanekamp Street intersection will have a yellow lined curb allowing 15-minute parking. The present meters are to be removed where the yellow line is painted.

Benjamin Zarger, commissioner of lights and water gave a report on the progress being made by the Potomac Edison Company which is replacing 1,000 lumen lights with 2,500 lumen lights of which there are about 50 in the community.

Speeding on east Main Street was brought to the attention of the council and it was decided to ask state police to operate radar in that section of town.

Building permits were issued to Mrs. Mabel Jackson for a two-car garage at Park Place; Charles W. Duckworth, the enclosure of a porch on Douglas Avenue; Russell Jefferies, an addition to his home on Island Street; and William D. Wattenschaidt for the enclosure of a porch on Church Street.

Well Baby Clinic At Frostburg Today

FROSTBURG — The Well Baby Clinic sponsored by the Frostburg Lions Club will be held today from 9 to 10:30 a.m. in the health rooms of city hall with Dr. John B. Davis as examining physician. Margaret Hanson and Elizabeth Liller will be the public health nurses assisting.

Mrs. Hanson has announced that the second clinic of the month will be held September 25th instead of the 26th due to the Heart Seminar to be conducted in Cumberland for the district nurses.

Dinner Set Tuesday

FROSTBURG—The Past Chiefs Association of Calanthe Temple 3, Pythian Sisters, will hold its annual dinner on Tuesday at Moon's Restaurant, Cumberland. Members planning to attend are asked to call Cornelia Lancaster at OV 9-6229 no later than Saturday.

Country Club Election Held

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Victor Wonn, Cash Valley Road, La Vale and Dr. William B. O'Connor, Frostburg, were elected to the Board of Directors of the Maplehurst Country Club at its meeting this week, and will serve until the annual meeting in April 1964.

Mrs. Wonn retired recently as trust officer of the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland and with her husband, has been very active in Maplehurst affairs. Mr. Wonn is also a member of the board.

Dr. O'Connor has been practicing dentistry on East Main Street coming here from Keyser, W. Va., several years ago. He also has been active in the Men's Golf Association at Maplehurst and has served on the House and Ways and Means Committees in the past.

Ernest Bampton, who succeeds Thomas Stewart as chairman of the house committee, announced that a dance for members and guests will be held at the clubhouse Saturday. Entertainment will be provided.

Flower Show This Weekend At Frostburg

FROSTBURG — The Seventh annual Flower Show of the Frostburg-Georges Creek Branch of the AAUW will be open to the public on Saturday from 3-9 p.m. and Sunday from 2-9 p.m. at the Thomas G. Pullen School.

Mrs. John Coburn, chairman of the show, "A Portfolio of Interpretations" has been assisted by Mrs. J. Donald Conner, Mrs. Robert C. Hager, Mrs. Joseph Martirano, Mrs. Lowell M. Sowers, Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Stewart.

Arrangements and horticultural exhibits may be placed between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday. Containers will be furnished for the horticultural division.

Detention Home Plans Progress

KEYSER — Members of the Mineral County Court and other county officials met to consider further action on the request made by Judge David E. Cuppett Jr. that a juvenile detention home is needed.

Judge Cuppett began the meeting by outlining what had been recommended including suggestions made by Robert Bennett, Morgantown architect. He submitted plans for the proposed addition to the court house and the court seemed favorable to the project.

Following the discussion Prosecuting Attorney C. Reeves Taylor, who is legal advisor to the County Court, was instructed to set up a meeting with Bennett at which the same group of people would hear his plans and discuss the structural aspects. Attorney Taylor was also instructed to investigate the possibility of participating in the accellerated works program which Judge Cuppett had hoped could be done when he made his first appeal over a year ago.

In addition to members of the Court, Judge Cuppett, and Taylor, others present were Circuit Clerk James A. Dixon, County Clerk Fred Hamill, Sheriff Earl Kemp, and Selby Jacobs, a representative of the Kiwanis Club, which has expressed interest in the home.

New York Stock Market Surges To New Peak

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market flexed its muscles again Wednesday and broke through to a record high despite heavy selling pressure which cut back a number of gains in the final part of the session.

After only thirty minutes of trading the high set last week faded into Wall Street history in heavy trading which made many brokers recall the early market hours of May 28, 1961 when prices sank sharply in what still is remembered as "blue Monday."

The high speed tickers ran minutes behind floor transactions for long stretches and there were only a few lulls in activity.

Brokers cited the House Ways & Means Committee's approval of the $11 billion tax cut and the upswing in the rail averages Tuesday as factors which changed those who had been sellers on Friday and Monday into buyers.

Dow-Jones industrials finished up 2.91 to 740.34. At 3 P.M. the blue chip indicator showed a gain of 5.27. Rails also were hit by selling pressure and finished up only 0.67 to 172.76.

Standard & Poor's more inclusive 500 stock index picked up 0.21 to finish at a record high of 73.20.

Volume rose to 6,670,000 shares compared with the 5,310,000 shares which changed hands Tuesday. Of the 1,326 issues traded, 564 advanced, 96 to new 1963 highs and 506 declined, 12 to new lows.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans surged upward Wednesday on persistent buying spurred by a smaller than expected government crop estimate.

September corn ended strong, wheat and rye mostly firm and other grain futures lower on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was off ⅛ to up ¾; corn off ¼ to up 1⅜; oats off ¼ to ⅝; rye off ⅛ to up ⅝; and soybeans up 2¼ to 3⅜.

The government prediction for a 728,208,000 bushel soybean crop, compared with a recent private estimate of 740,000,000 bushels, sparked demand that pushed early prices up as much as 3 cents a bushel. The Aug. 1 official guess was 723,178,000 bushels, but many traders anticipated a large increase due to generally favorable growing conditions.

Profit taking and selling by commisson houses and locals followed the initial bout of general buying and short covering, but reports that rains may delay harvesting pushed prices back up. Most deliveries scored gains of more than 3 cents.

Wheat rallied to firmer levels following word that the United Arab Republic bought 3,400,000 bushels of soft red wheat and that Pakistan took 672,000 bushels of hard wheat.

Record 1963 production of corn estimated by the government attracted selling to new crop deliveries while export buying pushed September corn up more than a cent.

Rye traded at new highs for the season on export prospects, but slipped in late trade. Winnipeg rye was also sharply higher. Oats ended weak in quiet trade.

Everywhere Penguins

Marble, wood, iron, tin and glass penguins in assorted colors and sizes roost on dressers and tables and stand on the floor in D. Gonzalo Jose Gallegos' seventh floor hotel room on Biscayne Boulevard.

"Every time I pass a curio shop, I browse for new penguins," said Dr. Gallegos, who came to Miami from his native Costa Rica 30 years ago.

State's Fair Practices

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Bert Combs has issued a governor's code of fair practices spelling out the state's policy prohibiting racial discrimination in various facets of government.

Besides the fields in which state officials are directly involved, the code also includes anti - bias provisions for contractors doing business with the state.

Only Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania have adopted similar codes.

Replace The Bing?

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Three new cherry varieties were released by the University of California for commercial propagation.

Grown in San Joaquin County test plots for 10 years, they were given numbers instead of names until they are approved.

Farm adviser Fred Charles said U. C.. 26 - 15, an excellent dark red cherry, may replace Bing. U. C. 23A-3a is a beautiful cream colored Royal Ann and U. C. 30-9a is considered a black Tartarian replacement.

Exciting Dormitory

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Six Defiance College men get their quarters free and are paid a dollar a night besides. They're serving as night firemen and living in the city's fire stations.

But it also means an extra class. The six must attend a regular Monday evening class for all firemen.

One of the six, John Fetter of Napoleon, Ohio, says the job is as exciting as playing football or going to a prom "especially when you tumble out of bed to go to a fire and it's below zero."

Into A Jam

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Leonard McCallum flicked a cigarette butt from the window of his car as he drove along here. The wind caught the cigarette and whisked it up his sleeve.

In his frantic maneuvers, McCallum lost control of the car. It ran onto the sidewalk and jammed between a lamppost and the parapet of a bridge. He escaped with minor injuries.

New York Stock Market Surges To New Peak

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market flexed its muscles again Wednesday and broke through to a record high despite heavy selling pressure which cut back a number of gains in the final part of the session.

After only thirty minutes of trading the high set last week faded into Wall Street history in heavy trading which made many brokers recall the early market hours of May 28, 1961 when prices sank sharply in what still is remembered as "blue Monday."

The high speed tickers ran minutes behind floor transactions for long stretches and there were only a few lulls in activity.

Brokers cited the House Ways & Means Committee's approval of the $11 billion tax cut and the upswing in the rail averages Tuesday as factors which changed those who had been sellers on Friday and Monday into buyers.

Dow-Jones industrials finished up 2.91 to 740.34. At 3 P.M. the blue chip indicator showed a gain of 5.27. Rails also were hit by selling pressure and finished up only 0.67 to 172.76.

Standard & Poor's more inclusive 500 stock index picked up 0.21 to finish at a record high of 73.20.

Volume rose to 6,670,000 shares compared with the 5,310,000 shares which changed hands Tuesday. Of the 1,326 issues traded, 564 advanced, 96 to new 1963 highs and 506 declined, 12 to new lows.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans surged upward Wednesday on persistent buying spurred by a smaller than expected government crop estimate.

September corn ended strong, wheat and rye mostly firm and other grain futures lower on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was off ⅛ to up ¾; corn off ¼ to up 1⅜; oats off ¼ to ⅝; rye off ⅛ to up ⅝; and soybeans up 2¼ to 3⅜.

The government prediction for a 728,208,000 bushel soybean crop, compared with a recent private estimate of 740,000,000 bushels, sparked demand that pushed early prices up as much as 3 cents a bushel. The Aug. 1 official guess was 723,178,000 bushels, but many traders anticipated a large increase due to generally favorable growing conditions.

Profit taking and selling by commisson houses and locals followed the initial bout of general buying and short covering, but reports that rains may delay harvesting pushed prices back up. Most deliveries scored gains of more than 3 cents.

Wheat rallied to firmer levels following word that the United Arab Republic bought 3,400,000 bushels of soft red wheat and that Pakistan took 672,000 bushels of hard wheat.

Record 1963 production of corn estimated by the government attracted selling to new crop deliveries while export buying pushed September corn up more than a cent.

Rye traded at new highs for the season on export prospects, but slipped in late trade. Winnipeg rye was also sharply higher. Oats ended weak in quiet trade.

Everywhere Penguins

Marble, wood, iron, tin and glass penguins in assorted colors and sizes roost on dressers and tables and stand on the floor in D. Gonzalo Jose Gallegos' seventh floor hotel room on Biscayne Boulevard.

"Every time I pass a curio shop, I browse for new penguins," said Dr. Gallegos, who came to Miami from his native Costa Rica 30 years ago.

State's Fair Practices

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Bert Combs has issued a governor's code of fair practices spelling out the state's policy prohibiting racial discrimination in various facets of government.

Besides the fields in which state officials are directly involved, the code also includes anti - bias provisions for contractors doing business with the state.

Only Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania have adopted similar codes.

Replace The Bing?

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Three new cherry varieties were released by the University of California for commercial propagation.

Grown in San Joaquin County test plots for 10 years, they were given numbers instead of names until they are approved.

Farm adviser Fred Charles said U. C. 26 - 15, an excellent dark red cherry, may replace Bing. U. C. 23A-3a is a beautiful cream colored Royal Ann and U. C. 30-9a is considered a black Tartarian replacement.

Exciting Dormitory

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Six Defiance College men get their quarters free and are paid a dollar a night besides. They're serving as night firemen and living in the city's fire stations.

But it also means an extra class. The six must attend a regular Monday evening class for all firemen.

One of the six, John Fetter of Napoleon, Ohio, says the job is as exciting as playing football or going to a prom "especially when you tumble out of bed to go to a fire and it's below zero."

Into A Jam

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Leonard McCallum flicked a cigarette butt from the window of his car as he drove along here. The wind caught the cigarette and whisked it up his sleeve.

In his frantic maneuvers, McCallum lost control of the car. It ran onto the sidewalk and jammed between a lamppost and the parapet of a bridge. He escaped with minor injuries.

September Plentiful Foods

Getting back into the work-a-day, school-a-day groove makes September a stimulating month, a time when more formal, heartier meals once again take their accustomed place in the family menu. With early harvest time abundance in evidence, the homemaker will find a good assortment of foods in plentiful supply to lend interest and variety to the month's meals.

Continuing in bountiful supply again next month will be turkeys, with the consumer sizes — from 6 to 16 pounds — in greatest evidence. Eminently attractive and nutritious, the king of poultry makes a sumptuous yet economical repast. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, which monthly lists the foods in most plentiful supply at Northeast markets, turkey marketings in September will be as high as last year and prices will be equally attractive.

It'll be harvest time for late summer vegetables in the weeks to come and nearby market gardens as well as distant commercial shipping areas will be sending their produce to Northeast markets. In generous supply will be tomatoes, sweet corn, lima beans, snap beans, cabbage, onions and beets, as well as many other vegetables of the season.

Put canned tuna fish on your shopping list, too, another plentiful as well as a highly nutritious main dish food, that will be easy on the family food budget in September. Stocks of tuna remain large and, in addition, a good run of Albacore and Bluefin tuna — major kinds to go into the canneries — is also expected this season.

A remarkably fine grape crop is in prospect, with the pale green, delicious Thompson Seedless in greatest abundance. The 1963 California grape crop, the nation's chief source of supply, has been forecast at a record 3-⅓ million tons. Another popular variety in heavy supply in September will be Flame Tokays, although this year's production promises to be somewhat below average.

Miserly Chicken

While chicken is generous with nutrients, including high-quality protein, it is happily miserly (for the dieter) in calories and fat. The low-calorie bird has a lower fat content than any other meat; a three-ounce portion, broiled, without bone, yields only nine grams of fat, according to the National Broiler Council. And the fat it does have contains more unsaturated fatty acids than do other meat fats: 64% of the fatty acids in chicken are unsaturated.

Add a teaspoon of anchovy paste to a three-ounce package of cream cheese and spread over bread cut-outs, sprinkle with minced parsley and serve with before-dinner drinks.

Green Tomato Pie Is Pennsylvania Dutch Dish

GREEN TOMATO PIE — Met with less often these days than it was in the '20s, this Pennsylvania Dutch dessert is worth reviving.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Go into the garden, cooks, and pick those green tomatoes.

No garden? Look around at markets and you'll find some.

Use the green tomatoes in a pie—an old-time specialty, much neglected of late.

This dessert was probably originated by Pennsylvania-Dutch cooks, and our guess is it stemmed from their liking for sweet-and-sour combinations. Some early recipes for the pie call for vinegar and molasses. In this modern rule, for delicate flavor, lemon juice replaces vinegar, corn syrup is used instead of molasses.

GREEN TOMATO PIE

3 large or 5 medium green tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar

Fall Apples
Jam Cookie Bars Milk

Jam Cookie Bars

1½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg
¾ cup very thick jam
¼ cup milk

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and cloves. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg thoroughly, then milk. Gradually stir in sifted dry ingredients until blended. Turn about half the batter into a buttered pan (7 by 11 by 1½ inches); spread evenly. Carefully spread small spoonfuls of the jam over the batter with a small spatula. Spread remaining half of batter over the jam, using the same technique. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 25 minutes. Cool on wire rack; cut into bars and remove with spatula.

Make sure there's no fat on your egg beater or your bowl when you are making a meringue. That "fat" includes egg yolk!

Chicken And Shortcake Highlight Choice Menu

For a tasty pace breaker try the unbeatable combination of succulent fried chicken and homemade strawberry banana shortcake. Watch your family's eyes light up as they spot that tender crispy crust and feather-light dessert favorite.

With self-rising flour on your chicken, crust results are light and puffy, tender and delicious!

Succulent Chicken

½ cup enriched self-rising flour
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 2-2½ lb. frying chicken cut up

Place flour and seasonings in a medium size paper bag. Put one or two pieces of chicken in at a time and close top of bag.

Shake up and down until chicken is well coated. Place coated chicken in hot fat in a large skillet. Brown well on all sides, using a medium temperature.

You may wish to cover skillet for a brief time to thoroughly cook interior of chicken. Uncover and cook for 5 minutes to recrisp chicken.

Strawberry Banana Shortcake

2 cups sifted enriched self-rising flour
2 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup shortening
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk

Strawberry banana filling

Sift together the flour and sugar. Cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Combine egg and milk. Add liquid to dry ingredients, stirring until flour is moistened. Turn into a greased 8" round pan. Bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit 15-20 minutes. Cut horizontally into two layers while still warm.

Fill and top with Strawberry Banana Filling.

Strawberry Banana Filling

2½ cups sliced, sweetened fresh strawberries or two 10 oz. packages frozen strawberries.
2 cups sliced bananas (3 or 4 bananas).

Broiled Club Steaks

Broiled steaks are an ideal meat to serve guests. Everyone loves steak and it takes little time to prepare. Club steaks are a fine choice because you can plan one steak per person and broil to suit each guest's taste for doneness, the American Meat Institute reminds us. Some steak lovers insist that salt and pepper are the only seasonings necessary for broiled meat. Others like a variation and enjoy steak brushed with lemon butter or topped with browned mushrooms, for instance.

Green Tomatoe

1¼ teaspoons nutmeg
⅓ cup light corn syrup
Grated rind of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Special Pastry
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Wash and cut out stems from tomatoes; quarter and cut into ¼-inch slices—there should be 1 quart. Sprinkle with salt and reserve. In a small saucepan stir lemon rind and lemon juice. Stir together the sugar, corn starch and nutmeg; stir in corn syrup, lemon rind and lemon juice. Stirring constantly, cook over moderate heat until mixture comes to a boil; remove from heat. Roll out half the pastry on prepared pastry cloth to ⅛-inch thickness. Fold over opposite sides to meet in center; fold ends over the same way. Reroll to form a circle about 12 inches and ⅛-inch thick. Fit loosely into a 9-inch pie plate. Drain tomatoes in a colander; arrange in pastry shell. Spoon partly cooled cornstarch mixture evenly over tomatoes; dot with butter. Roll out, fold and reroll remaining pastry as directed for bottom crust. Place on top of tomato filling. Cut slits to allow steam to escape during baking. Trim, seal and flute edge. Bake in a hot (425 degrees) oven until tomatoes are tender—40 to 45 minutes. Place pie plate on rack to cool just enough to allow cornstarch mixture to set slightly. Serve at once, preferably with cheese.

Note: Use tomatoes that are just beginning to ripen — they'll be slightly pink.

SPECIAL PASTRY

2 ½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup margerine
¼ cup ice water

In a mixing bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. With a pastry blender cut in margarine until particles are fine. With a fork, stir in water evenly over flour mixture. Press into a ball; if not all crumbs adhere, turn out on waxed paper and with palms placed on outside of paper, press into a ball. Divide in half; press each half flat; cover tightly and chill for 1 hour.

Two Kinds Of Fudge In One Bite

TWO - LAYER FUDGE — A delightful combination of chocolate and vanilla.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

IF YOU'RE INTERESTED in reviving the art of homemade candy making, we recommend this recipe to you.

In this rule, a basic fudge is made into a new two-layer, two-flavor affair. When we served the candy at our house, it was enthusiastically acclaimed.

TWO-LAYER FUDGE

1 recipe Chocolate Fudge
1 recipe Blonde Fudge

Prepare Chocolate and Blonde Fudge by recipe below. Pour Chocolate layer into pan. Prepare Blonde Fudge and pour on top. Chocolate Fudge layer may be cold; or Blonde Layer can be poured on before chocolate layer is cold, if two people are making batches. Cool at room temperature. Cut into squares. Makes about 4 pounds.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

3 cups sugar
¾ cup milk
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons light or dark corn syrup
2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or peacans

Combine sugar, milk, butter, corn syrup and chocolate in heavy 3-quart saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Then cook, stirring occasionally, until temperature reaches 238 degrees on a candy thermometer, or until 1 teaspoon of mixture dropped into 1 cup of very cold water forms a soft ball that flattens on removal from water. Remove fudge mixture from heat. Add vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees). Beat until fudge begins to thicken and loses its gloss. Stir in nuts. Quickly pour into greased 8 by 2-inch pan. When cold, cut into squares. Makes about 2 pounds.

Blonde Fudge: Follow recipe for Chocolate Fudge, omitting chocolate and increasing corn syrup to 3 tablespoons and vanilla to 2 teaspoons.

Children Enjoy Sherbet Floats

The youngsters at your house will have fun preparing this tasty fruit sherbet float.

In your own kitchen, you can create the atmosphere of an old-fashioned soda fountain. Provide the few simple ingredients and let the children be "soda jerks." Concocting fancy ice cream and sherbet combinations can be a child's version of paradise.

Carbonated beverages were originally sold only in drugstores and ice cream parlors. A trip to the soda fountain was considered a special treat. Now sparkling beverages such as lemon-lime carbonated beverage are readily available and you can enjoy making floats at home.

Treat your family to this new version of the old-fashioned soda. It's distinctive because lemon-lime carbonated beverage is used as the base. The natural oils of lemon and like found in lemon-lime carbonated beverage give a special flavor accent to ice cream and sherbets.

This refreshing creation calls for scoops of lemon, lime and orange sherbets. When combined in a tall glass, they have the colorful appearance of a rainbow. Candy-striped straws and a red strawberry add the finishing touch.

Sunshine Fruit Float

Place one scoop each of lemon, lime and orange sherbets in a tall glass. Tilt glass slightly and slowly pour in one bottle (7 ounces) chilled demon-lime carbonated beverage.

Garnish with a fresh strawberry.

Turnover Trick

Baking turnovers? You can usually cut 12 to 14 five or six inch circles out of a batch of pastry that's enough for a two-crust, eight or nine-inch pie.

Modern Cooks Like The Folksy Arts

HOMEMADE TOMATO SAUCE — Old fashioned goodness recaptured with ease, aided by such modern innovations as an easy-to-use food mill and large - mouth jars.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

OUR COOK'S hat is off to those young women who are reviving an old-fashioned American art.

In many communities throughout the country, youthful homemakers are daring to try home preserving. They say the wonderful aromas during the making, the delicious results on eating, and the pleasant feeling of creating bring cozy satisfaction.

In one neighborhood near New York City, improvised preserving kettles, food mills and freezer-and-canning jars abound in kitchens! Popular here is a homemade tomato sauce, delightfully smooth, to put in the freezer or on storage shelves. So pleasant to have on hand for friendly gifts and to use over pasta, seafood, hamburgers and other grilled meats, fish and eggs.

A friend of ours sent us a taste of her tomato sauce along with the following recipe. Because she has three young children this all-purpose blend is mildly flavored. When you're ready to use it, you may make it hotter with tabasco and spicier with extra herbs.

HOMEMADE SMOOTH TOMATO SAUCE

8 pounds tomatoes (20 medium to large, 32 small to medium)
3 cups coarsely chopped sweet red or green pepper (about 4)
3 cups coarsely chopped onion (2 large).
2 cups coarsely chopped celery
4 cloves garlic, each cut in half
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon peppercorns
½ teaspoon crushed red pepper
2 tablespoons dried parsley flakes (or 12 fresh sprigs, minced)
½ teaspoon each dry crushed oregano, thyme and basil

Use ripe but firm tomatoes without cracks or decayed spots. Wash and rinse tomatoes; quarter and cut out stems and white core. Place in kettle over medium heat. Add remaining ingredients and cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally, about 1 hour or until vegetables are soft. Spoon a small amount of the tomato mixture into a food mill placed over a bowl; strain by turning handle of mill. Discard pulp left in mill. Continue until all the mixture has been strained. As bowl fills, pour juice into another container. Rinse kettle and pour all of the juice into it. Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally until thick, or until reduced to 1 quart sauce — about 1 hour and 15 minutes. Taste and add additional salt, if desired. Freeze or can in ½ pint jars.

To freeze tomato sauce: Chill tomato sauce. Wash and rinse four one-half pint freezer jars. Wash and rinse lids and pour boiling water over them. Fill containers with sauce leaving ½-inch head space. Wipe tops and screw-threads of jars with a clean damp cloth. Put dome lids on jars; screw bands tight. Place jars upright in freezer until sauce is frozen, then arrange in any desired position.

To can tomato sauce: Prepare a boiling water bath. An ordinary covered kettle with a rack in the bottom may be used. The rack should hold the jars about ½ inch above the bottom of the canner and the kettle should be deep enough for water to cover the jars at least one inch over the top without boiling over. Fill the canner about half full of water and heat but do not boil water over low heat. Wash and rinse well in hot water four one-half pint dome lid canning jars and tops. Pour the hot tomato sauce into the jars leaving ¼-inch head space. Wipe tops and screw-threads of jars with a clean damp cloth. Put dome lids on jars and screw bands tight without forcing. Put jars into hot (not boiling) water on rack in kettle. Add boiling water to cover tops of jars. Cover kettle and when water comes to a fast rolling boil, start counting the time. Process 30 minutes. Remove jars from bath and place two or three inches apart on several thicknesses of cloth; let cool about 12 hours. Remove bands. If center of lid is down, or stays down when pressed, jar is properly sealed. Store jars in a cool dry place.

COOK'S TOUR

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Roast pig and ritual" are typical outdoor party fare in Puerto Rico, but the island's cuisine also reflects sophisticated continental influences, says Senora Carmen Aboy Valldejuli.

Barbecued pig with garlic sauce is popular for cookouts, added the senora, a leading food authority in the U. S. commonwealth. But there's little outdoor cooking as on the mainland. In an interview, she described Caribbean food, and Puerto Rican in particular, as a cosmopolitan malange adapted to local ingredients and tastes.

Unoffjcial Food Consultant

The charming, gray-haired grandmother, wife of engineer Louis Valldejuli, is unofficial food consultant for government visitors and the author of two cookbooks. "Cocina Criolla," in Spanish, and used as a textbook in Puerto Rican public schools, and "The Art of Caribbean Cookery," in English.

Senora Valldejuli said typical Puerto Rican foods include adaptations of American applie pie. Christmas egg nog and Thanksgiving turkey. Fresh apples stewed with sugar and butter replace raw, sugared apples in the pie.

Egg nog is made with coconut milk and rum instead of plain milk and bourbon. The turkey is washed with lime juice and water, seasoned highly, and filled with meat-fruit stuffing instead of bread dressing.

Lots Of Cheese

Elsewhere in the Caribbean, Dutch islands cook with lots of cheese, French islands with wine, and all the Antilles with corn, a reflection of their Indian heritage.

Beans and rice also are staple in all island homes and her own household uses three pounds of rice a day for seven persons, she added.

Plantains are another favorite non-sweet bananas that never are eaten raw. But they are fried, roasted, baked, boiled and made into fried chips.

Typical Caribbean food may be sweet by mainland standards — poultry often is cooked in sweet wine instead of dry table wine, and sugar is added to some soups and vegetables. But West Indians like it that way, suggested her husband, "because sugar is our main product."

Less important economically, but equally delicious, are jams, jellies, preserves, sauces and canned juices made from tropical fruit such as guava, mangoe papaya, and pineapple. At a Puerto Rican Thanksgiving dinner guava jelly substitutes for cranberries, said the cooking expert, and fresh fruit is a typical lunch dessert.

Corn Treat

Torta de maiz tierno, or fresh corn tart, is a typical Puerto Rican dish from "The Art of Caribbean Cookery." Mix ½ pound of butter, melted, with 1½ cups of fresh corn grated from cobs, 1 teaspoon of slat and ¾ cup of sugar. Break 3 eggs with a ford without beating. Gradually add 1¼ cups of milk and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Pour into an 8 by 8 by 3-inch greased ovenproof glass dish. Bake 1 hour in a preheated 375-degree oven.

Beef Birds Different

There's a surprise in these beef birds . . . a favorite vegetable, carrots. The round steak is dredged in flour, wrapped around carrots strips, and browned.

Place potatoes and onions in the same baking dish or skillet, and cook the whole meal at one time. Mushrooms create a tasty topping.

Beef Birds

1½ pounds round steak, cut ⅛ inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup lard or drippings
4 to 5 small carrots, cut in strips
4 peeled potatoes
4 small onions
1 can mushroom soup

Cut steak into pieces about 3 x 5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour.

Place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick.

Brown rolls slowly on all sides in lard or drippings. Add potatoes and onion to steak and pour mushroom soup over all.

Cover tightly and simmer in a slow oven (300° Fahrenheit) or on top of range 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Makes 4 servings.

Baking old-fashioned jelly roll? Count on using one cup of tart red jelly as filling for a jelly-roll sponge cake baked in the standard jelly-roll pan.

KITCHEN NOTES

By MARIAN KEMP, Home Economist

NO-FUSS MEALS are a wonderful way to have more hours for all the extra summer activities. However, the meals should continue to be well-balanced. Foods that are simple, appetizing, satisfying and easy to prepare offer a real challenge.

Have Quick Macaroni or one of its variations, a green salad and fruit for dessert or perhaps Beef Stroganoff served with Poppy-seed Noodles will whet your appetite.

QUICK MACARONI PARMESAN

1 package (8 oz.) shell macaroni
¼ cup (⅛ stick) butter, softened
½ cup instant nonfat dry milk
⅛ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions. Drain. Add butter and toss until butter is melted and coats macaroni. Return to low heat. Blend nonfat dry milk with water and salt. Pour over macaroni; add Cheddar cheese. Cover and let heat until cheese melts. Turn into heated serving dish; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Good with broiled chops and tossed salad.

VARIATIONS:

1. Quick Macaroni Parmesan may be used to stuff parboiled green peppers. Bake in 350°F. oven for 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve around broiled ham slices or chops.
2. Spaghetti or noodles may be used instead of macaroni.

BEEF STROGANOFF—POPPY-SEED NOODLES

4 minute steaks, cut in strips
2 tablespoons hot fat
1 onion, sliced
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 cup dairy sour cream
4 oz. can mushrooms
2 tablespoons catsup
2 teaspoons Worcestershire

Brown strips of steak in hot fat. Add onion and cook 5 minutes. Combine soup, sour cream, mushrooms, catsup and Worcestershire; add to meat; heat. For Poppy-seed Noodles, add a tablespoon of butter or margarine and a tablespoon of poppy seed to drained cooked noodles. Toss together.

BUSY DAY CASSEROLE

1½ lbs. ground beef
2 tablespoons shortening
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon flour
10½ oz. can condensed onion soup
10 oz. pkg. frozen peas, cooked
4 cups cooked noodles

Cook ground beef in shortening. Pour off drippings. Add salt, flour and onion soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. In a greased 2-quart casserole, make layers of half the noodles, meat mixture and peas. Repeat, arranging top layer of peas in a circle on meat mixture. Cover and bake in a slow oven, 300°F. for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Vegetable Dish Prepared Ahead

Here's a vegetable dish you can prepare ahead of time and have ready for the oven. Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine in a saucepan. Blend in ¼ cup all-purpose flour.

Allow to cook several minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly stir in 2 cups milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens.

Stir in ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 2 cups grated American cheese and ¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce. Cook slowly, stirring, until the cheese melts.

Layer 3 cups of cooked rice, 2 cups cook green lima beans and the cheese sauce in a well greased 2-quart oven dish. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs.

Dot with butter and bake in a pre-heated 350 degree Fahrenheit oven for 40 minutes.

Sour cream will double in volume when beaten; it will take about five minutes of beating at high speed of an electric mixer when 1½ cups of cultured sour cream are used.

Tasty Way To Extend Plain Hamburger

If you are caught in a trap with only hamburger in the refrigerator when unexpected dinner guests arrive, extend the hamburger and make it something special by mixing it with a small can of deviled ham and ¼ cup of low calorie blue cheese dressing per pound.

Low in calories because the dressing has only 6 per teaspoonful, but too delicious to be relegated to diet use only.

Pineapple Sundae Goes Into Orbit

Place one slice of canned pineapple in bottom of sundae dish, add a scoop of vanilla ice cream and top with a second pineapple slice.

Snappy Ham Sandwich Good For Any Meal

Sandwiches for lunch or simple suppers seem to be a part of autumn. Their ease of preparation and appetite appeal always make them winners.

With this Snappy Ham Sandwich, the entree gets an elegant treatment. Cream cheese, chopped onion and olives are first spread on toasted English muffins. Deviled ham comes next and the open-faced treat is topped with a tomato slice.

Deviled ham and all the other canned meats may be used for summer meal convenience.

Snappy Ham Sandwich

2 cans (2¼ ounces each) delived ham large English muffins, cut in half
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup chopped stuffed olives
4 thin tomato slices
Salad dressing or mayonnaise

Toast cut side of each muffin in broiler. Combine cream cheese, onion and olives. Spread mixture on toasted side of each muffin half. Spread deviled ham over cream cheese mixture. Top each sandwich with a tomato slice. Spread tomato slice lightly with salad dressing or mayonnaise. Place under broiler until heated through. 4 sandwiches.

Easy Way To Blanch Pistachio Nuts

To blanch pistachio nuts, cover them with cold water and boil them for about five minutes.

Drain off the boiling water and cover the nuts with very cold water, then drain again and you'll probably be able to rub off the skins.

Sweet-Sour Sauce Used Two Ways

This Sweet 'n' Sour Sauce plays a dual role on your menu plans. It may be served as a sauce for vegetables or as a dressing for salad greens.

Sweet 'n' Sour Sauce

¼ cup corn oil margarine
¼ cup light corn syrup
⅓ cup vinegar
Dash pepper
Dash paprika

Melt margarine in small saucepan. Stir in remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil.

Use as sauce for cooked vegetables or as a dressing for wilted lettuce.

Makes ¾ cup sauce.

Want a flavorful crust for a deep-dish meat pie? Add half a cup of grated cheddar cheese to half a package of pastry mix and make up according to package directions. Roll out and fit over top of dish.

Tangy Frank Kabobs Add To Picnic Fun

Hot dogs roasted over the fire are perhaps the all time favorite picnic fare. For your next outing, why not plan to eat your franks in a different fashion? Grill them as kabobs. If you place them on small skewers, they'll be just the right size to fit into a hot dog bun.

The franks are skewered with pickles and small cooked onions. They're dressed up in a spicy sauce that you can easily mix in your kitchen beforehand. At the picnic spot everyone can join in the merrymaking by assembling and grilling his own kabobs.

Tangy Frankfurter Kabobs

8 frankfurters (1 pound)
2 small cooked onions, cut in quarters
8 small sweet pickles
⅓ cup catchup
Dash hot sauce, if desired
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon brown sugar
8 six-inch metal skewers

Cut each frankfurter into 3 pieces, onion pieces and pickles alternately on skewers. Mix together catchup, hot sauce, vinegar and brown sugar. Brush kabobs with sauce. Place about 3 inches from the heat and broil 2 to 3 minutes on each side. 8 kabobs.

Creamed Celery Soup Tops Clauiflower

Dilute a can of condensed cream of celery soup with about half a cup of milk; pour over cooked cauliflowerets (from a medium head) and a couple of cups of diced cooked ham.

Sprinkle with butter bread crumbs and heat and brown in a moderate oven for about half an hour.

Youths Held In Fatality

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Charleston police have certified three juveniles to the Juvenile Court in connection with the death Wednesday of Michael Murphy, 15, who collapsed and died during a gym class.

A preliminary autopsy report showed the youth may have died from abdominal shock. Officials said Murphy reportedly was undergoing some type of initiation when he collapsed.

He was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Berkeley County Emergency Area

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron's office announced Wednesday that Berkeley and Jefferson Counties have been designated emergency areas by the U. S. Agriculture Department and are eligible for assistance under the federal livestock feed program. The office also said the Department had authorized farmers in Mineral County to permit grazing and harvesting of hay on acreage in the soil bank. The action was taken because of drought conditions.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

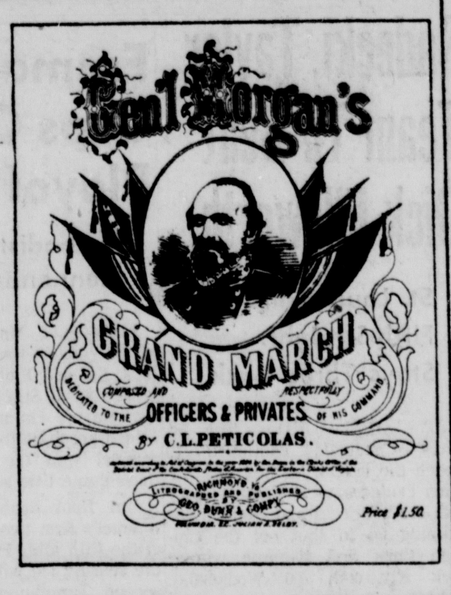
No. 302 The first of May, 1863, Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan and his truly dashing Kentuckians were formally voted the thanks of the Confederate Congress for "varied, heroic and invaluable services in Tennessee and Kentucky immediately preceding the battles before Murfreesboro . . ."

Morgan had performed those services in conjunction with a thrust through Union lines led by his one superior as an always resourceful cavalryman, Nathan Bedford Forrest. The stroke cut the Nashville-Chattanooga railroad, captured Thomas Crittenden's entire Union brigade, and a million dollars' worth of much needed military stores, and forced two divisions to be diverted from the Union advance southward to protect the railroad.

Before the Federals were driven out of Murfreesboro, a local belle, Mattie Ready, had made herself famous for her fearless praise among the unwelcome visitors for the thorn in their side, Morgan, whom she had never met.

When a Yankee sought her attention and asked her name, she responded, "I'm Mattie Ready now, but by the Grace of God one day I hope to call myself Mrs. John Hunt Morgan!"

The story was related to the bachelor, 37-year-old Morgan, and he made a point of looking her up in Murfreesboro. Finding her as pretty as she was patriotically Rebel, he began a whirlwind courtship. They were married, with Maj. Gen. Leonidas Polk (a bishop of the Episcopal Church) as the officiating clergyman, and President Jefferson Davis among the guests.



The romantic marriage and Morgan's further feats of arms inspired a song [the cover of which is shown here] that became a Southern favorite. The subsequent feats included a raid into Ohio in which Morgan penetrated farther north than Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, and Morgan's escape from the State Penitentiary at Columbus, after his capture near New Lisbon, Ohio, by vastly stronger forces. (More here later about Morgan.)

could outshoot any soldiers of that day and they would be peculiarly effective behind breastworks or individual protection of any sort.

The American general's strategy was for the militiamen to acquire, if possible, a gradual acquaintance with the enemy while making every effort to impede his progress up to the principal line of entrenchments on Hampstead Hill, where it was planned that the main battle would take place.

The British Army seemed paralyzed by the General's death. Eventually the outnumbered Americans were driven back but this had been expected. The British had lost their commander and several hundred men, far greater losses than the Americans sustained.

British Hampered

Throughout the following day, the British toiled forward but they were hampered by rain, heat and fallen trees with which the Americans impeded their progress.

Col Arthur Brooke, General Ross' successor, fearing disastrous defeat and possible capture of the entire force, ordered a retreat which began at 1:30 a. m. September 14. The invaders were soon re-embarked aboard their ships and so ended the attack.

Throughout the 25-hour bombardment of the defenses of Baltimore and within the semicircle of the British squadron there was an involuntary visitor, Francis Scott Key. He had gone aboard an American truce boat to obtain the release of a noncombatant friend.

Key Inspired

When the early dawn of September 14 arrived, the long bombardment ceased and the American flag was seen floating from the battlements of Fort McHenry. This inspired the attorney from Frederick to begin the verses of "The Star Spangled Banner." Some of the lines were written on the back of a letter while the poet was still on the cartel ship. Additional verses were composed on the way to land and he wrote the whole in final form that night.

About the only observance locally of Defenders Day is the fact that most state and county employes will have the day off from work. Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, will have a special Defenders Day program Saturday at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

If you have a momentary pause today, give a thought to the rifleman who disrupted the British Army near Baltimore by killing their commanding officer with one shot.

Youths Held In Fatality

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Charleston police have certified three juveniles to the Juvenile Court in connection with the death Wednesday of Michael Murphy, 15, who collapsed and died during a gym class.

A preliminary autopsy report showed the youth may have died from abdominal shock. Officials said Murphy reportedly was undergoing some type of initiation when he collapsed.

He was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Berkeley County Emergency Area

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron's office announced Wednesday that Berkeley and Jefferson Counties have been designated emergency areas by the U. S. Agriculture Department and are eligible for assistance under the federal livestock feed program. The office also said the Department had authorized farmers in Mineral County to permit grazing and harvesting of hay on acreage in the soil bank. The action was taken because of drought conditions.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 302 The first of May, 1863, Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan and his truly dashing Kentuckians were formally voted the thanks of the Confederate Congress for "varied, heroic and invaluable services in Tennessee and Kentucky immediately preceding the battles before Murfreesboro . . ."

Morgan had performed those services in conjunction with a thrust through Union lines led by his one superior as an always resourceful cavalryman, Nathan Bedford Forrest. The stroke cut the Nashville-Chattanooga railroad, captured Thomas Crittenden's entire Union brigade, and a million dollars' worth of much needed military stores, and forced two divisions to be diverted from the Union advance southward to protect the railroad.

Before the Federals were driven out of Murfreesboro, a local belle, Mattie Ready, had made herself famous for her fearless praise among the unwelcome visitors for the thorn in their side, Morgan, whom she had never met.

When a Yankee sought her attention and asked her name, she responded, "I'm Mattie Ready now, but by the Grace of God one day I hope to call myself Mrs. John Hunt Morgan!"

The story was related to the bachelor, 37-year-old Morgan, and he made a point of looking her up in Murfreesboro. Finding her as pretty as she was patriotically Rebel, he began a whirlwind courtship. They were married, with Maj. Gen. Leonidas Polk (a bishop of the Episcopal Church) as the officiating clergyman, and President Jefferson Davis among the guests.

The romantic marriage and Morgan's further feats of arms inspired a song [the cover of which is shown here] that became a Southern favorite. The subsequent feats included a raid into Ohio in which Morgan penetrated farther north than Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, and Morgan's escape from the State Penitentiary at Columbus, after his capture near New Lisbon, Ohio, by vastly stronger forces. (More here later about Morgan.)

could outshoot any soldiers of that day and they would be peculiarly effective behind breastworks or individual protection of any sort.

The American general's strategy was for the militiamen to acquire, if possible, a gradual acquaintance with the enemy while making every effort to impede his progress up to the principal line of entrenchments on Hampstead Hill, where it was planned that the main battle would take place.

The British Army seemed paralyzed by the General's death. Eventually the outnumbered Americans were driven back but this had been expected. The British had lost their commander and several hundred men, far greater losses than the Americans sustained.

British Hampered

Throughout the following day, the British toiled forward but they were hampered by rain, heat and fallen trees with which the Americans impeded their progress.

Col Arthur Brooke, General Ross' successor, fearing disastrous defeat and possible capture of the entire force, ordered a retreat which began at 1:30 a. m. September 14. The invaders were soon re-embarked aboard their ships and so ended the attack.

Throughout the 25-hour bombardment of the defenses of Baltimore and within the semicircle of the British squadron there was an involuntary visitor, Francis Scott Key. He had gone aboard an American truce boat to obtain the release of a noncombatant friend.

Key Inspired

When the early dawn of September 14 arrived, the long bombardment ceased and the American flag was seen floating from the battlements of Fort McHenry. This inspired the attorney from Frederick to begin the verses of "The Star Spangled Banner." Some of the lines were written on the back of a letter while the poet was still on the cartel ship. Additional verses were composed on the way to land and he wrote the whole in final form that night.

About the only observance locally of Defenders Day is the fact that most state and county employes will have the day off from work. Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, will have a special Defenders Day program Saturday at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

If you have a momentary pause today, give a thought to the rifleman who disrupted the British Army near Baltimore by killing their commanding officer with one shot.

Dodgers Trim Pittsburgh, 9-4; Cardinals Blank Cubs, 4-0

Maury Wills Gets Four Hits And Steals Base

Richert Relieves Drysdale In 4th, Posts 4th Victory

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, paced by Maury Wills' hitting and the stout relief pitching of Pete Richert and Ron Perranoski beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-4 Wednesday night to mathematically eliminate the Bucs from the National League pennant race.

Richert, who relieved starter Don Drysdale in the fourth inning, pitched three hit ball for four innings to raise his record to 4-1. Perranoski hurled the final two frames.

Wills paced one run rallies by the Dodgers in the first and third innings when he singled and stole second. The Dodgers broke a 2-2 tie in the fourth with a three-run burst and added three runs in the fifth and one in the sixth. Wills had four hits in five at bats.

The big Dodger innings were highlighted by a two-run single by Wills in the third and Willie Davis' scoring from second on a wild pitch in the fifth.

Richert yielded a two-run homer to Smoky Burgess in the sixth.

Bob Veale (2-2) took the loss for the Pirates.

Los Angeles	101 331 000—	9 13 1
Pittsburgh	101 002 000—	4 11 1

Drysdale, Richert (4), Perranoski (8) and Roseboro. Veale, Sisk (4), Francis (5), Butters (6) Schwall (8) and Burgess. Winner-Richert (4-1). Loser-Veale (2-2).

Barrelville, Rothe Score Tourney Wins

Barrelville's County League pennant winners defeated Casey A. A., 6-2, and Rothe Heating of the Rocking Chair League breezed to a 12-1 victory over Grant Post American Legion, of Petersburg, in last night's Western Maryland Softball Tournament action at Penn Avenue Field.

Quarter-finals in the 16-team event wind up today with another doubleheader at Penn Avenue. Corriganville (County League) takes on the ABL Has-Beens at 6:15 p.m., and Sponaugle's Towing Service tackles VFW, regular season champs in the Rocking Chair League, at 7:30.

Bill Kenney, who racked up 25 regular season victories for Barrelville this year, stopped the Casey crew on five hits yesterday and registered seven strikeouts.

Barrelville got seven hits and was helped by five Casey errors. Fay Often and Leroy Morris had two hits apiece for Barrelville, while Norm Geatz tripled for the losers.

A pair of homers by Jim Miller and one by Johnny Horwath paced Rothe's ten-hit attack. Don Harden came through with a pair of hits for the Heaters.

Nile Shuck and Al Sheetz combined to hurl a three-hitter at the West Virginians. Grant Post's only safeties were singles by Bob Thompson, Kenny Redman and Estel Sites.

The linescores:

FIRST GAME:

Casey A. A.	001 100 0—	2 5 5
Barrelville	200 112 x—	6 7 2

Don Decker and Bob Russell. Bill Kenney and Leroy Morris.

SECOND GAME:

Rookie's Homer Beats Phils, 4-2

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —Rookie Jim Wynn's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie and climaxed a Houston comeback as Dick Farrell hurled a four-hitter in the Colts' 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night.

Wynn's third homer of the season into the upper deck of the left field stands brought home Pete Runnels who had singled. The two runs off Phil starter Cal McLish followed two earlier runs in the seventh when the Colts rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie the score. Three singles and a sacrifice fly produced the tying runs.

Farrell, ex-Phillies' righthander, picked up his 12th victory, his major league high. He fanned nine and would have pitched a shutout except for faulty fielding by his mates.

Phila	101 000 000 —	2 4 0

Farrell (12-13) and Bateman. McLish, Klippstein (8), and Baldschun (9) and Dalrymple. Loser-McLish (13-11). HR-Wynn (3).

Senators Win, 6-5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dick Phillips clouted his 10th home run as leadoff batter in the 10th inning to give the Washington Senators a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night.

10 innings

Detroit	000 131 000 0—	5 7 3
Washington	001 004 000 1—	6 9 2

Twilight Series Resumes Today

The long-delayed playoff series for the championship of the Twilight Baseball League resumes today at Midland, where the Old Exports will meet Keyser in the third game of the best-of-five set.

Keyser won the first game, 7-5, then took a forfeit victory over Midland in the second contest.

The fourth game of the series, if necessary, will be played tomorrow with the site to be determined by the flip of a coin.

Mets Extend Win Streak, Top Giants, 4-2

Jackson Cops 11th On Seven-Hit Job

NEW YORK (UPI) —The unpredictable New York Mets, playing their best ball of the season when it is nearly over, won their fourth straight by beating the San Francisco Giants, 4-2, Wednesday on Alvin Jackson's seven-hit pitching.

Jackson allowed a hit in every inning except the seventh and ninth, and even yielded Orlando Cepeda's 30th homer in the eighth, but still managed to gain his 11th victory after the Mets staked him to an early lead.

The Mets rapped starter Jack Sanford (14-13) and three San Francisco relievers for 13 hits, including three apiece by Ron Hunt and Tim Harkness.

Casey Stengel's crew scored two runs in the first inning on three singles, a passed ball, a walk and a forceout, and increased their lead to 4-0 in the second when Harkness singled with the bases full.

Jackson blanked the Giants until the sixth when he was the victim of an unearned run. Two errors on the same play by third baseman Pumpsie Green accounted for the tally. Willie Mays singled and came around when Green threw wildly past second base after first fumbling Felipe Alou's grounder.

Opening Grid Game "Breathers" Passing Out Of College Picture

Present Day Fans Want Top Football All Season Long

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old-fashioned soft touch "warm up" foe for opening day is just about dead in college football.

The 1963 season opens with a televised super-attraction in Florida vs. Georgia Tech this Saturday and wheels into action the following weekend with some showdowns worthy of the critical days of November.

Only a few scattered colleges still go in for the old "breather" or practice game to start things off. Today's customers generally are too sophisticated to pay good money at the box-office for dress rehearsals and, the high cost of football being what it is, most schools prefer to pursue the dollar by plunging right in against major competition.

The East, mostly quiet until Sept. 28, has one big one — Boston College at Syracuse. Syracuse is destined to fight it out for the sectional championship.

The Midwest, also generally quiet until the 28th, comes up with a major feature in Northwestern at Missouri. Northwestern, led by quarterback Tom Myers, is one of the big teams expected to be a factor in the weekly national ratings.

In the South, Navy's Eastern title aspirants play a rugged opener at West Virginia, Alabama goes to Georgia, Texas A&M to Louisiana State and South Caroline to Duke.

In the Southwest, it's Clemson at Oklahoma, Kansas at Texas Christian. Oklahoma figures to be a factor in the "top 10" and Clemson is a bowl hopeful out of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In the Far West, Penn State plays at Oregon, Pittsburgh at UCLA and Washington at the Air Force Academy.

On Sept. 28, the Midwest comes up with hot items like Nebraska at Minnesota, Wisconsin at Notre Dame, Texas A& Mat Ohio State, California at Illinois, and Southern Methodist at Michigan as the Big 10 giants get into full-scale action. Also that weekend, Purdue travels to Miami for a look at Miami's nifty quarterback, George Mira.

There are a few set-ups, of course, among the openers on the Sept. 20-21 weekend.

Probably the worst mismatch would be Wisconsin's choice of an opening foe on Sept. 21 — Western Michigan. The Badgers, No. 2 in the nation last year, also opened against weak opposition in 1962 and whomped New Mexico State 69-13. Western Michigan had a 5-4 record last season.

But generally, the accent is on home schedules with box-office lures right from opening day through the traditional closers.

It takes a lot of loot to field a big-time college football team. There are coaches to pay, scholarships to deliver, uniforms to buy, travel costs to pay and, in some cases, heavy obligations to carry on mortgages and maintenances of athletic plants.

Furthermore, football frequently pays the freight for minor sports. That's why minor foes are disappearing from football.

Harris Ousted, Beman Survives In Amateur Golf

Wednesday's Play Marked By Upsets

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Labron Harris was dethroned as the United States Amateur golf king in a series of black Wednesday upsets that also swept Billy Joe Patton and Bob Cochran to the soggy sidelines.

After two rounds over the rugged hills of the Wakonda Club course, softened by 1½ inches of rain during the night, only Deane Beman, the 25-year-old internationalist, two-time champion Charlie Coe, and a pair of West Virginians, Bill Campbell and Ed Tutwiler, remain to uphold the old-timers in the drive for the crown that Harris, 21, was forced to give up.

Harris, finding the damp greens of the par 36-36—72 course too much to fathom, was spilled in the morning round by Walter Stahl, a 28-year-old machinery salesman from Cleveland, 2 and 1. It also was Stahl who dislodged Cochran, a former Walker Cupper from St. Louis, in the afternoon, 6 and 5.

Black Wednesdays are a tradition in the U.S. Amateur, where single 18-hole rounds are played on Mondays and Tuesdays but two such matches are booked for Wednesdays and Thursdays. The semifinals on Fridays and Saturday's finals are over 36 holes.

Beman, who won this title in 1960, recovered his putting touch for his twin killings. He bounced the veteran Chuck Kocsis of Detroit, 2 up, before lunch and then sank a 22-footer on the final green of the afternoon expedition to eliminate Jim Gabrielsen of the University of Georgia, 1 up.

Coe, Oklahoma oilman who reigned in 1949 and 1958, had a romp in the morning round while beating Rives McBee of Denton, Tex., 7 and 5 but his afternoon joust with Don Allen of Rochester, N.Y., was closer, 2 and 1.

Campbell's two victims were Ray Palmer of Southgate, Mich., 6 and 5, and Ed Greenwood of North Texas State, 4 and 3, after the collegian stopped Billy Joe Patton, 4 and 2, in the morning.

Sadecki, Taylor Team To Beat Dick Ellsworth

St. Louis Wins Fifth Straight, Stays Three Back

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals continued to match the league leading Los Angeles Dodgers victory for victory with Ray Sadecki and Ron Taylor teaming up to shut out the Chicago Cubs and 20-game winner Dick Ellsworth 4-0 Wednesday night.

It was the Cards' third straight shutout over the Cubs and fifth straight win and left them still three games behind the Dodgers. The streaking Redbirds have won 14 of their last 15.

Taylor, appearing in his 36th game as a reliever, bailed Sadecki out of trouble with two out and two on in the sixth. Although Sadecki gave up only four hits in his stint, walks kept him in trouble. The victory was Sadecki's ninth against eight losses.

The Cards had the Cub ace on the ropes several times but could score only in the fourth and eighth. In the fourth St. Louis loaded the bases on consecutive singles by Dick Groat, Bill White, and Ken Boyer. Groat scored on Stan Musial's sacrifice fly and White raced home on an infield out.

The final two runs came in the eighth on a two-run homer by Mike Shannon, his first major league round-tripper.

Packers Get Norton

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers Wednesday acquired defensive halfback Jerry Norton, a 10-year veteran, from the Dallas Cowboys for a future draft choice.

Norton, 33, led the National Football League in punting and pass interceptions in 1960.

Emmanuel Cops Church Playoff Title

Methodists Beat Mennonites, 6-2

Emmanuel Methodist, scoring all its runs in the final three innings, downed Pinto Mennonite 6-2 yesterday at Stitcher Field to win the playoff championship of the Inter-Church Softball League. Emmanuel won the opener of the three-game title series, 3-1.

Jim Root doubled home Emmanuel's first two runs in the top of the fifth after Pinto had broken the scoring ice with a tally in the second. Emmanuel picked up another pair in the sixth and two more in the seventh on John Saville's triple.

Babe Crabtree toiled the distance for the winners, allowing only four hits and striking out six. Loser Phil Dayton gave up seven safeties and ten walks, several of them costly.

Root tagged a pair of two-baggers, and Jim Malone collected two singles for Emmanuel. Pinto's hits, all singles, were shared by Arlie Dolly, Gary Umstot, Jake Marker and Dayton.

Emmanuel and Pinto finished as co-champions of the regular season with identical 26-4 records. They will stage a one-game playoff in the near future to decide the pennant.

Maury Wills Gets Four Hits And Steals Base

Richert Relieves Drysdale In 4th, Posts 4th Victory

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, paced by Maury Wills' hitting and the stout relief pitching of Pete Richert and Ron Perranoski beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-4 Wednesday night to mathematically eliminate the Bucs from the National League pennant race.

Richert, who relieved starter Don Drysdale in the fourth inning, pitched three hit ball for four innings to raise his record to 4-1. Perranoski hurled the final two frames.

Wills paced one run rallies by the Dodgers in the first and third innings when he singled and stole second. The Dodgers broke a 2-2 tie in the fourth with a three-run burst and added three runs in the fifth and one in the sixth. Wills had four hits in five at bats.

The big Dodger innings were highlighted by a two-run single by Wills in the third and Willie Davis' scoring from second on a wild pitch in the fifth.

Richert yielded a two-run homer to Smoky Burgess in the sixth.

Bob Veale (2-2) took the loss for the Pirates.

Barrelville, Rothe Score Tourney Wins

Barrelville's County League pennant winners defeated Casey A. A., 6-2, and Rothe Heating of the Rocking Chair League breezed to a 12-1 victory over Grant Post American Legion, of Petersburg, in last night's Western Maryland Softball Tournament action at Penn Avenue Field.

Quarter-finals in the 16-team event wind up today with another doubleheader at Penn Avenue. Corriganville (County League) takes on the ABL Has-Beens at 6:15 p.m., and Sponaugle's Towing Service tackles VFW, regular season champs in the Rocking Chair League, at 7:30.

Bill Kenney, who racked up 25 regular season victories for Barrelville this year, stopped the Casey crew on five hits yesterday and registered seven strikeouts.

Barrelville got seven hits and was helped by five Casey errors. Fay Often and Leroy Morris had two hits apiece for Barrelville, while Norm Geatz tripled for the losers.

A pair of homers by Jim Miller and one by Johnny Horwath paced Rothe's ten-hit attack. Don Harden came through with a pair of hits for the Heaters.

Nile Shuck and Al Sheetz combined to hurl a three-hitter at the West Virginians. Grant Post's only safeties were singles by Bob Thompson, Kenny Redman and Estel Sites.

Rookie's Homer Beats Phils, 4-2

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —Rookie Jim Wynn's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie and climaxed a Houston comeback as Dick Farrell hurled a four-hitter in the Colts' 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night.

Wynn's third homer of the season into the upper deck of the left field stands brought home Pete Runnels who had singled. The two runs off Phil starter Cal McLish followed two earlier runs in the seventh when the Colts rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie the score. Three singles and a sacrifice fly produced the tying runs.

Farrell, ex-Phillies' righthander, picked up his 12th victory, his major league high. He fanned nine and would have pitched a shutout except for faulty fielding by his mates.

Twilight Series Resumes Today

The long-delayed playoff series for the championship of the Twilight Baseball League resumes today at Midland, where the Old Exports will meet Keyser in the third game of the best-of-five set.

Keyser won the first game, 7-5, then took a forfeit victory over Midland in the second contest.

Mets Extend Win Streak, Top Giants, 4-2

Jackson Cops 11th On Seven-Hit Job

NEW YORK (UPI) —The unpredictable New York Mets, playing their best ball of the season when it is nearly over, won their fourth straight by beating the San Francisco Giants, 4-2, Wednesday on Alvin Jackson's seven-hit pitching.

Jackson allowed a hit in every inning except the seventh and ninth, and even yielded Orlando Cepeda's 30th homer in the eighth, but still managed to gain his 11th victory after the Mets staked him to an early lead.

The Mets rapped starter Jack Sanford (14-13) and three San Francisco relievers for 13 hits, including three apiece by Ron Hunt and Tim Harkness.

Casey Stengel's crew scored two runs in the first inning on three singles, a passed ball, a walk and a forceout, and increased their lead to 4-0 in the second when Harkness singled with the bases full.

Jackson blanked the Giants until the sixth when he was the victim of an unearned run. Two errors on the same play by third baseman Pumpsie Green accounted for the tally. Willie Mays singled and came around when Green threw wildly past second base after first fumbling Felipe Alou's grounder.

Opening Grid Game "Breathers" Passing Out Of College Picture

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

The 1963 season opens with a televised super-attraction in Florida vs. Georgia Tech this Saturday and wheels into action the following weekend with some showdowns worthy of the critical days of November.

Only a few scattered colleges still go in for the old "breather" or practice game to start things off. Today's customers generally are too sophisticated to pay good money at the box-office for dress rehearsals and, the high cost of football being what it is, most schools prefer to pursue the dollar by plunging right in against major competition.

The East, mostly quiet until Sept. 28, has one big one — Boston College at Syracuse. Syracuse is destined to fight it out for the sectional championship.

The Midwest, also generally quiet until the 28th, comes up with a major feature in Northwestern at Missouri. Northwestern, led by quarterback Tom Myers, is one of the big teams expected to be a factor in the weekly national ratings.

In the South, Navy's Eastern title aspirants play a rugged opener at West Virginia, Alabama goes to Georgia, Texas A&M to Louisiana State and South Caroline to Duke.

In the Southwest, it's Clemson at Oklahoma, Kansas at Texas Christian. Oklahoma figures to be a factor in the "top 10" and Clemson is a bowl hopeful out of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

On Sept. 28, the Midwest comes up with hot items like Nebraska at Minnesota, Wisconsin at Notre Dame, Texas A& Mat Ohio State, California at Illinois, and Southern Methodist at Michigan as the Big 10 giants get into full-scale action. Also that weekend, Purdue travels to Miami for a look at Miami's nifty quarterback, George Mira.

There are a few set-ups, of course, among the openers on the Sept. 20-21 weekend.

Probably the worst mismatch would be Wisconsin's choice of an opening foe on Sept. 21 — Western Michigan. The Badgers, No. 2 in the nation last year, also opened against weak opposition in 1962 and whomped New Mexico State 69-13. Western Michigan had a 5-4 record last season.

It takes a lot of loot to field a big-time college football team. There are coaches to pay, scholarships to deliver, uniforms to buy, travel costs to pay and, in some cases, heavy obligations to carry on mortgages and maintenances of athletic plants.

Harris Ousted, Beman Survives In Amateur Golf

Wednesday's Play Marked By Upsets

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Labron Harris was dethroned as the United States Amateur golf king in a series of black Wednesday upsets that also swept Billy Joe Patton and Bob Cochran to the soggy sidelines.

After two rounds over the rugged hills of the Wakonda Club course, softened by 1½ inches of rain during the night, only Deane Beman, the 25-year-old internationalist, two-time champion Charlie Coe, and a pair of West Virginians, Bill Campbell and Ed Tutwiler, remain to uphold the old-timers in the drive for the crown that Harris, 21, was forced to give up.

Harris, finding the damp greens of the par 36-36—72 course too much to fathom, was spilled in the morning round by Walter Stahl, a 28-year-old machinery salesman from Cleveland, 2 and 1. It also was Stahl who dislodged Cochran, a former Walker Cupper from St. Louis, in the afternoon, 6 and 5.

Black Wednesdays are a tradition in the U.S. Amateur, where single 18-hole rounds are played on Mondays and Tuesdays but two such matches are booked for Wednesdays and Thursdays. The semifinals on Fridays and Saturday's finals are over 36 holes.

Beman, who won this title in 1960, recovered his putting touch for his twin killings. He bounced the veteran Chuck Kocsis of Detroit, 2 up, before lunch and then sank a 22-footer on the final green of the afternoon expedition to eliminate Jim Gabrielsen of the University of Georgia, 1 up.

Coe, Oklahoma oilman who reigned in 1949 and 1958, had a romp in the morning round while beating Rives McBee of Denton, Tex., 7 and 5 but his afternoon joust with Don Allen of Rochester, N.Y., was closer, 2 and 1.

Campbell's two victims were Ray Palmer of Southgate, Mich., 6 and 5, and Ed Greenwood of North Texas State, 4 and 3, after the collegian stopped Billy Joe Patton, 4 and 2, in the morning.

Sadecki, Taylor Team To Beat Dick Ellsworth

St. Louis Wins Fifth Straight, Stays Three Back

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals continued to match the league leading Los Angeles Dodgers victory for victory with Ray Sadecki and Ron Taylor teaming up to shut out the Chicago Cubs and 20-game winner Dick Ellsworth 4-0 Wednesday night.

It was the Cards' third straight shutout over the Cubs and fifth straight win and left them still three games behind the Dodgers. The streaking Redbirds have won 14 of their last 15.

Taylor, appearing in his 36th game as a reliever, bailed Sadecki out of trouble with two out and two on in the sixth. Although Sadecki gave up only four hits in his stint, walks kept him in trouble. The victory was Sadecki's ninth against eight losses.

The Cards had the Cub ace on the ropes several times but could score only in the fourth and eighth. In the fourth St. Louis loaded the bases on consecutive singles by Dick Groat, Bill White, and Ken Boyer. Groat scored on Stan Musial's sacrifice fly and White raced home on an infield out.

The final two runs came in the eighth on a two-run homer by Mike Shannon, his first major league round-tripper.

Packers Get Norton

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers Wednesday acquired defensive halfback Jerry Norton, a 10-year veteran, from the Dallas Cowboys for a future draft choice.

Norton, 33, led the National Football League in punting and pass interceptions in 1960.

Emmanuel Cops Church Playoff Title

Methodists Beat Mennonites, 6-2

Emmanuel Methodist, scoring all its runs in the final three innings, downed Pinto Mennonite 6-2 yesterday at Stitcher Field to win the playoff championship of the Inter-Church Softball League. Emmanuel won the opener of the three-game title series, 3-1.

Jim Root doubled home Emmanuel's first two runs in the top of the fifth after Pinto had broken the scoring ice with a tally in the second. Emmanuel picked up another pair in the sixth and two more in the seventh on John Saville's triple.

Babe Crabtree toiled the distance for the winners, allowing only four hits and striking out six. Loser Phil Dayton gave up seven safeties and ten walks, several of them costly.

Root tagged a pair of two-baggers, and Jim Malone collected two singles for Emmanuel. Pinto's hits, all singles, were shared by Arlie Dolly, Gary Umstot, Jake Marker and Dayton.

Emmanuel and Pinto finished as co-champions of the regular season with identical 26-4 records. They will stage a one-game playoff in the near future to decide the pennant.

The linescore:

Emmanuel Methodist	000 022 2—	6 7 1
Pinto Mennonite	010 000 1—	2 4 3

Babe Crabtree and Bill Whiteman. Phil Dayton and Bud Livengood.

Mantle Sparks Yanks Over KC

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mickey Mantle hit a home run, double and single and drove in four runs, and Whitey Ford recorded his 22nd victory, as the New York Yankees defeated the Kansas City Athletics 8-2 Wednesday night.

Mantle lashed a three-run homer in the first, doubled in the third and singled home a run in the fifth. He was called out on strikes in the seventh when he made his final appearance.

New York	300 020 012—	8 13 1

Free test of your furnace can reveal the savings you can expect.

SHELL oil heating engineers have perfected a remarkable new invention called the Shell Burner-Pak. It saves you money by getting more heat from less oil. It produces a clean, hot flame and helps quiet noisy burners.

- The new Shell Burner-Pak has cut oil consumption from 9 to 39 percent in home after home. Chances are it can pay for itself in its first season.

Free Heating Efficiency Analysis

How much can the new Shell Burner-Pak save you? Our free Heating Efficiency Analysis can show you in just 15 minutes. No obligation, of course. The chart shows you the range of savings the Burner-Pak can deliver.

The new Shell Burner-Pak costs you only —and that price includes complete installation charge. No extras. No hidden costs.

Nicklaus Heads Seattle Field

Open Darkhorse Is Rod Funseth

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) —The youngster really doesn't need the money but Jack Nicklaus is here to make a run for the top rize in the Greater Seattle Open golf tournament anyway.

First place will pay $5,400 which is mere pocket change compared with what Nicklaus has earned so far, including the $50,000 World Series of Golf last weekend. The total purse here is $35,000.

A real darkhorse, Rod Funseth, Spokane, gave notice earlier in the week that he could do some real surprising. Funseth shot a practice round of 63 on the Inglewood Golf course, two strokes better than the official course record.

Maryland Jaycees Buy 9,000 Tickets For Bullets' Game

The Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce has purchased 9,000 seats to the Baltimore Bullets National Basketball Association game against the San Francisco Warriors and Wilt Chamberlain, Saturday, Oct. 19th.

Jaycee President William E. Brannon of Catonsville and Bullets General Manager Paul Hoffman announced that three thousand members of the 60 Jaycee chapters in the state will sell tickets to the game.

The project, which will culminate the Jaycee's "Physical Fitness Week," is the first of its kind in the state.

Proceeds from the event will be distributed to local Jaycee chapters throughout the state for Community level projects.

Favored Ragusa Romps In St. Leger

DONCASTER, England (UPI)—Odds-on favorite Ragusa romped to a six-length victory in the St. Leger Stakes Wednesday and his owner turned down a $1.4 million offer for the horse from a U.S. syndicate.

Ragusa was easing up as he crossed the finish line in the St. Leger, the last of the five classic races of the British turf season. As the hottest St. Leger favorite in years, Ragusa paid 2 to 5 in the betting.

The huge offer for Ragusa was made before the race, on condition that he win. Shipping tycoon Jimmy Mullion, who bought Ragusa as a yearling, turned it down.

Nicklaus Heads Seattle Field

Open Darkhorse Is Rod Funseth

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) —The youngster really doesn't need the money but Jack Nicklaus is here to make a run for the top rize in the Greater Seattle Open golf tournament anyway.

Nicklaus, the second leading money winner in professional golf so far this year, leads a field of 140 pros into the field Thursday.

First place will pay $5,400 which is mere pocket change compared with what Nicklaus has earned so far, including the $50,000 World Series of Golf last weekend. The total purse here is $35,000.

The field includes 52 of Nicklaus' companions on the tour, including Tommy Jacobs, who won the Utah Open last weekend.

But Nicklaus must be rated as the overwhelming favorite. Not only is he defending champion, but he's always had good luck here.

A real darkhorse, Rod Funseth, Spokane, gave notice earlier in the week that he could do some real surprising. Funseth shot a practice round of 63 on the Inglewood Golf course, two strokes better than the official course record.

Maryland Jaycees Buy 9,000 Tickets For Bullets' Game

The Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce has purchased 9,000 seats to the Baltimore Bullets National Basketball Association game against the San Francisco Warriors and Wilt Chamberlain, Saturday, Oct. 19th.

Jaycee President William E. Brannon of Catonsville and Bullets General Manager Paul Hoffman announced that three thousand members of the 60 Jaycee chapters in the state will sell tickets to the game.

The project, which will culminate the Jaycee's "Physical Fitness Week," is the first of its kind in the state.

Proceeds from the event will be distributed to local Jaycee chapters throughout the state for Community level projects.

Favored Ragusa Romps In St. Leger

DONCASTER, England (UPI)—Odds-on favorite Ragusa romped to a six-length victory in the St. Leger Stakes Wednesday and his owner turned down a $1.4 million offer for the horse from a U.S. syndicate.

Ragusa was easing up as he crossed the finish line in the St. Leger, the last of the five classic races of the British turf season. As the hottest St. Leger favorite in years, Ragusa paid 2 to 5 in the betting.

The huge offer for Ragusa was made before the race, on condition that he win. Shipping tycoon Jimmy Mullion, who bought Ragusa as a yearling, turned it down.

Georgia Schools' Athletic Policies To Be Probed

Butts Case Spurs Board Of Regents To Take Action

ATLANTA (UPI) — The state Board of Regents, spurred by the bitter aftermath of Wallace Butts' $10 million libel suit, named a five - man committee Wednesday to investigate the athletic policies at all institutions in Georgia's state university system.

Regents Chairman James A. Dunlap promised that the inquiry would not be a "witchhunt" but a careful evaluation of the sports programs at the schools.

There are 19 institutions in the university system, but it was expected the investigation would center on the athletic programs of the two largest, the University of Georgia at Athens and Georgia Tech—the only two which have major football teams.

The regents named Savannah, Ga., lawyer Anton F. Solms to head the five-man study commission which is to make its report to the regents later at an unspecified time. Solms is a graduate of Georgia where he was a basketball player.

Dunlap said he had long advocated a study of athletic policies and programs in the university system but admitted that the Butts' case "pointed it up more sharply."

Butts, former football coaching great and ex-athletic director at Georgia, sued the Saturday Evening Post for $10 million on grounds that it libeled him in an article accusing him of passing vital team secrets to rival Alabama before last year's football game.

A federal jury last month awarded Butts $3.06 million damages and the magazine has asked for a new trial.

Frostburg Flag League To Meet

The Frostburg Flag Football League for boys 13 years of age and under will be organized for the 1963 sesason at a meeting tomorrow at Beall High Stadium beginning at 6:30 p. m.

All boys interested in playing and men willing to help coach are urged to attend tomorrow's session. Any Frostburg area boy who is 13 or under as of September 1 is eligible to participate.

Organized by Jerry Calhoun, Beall High football coach, this is the sixth year of operation for the flag league. Four teams will be organized — the Steelers, Colts, Giants and Redskins.

The non-contact sport features such aspects of regular football as running, passing and punting. It differs from touch football in that each player wears a "flag" tucked under his belt, and the flag must be removed from the ball carrier before the play is stopped.

Perry To Join 49ers Tuesday

May Be Activated Later In Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fullback Joe Perry, one of the National Football League's long-time stars, will return to San Francisco where he built his fame from 1948 through 1960.

The 49ers said Perry would join the squad Tuesday and "will participate in all team meetings, but will not be placed on the active list at this time.

"But it is hoped that sometime during the season he will be activated for the minimum three-game period he needs to qualify under the league pension plan."

Perry was traded to the Baltimore Colts after the 1960 season. The Colts placed him on waivers Tuesday. The one-time Compton College ace thus found himself just short of eligibility to qualify for an NFL pension.

The 49ers said linebacker Carl Kammerer, whom they placed on waivers Tuesday, had been claimed by the Washington Redskins.

Twin Double Payoff Dispute Compromised

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A compromise was reached Wednesday in the dispute over the ownership of a winning Atlantic City Race Course twin double mutuel ticket worth $51,225.

Attorney Herbert Horn, counsel for Francis West of Ocean City said that following a meeting in his office, the three parties involved decided to share the money.

West, who put up the $2, received $21,500, Marion Morris of Ocean City, $5,100 and Albert E. Henry, also of Ocean City, $24,625.

West said he had given the $2 to Miss Morris, a maid in the motel he operates, to go to the track to bet the numbers, 6-9-9-2, which he said was a combination of his and his father-in-law's ages.

Miss Morris did not go to the track but gave the money to Henry who went and placed the bet.

West filed a petition Tuesday restraining the race track from cashing the ticket which he said belonged to him alone. He withdrew the petition and the track paid the ticket Wednesday.

The race course announced Wednesday it will not hold its twin double on Saturdays for the remainder of this year's meet.

General Manager Philip J. Baker said canceling of the special double was necessitated by the lack of mutuel facilities to accommodate the needs of the large crowds.

Giardello-Jordan Bout Rescheduled

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — The Joey Giardello-Charley Jordan 10-round middleweight bout at the Paterson Armory has been changed from Sept. 21 to Oct. 4, promoter Lou Duva said Wednesday.

The change was made to permit Giardello to straighten out some personal matters that have prevented him from training properly, Duva said.

Army's Cook Seen Lost For Season

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Curt Cook, Army's injured second string quarterback, probably is through for the football season, a West Point spokesman said Wednesday.

"The best we can hope is that he might be fit for the Navy game, Nov. 30," the spokesman said, "but even that's unlikely."

Channel Conquered

HYTHE, England (AP) — Battling strong tides and currents that forced him several miles off course, Kendall Mellor, 27-year-old Yorkshire bookbinder, swam the English Channel Wednesday from Cap Griz Nez, France, in about 16½ hours. The distance was approximately 20 miles.

Chuvalo Will Sub For Ailing Terrell

NEW YORK (AP) — George Chuvalo, veteran Canadian heavyweight, has replaced the ailing Ernie Terrell as an opponent for Mike DeJohn in the nationally televised 10-round bout at Louisville, Ky., Sept. 27, the ABC network announced Wednesday.

Terrell, originally scheduled to fight the Miami Beach heavyweight, bowed out because of a stomach disorder.

Georgia Schools' Athletic Policies To Be Probed

Butts Case Spurs Board Of Regents To Take Action

ATLANTA (UPI) — The state Board of Regents, spurred by the bitter aftermath of Wallace Butts' $10 million libel suit, named a five - man committee Wednesday to investigate the athletic policies at all institutions in Georgia's state university system.

Regents Chairman James A. Dunlap promised that the inquiry would not be a "witchhunt" but a careful evaluation of the sports programs at the schools.

There are 19 institutions in the university system, but it was expected the investigation would center on the athletic programs of the two largest, the University of Georgia at Athens and Georgia Tech—the only two which have major football teams.

The regents named Savannah, Ga., lawyer Anton F. Solms to head the five-man study commission which is to make its report to the regents later at an unspecified time. Solms is a graduate of Georgia where he was a basketball player.

Dunlap said he had long advocated a study of athletic policies and programs in the university system but admitted that the Butts' case "pointed it up more sharply."

Butts, former football coaching great and ex-athletic director at Georgia, sued the Saturday Evening Post for $10 million on grounds that it libeled him in an article accusing him of passing vital team secrets to rival Alabama before last year's football game.

A federal jury last month awarded Butts $3.06 million damages and the magazine has asked for a new trial.

Frostburg Flag League To Meet

The Frostburg Flag Football League for boys 13 years of age and under will be organized for the 1963 season at a meeting tomorrow at Beall High Stadium beginning at 6:30 p. m.

All boys interested in playing and men willing to help coach are urged to attend tomorrow's session. Any Frostburg area boy who is 13 or under as of September 1 is eligible to participate.

Organized by Jerry Calhoun, Beall High football coach, this is the sixth year of operation for the flag league. Four teams will be organized — the Steelers, Colts, Giants and Redskins.

The non-contact sport features such aspects of regular football as running, passing and punting. It differs from touch football in that each player wears a "flag" tucked under his belt, and the flag must be removed from the ball carrier before the play is stopped.

Perry To Join 49ers Tuesday

May Be Activated Later In Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fullback Joe Perry, one of the National Football League's long-time stars, will return to San Francisco where he built his fame from 1948 through 1960.

The 49ers said Perry would join the squad Tuesday and "will participate in all team meetings, but will not be placed on the active list at this time.

"But it is hoped that sometime during the season he will be activated for the minimum three-game period he needs to qualify under the league pension plan."

Perry was traded to the Baltimore Colts after the 1960 season. The Colts placed him on waivers Tuesday. The one-time Compton College ace thus found himself just short of eligibility to qualify for an NFL pension.

The 49ers said linebacker Carl Kammerer, whom they placed on waivers Tuesday, had been claimed by the Washington Redskins.

Twin Double Payoff Dispute Compromised

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A compromise was reached Wednesday in the dispute over the ownership of a winning Atlantic City Race Course twin double mutuel ticket worth $51,225.

Attorney Herbert Horn, counsel for Francis West of Ocean City said that following a meeting in his office, the three parties involved decided to share the money.

West, who put up the $2, received $21,500, Marion Morris of Ocean City, $5,100 and Albert E. Henry, also of Ocean City, $24,625.

West said he had given the $2 to Miss Morris, a maid in the motel he operates, to go to the track to bet the numbers, 6-9-9-2, which he said was a combination of his and his father-in-law's ages.

Miss Morris did not go to the track but gave the money to Henry who went and placed the bet.

West filed a petition Tuesday restraining the race track from cashing the ticket which he said belonged to him alone. He withdrew the petition and the track paid the ticket Wednesday.

The race course announced Wednesday it will not hold its twin double on Saturdays for the remainder of this year's meet.

General Manager Philip J. Baker said canceling of the special double was necessitated by the lack of mutuel facilities to accommodate the needs of the large crowds.

I do not ask them to visit me. They come because they want to. What can I do to cure myself of this horrible feeling of revulsion against my daughter's husband? I despise myself for not being able to handle the situation better but I loathe the man and it shows. — OUTLAW IN-LAW

DEAR OUTLAW: Suggest to your daughter that she arrange her visits for the most part when she can come alone. The less you see of her husband the better for all of you.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband, George W. Shober, who passed away 1 year ago today, September 12, 1962.
Do not ask me if I miss him,
There's such a vacant place.
Or I think I hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.
Days of sadness still come o'er me
Tears in silence often flow
Memory keeps him ever near me,
Though he left me 1 year ago.
Loving wife, Mary

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband, George W. Shober, who passed away 1 year ago today, September 12, 1962.
Do not ask me if I miss him,
There's such a vacant place.
Or I think I hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.
Days of sadness still come o'er me
Tears in silence often flow
Memory keeps him ever near me,
Though he left me 1 year ago.
Loving wife, Mary

Philosophical View

LONDON (UPI)—The Bank of England's quarterly bulletin Wednesday took a philosophical attitude toward the possibility of making banknotes detergent-proof or less liable to mutilation.

"Nothing is going to stop a small boy chewing up banknotes, or a detergent washing out the ink," the quarterly said. "If we made banknotes out of steel, somebody would probably put them on the railway line."

Philosophical View

LONDON (UPI)—The Bank of England's quarterly bulletin Wednesday took a philosophical attitude toward the possibility of making banknotes detergent-proof or less liable to mutilation.

"Nothing is going to stop a small boy chewing up banknotes, or a detergent washing out the ink," the quarterly said. "If we made banknotes out of steel, somebody would probably put them on the railway line."

Local Negroes Air Grievances About Bias

Several Hundred Attend Meeting

Several hundred Negroes gathered last night at McKendree Methodist Church on Paca Street for a "town meeting" designed to give them an opportunity to air grievances about alleged discriminatory practices they have found in and around Cumberland.

The meeting came to a close when Mrs. Romaine Franklin, treasurer of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a member of the membership committee, urged all of those present to join the NAACP.

About 50 persons accepted her invitation and came forward to pay their dues. James F. Hurt, president of the local chapter, said this more than doubled the chapter's membership because only about 30 persons previously belonged.

Job Bias Cited

Mr. Hurt said most of the grievances presented at the 90-minute meeting involved alleged job and housing discrimination. He also reported that some of those present contended that some local restaurants still are refusing to serve Negroes although others are accepting their patronage.

The local NAACP president explained that no specific course of action was taken as a result of last night's meeting. He promised that all complaints about discrimination, particularly involving jobs, will be investigated to see what remedies can be found.

He promised that all efforts undertaken locally will be done without violence. He stressed that the most effective means for progress in race relations appears to be through the quiet operations of a bi-racial committee.

Mr. Hurt opened the meeting with a brief talk.

"Consciously or unconsciously, we are faced with various discriminatory practices and deprived of our legal rights; unfair employment, substandard wages, restriction and segregation in housing; barred from many public establishments and other problems which are detrimental to our rights and our human dignity," he said.

"Sit Idly By'

"Shall we continue to sit idly by and be satisfied, still wearing the chains of slavery and the yoke of fear; to be poisoned with the venom of injustice and intolerance, and then crawl off to some lonely corner to die? No, again and again, I say no!

"Too long have we worshipped at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln and listened to the elegant words of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence with little or no meaning to the black man. Today we must build cathedrals for ourselves. We must build for our children and our children's children."

John Gordon, vice president of the local chapter, reminded all of those present of the importance of registering so they can vote. The office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement is open for registration Monday through Friday of each week.

Rev. Frank L. Horton, pastor of the McKendree Methodist Church, also spoke briefly.

Although the crowd last night was predominantly Negro, there were a few white women present representing the United Church Women, as well as two newspapermen.

Unknown U.S. Soldier Proved Key To Success In Battle Of North Point

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

A debt that all Americans owe a certain unknown soldier should be recalled today as Marylanders observe Defenders Day, the 149th anniversary of the Battle of North Point, the key to the defense of Baltimore in the War of 1812.

General Ross was the commanding officer of some 5,000 British regulars who landed off North Point at the mouth of the Patapsco River early on the morning of September 12, 1814. They had not marched far before they encountered incompleted breastworks.

General Orders Halt

Feeling that the entire American army must be preparing nearby for a decisive conflict, General Ross ordered a halt before commencing a general attack.

This is the key moment in the preparations for the attack, according to Matthew Page Andrews' History of Maryland: Province and State. This history is available for reference in the new Wilbur Wilson Memorial Room of the Allegany County Library.

At this point, General Ross rode forward to survey the field. It was here that the unknown rifleman employed his marksmanship to good effect. He mortally wounded the general almost before the fight had begun.

Andrews writes in his history of Maryland that General Ross' death had a tendency to destroy the morale of the invaders even though a large proportion of them had served under Wellington in the Peninsular campaigns or under Nelson on the Nile and at Trafalgar.

Marksmanship Was Key

American Major General Samuel Smith had based his defense of Baltimore 149 years ago on the superior marksmanship which was illustrated by the British General's untimely death.

General Smith was well aware of the effectiveness of the superior discipline and training of the British regulars. He knew that the British troops were perhaps the best in the world in the use of the bayonet. But he also knew that American citizens of that day

Hardesty Names Department Heads At FSC

R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State College, announced last night the final appointment of heads of departments in the division of humanities.

Dr. Hubert W. Ellingsworth will head the department of speech and drama; Thomas C. Slettehaugh, art; Dr. Ward K. Cole, music, and Dr. George Barber, English.

Dr. Rudolph Bremen is chairman of the humanities division and serves as head of the modern foreign languages and literature department.

Dr. Ellingsworth received his B.A. degree from Pacific University, Oregon, M.A. degree from State College of Washington, Ph.D. from Florida State University and has served as instructor at the University of Connecticut and Michigan State University.

Dr. Slettehaugh received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Minnesota and a doctorate in art from Pennsylvania University. He has taught at Pennsylvania State University, University of Minnesota, Syracuse University, Slippery Rock State Teachers College and South Dakota Teachers College.

Dr. Cole, a native of Montana, received a B.A. degree in music and education from the University of Washington, studied at Juilliard School of Music and received M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from Columbia University Teachers College.

His teaching experience includes Teachers College, Columbia University; Eastern Montana College of Education, and summer music workshops including Fred Waring's Music Workshop.

City Tax Bills Placed In Mail

Some 13,000 city real estate and personal property tax bills were placed in the mail yesterday morning, according to City Tax Collector George Edward Davis.

Corporations are billed by the city as soon as the collector receives notification of the assessment from the State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

On August 19, the Mayor and City Council adopted a city tax rate of $1.56 on each $100 of assessed valuation. That was one cent less than the rate of last year. No interest will be charged on city taxes paid on or before Monday, October 21.

One per cent interest will be charged after October 21 and the rate will increase one-half per cent per month thereafter.

Mr. Hudson is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and the South Western Baptist Theological Seminary. He has been serving as pastor of Remington Baptist Chapel, which is a mission sponsored by Hampden Baptist Church in Baltimore.

Mr. Hudson is married to the former Linette Schmucker of Baltimore and they have three children, Mark, six; Rebecca, four; and Paul, six months.

Scripture and prayer at the service will be offered by Robert Moreland, Rev. Dallas C. Bivins, pastor of Second Baptist Church, will deliver the ordination sermon.

Rev. W. E. Dewberry, pastor of Hampden Baptist Church, will give the ordination prayer, and Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, former pastor of LaVale Baptist Church, will present a Bible to Mr. Hudson.

Rev. B. Finney Bragg, pastor of LaVale Baptist Church, will deliver the charge to Mr. Hudson. Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of Bedford Road Baptist Church, will give the charge to the church.

Music for the service will be provided by Kermit England.

College Here Registers 157 For New Term

A trend toward more full-time st udents at Allegany Community College was evident yesterday as registration for the first semester of the college's third year began.

Mrs. Richard Hott, the new college registrar, signed up 97 full-time students and 60 part-time students yesterday and last night.

Registration will conclude today. The hours are 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Last September, at the close of two days of registration there were only 85 full-time students and 135 part-time students.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, said he was gratified by yesterday's response and expressed a hope it continues today.

Nikep, Moscow Seek Water

Residents and property owners in the Allegany County communities of Nikep and Moscow have asked the County Sanitary Commission to help solve their water problem.

The commission has asked County Engineer Albert S. Paye to conduct a survey on the feasibility of bringing water from Lonaconing to the two communities.

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the sanitary commission, informed the commission that the State Health Department has reported that the well water now being used in the two communities is not fit for human consumption. He said that the total assessed valuation of Election District 25 in that area is about $250,000.

The communities have expresed a wish that the water line of the Lonaconing Water Company be extended from the vicinity of Valley High School southward about one and six-tenth miles to the communities.

Six Garrett Boys Placed On Probation

Were Involved In Entries, Thefts

Six Oakland area youths were placed on indefinite probation yesterday by Associate Judge Stuart Hamill on charges of breaking, entering, larceny and turning in false fire alarms.

All six boys, who range in age from 14 to 17, were involved in the breaking and entering and larceny of items from the Oakland Discount Center, and two of the boys were involved in the breaking and entering of the Oakland Country Club.

Judge Hamill ordered the youths to make restitution of $285 to the two places which were burglarized. Three of the six youths also were found guilty of turning in three false fire alarms.

Deputy Sheriff Wayne Wilt said many items were taken from the Discount Center, all of which has been recovered. Food and beer and $20 in cash were taken from the Country Club, according to the deputy sheriff. The theft occurred in March and the boys were arrested last month by Deputy Wilt and Sgt. W. D. Henline of the State Police.

Garrett County Sheriff James E. Frantz left yesterday for Parkersburg, W. Va., where police are holding Bobby Ray Williams, about 20, a former worker on the Stoney River Dam project, for whom four warrants charging false pretense have been issued in Garrett County.

The deputy yesterday returned to Oakland Clarence Edward Lewis, 32, formerly of Garrett County, from the State Correctional Institute in Huntingdon, Pa.

Wilt said a detainer had been filed by Garrett County authorities for Lewis, who has been charged with statutory burglary (breaking and entering and larceny) of the Skewis' store on Route 50 about three years ago.

Three persons were involved in the larceny, the deputy said. Lewis' brother, William Lewis, is serving time in a correctional institution in Rock View, Pa., about 30 miles from Huntingdon, and the other party has completed an 18-month prison term for the Skewis' incident.

Man Draws Fines On City Charges

A local resident was fined a total of $33 including costs yesterday afternoon in Police Court when he was found guilty of two violations of the City Code.

Paul Beckwith, who pleaded not guilty, was fined $19 including costs for conducting a pawnbroker's business without a license and an additional $14 including costs for failure to report to the chief of police in conducting the business.

The case was heard by Trial Magistrate Harold E. Naughton. The man was arrested Tuesday by City Police Detective Captain James E. Van and Detective Harry Iser.

Gray Ladies Receive Red Cross Award

New Course Is Planned

Thirteen members of the Gray Ladies of the Allegany County and Mineral County chapters of the Red Cross received service strips during a meeting of the Potomac Valley Hospital Gray Lady Group which was held at the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church in Keyser.

Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary of the Allegany County Chapter presented the service bars to those who had given more than 115 hours between October 1962 and June 30, 1963.

Gray Ladies of Allegany County who received a bar include Mrs. Jean Beard, Mrs. Elsa Beach, Mrs. Freda Elliott, Mrs. Mary Theresa Hug, Mrs. Evelyn Malcolm, Mrs. Mary Michael, Mrs. Bonnie Scheermesser, Mrs. Elaine Walsh, Mrs. Clare Wilson and Mrs. Cleo Wilkins.

Mineral County Chapter Gray Ladies who were presented the bars include Mrs. Georgeanna Hess, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanhagen, and Mrs. Louise Oss.

It was announced that a preliminary meeting for a new Gray Lady course will be held on Wednesday, September 18 at 2:30 p. m. in the church at Keyser. Ladies interested in the course are asked to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Jean Steward, executive secretary of Mineral County Chapter and Mrs. Lindsay welcomed the Gray Ladies at the recent meeting when a new schedule for work at Potomac Valley Hospital was set up for the next two months.

Sometime ago the Gray Ladies at Keyser took over the visitor's desk at the hospital. They proved so satisfactory to the hospital that the Allegany County Chapter was requested to aid the Mineral County Chapter in training additional Gray Ladies who would take over the responsibility of staffing the desk.

Gray Ladies are now on the desk at all times during visiting hours, seven days a week, including holidays. The work is 100 per cent volunteer.

Much credit for the success of this hard working group goes to Mrs. Oss of Keyser and Mrs. Walsh of Westernport, co-chairmen who have given many hours at home recruiting workers in excess of the hours they have served in the hospital.

The next meeting of the group will be held on Wednesday, November 6 from 9 to 11 a. m. at a place to be announced later.

Interest Shown In YMCA Adult Classes

Benjamin Haines, YMCA secretary, announces that six of the nine "Y" adult informal educational classes already have sufficient enrollment to make certain that the classes will go through as scheduled.

The remainder of classes will continue to be scheduled with enrollments accepted up to the first day.

Classes now assured of being held at their scheduled times are vocabulary building taught by Victor McKay, art sketching taught by Harry Mandell, Spanish language taught by Andy Velasquez, German language taught by Dr. Myron Simpson, knitting and crocheting taught by Mrs. Eva Stein, and ballroom dancing taught by Mrs. Peggy Mackert. A maximum of 20 students will be accepted in each class.

Those classes still on the borderline of minimum enrollment needed to hold the classes are French language taught by Mrs. George Aldom, ceramics taught by Mrs. Thelma Niland, and oil painting taught by Mrs. Max Bastian. A minimum of 10 students is needed to hold a class. Haines feels that, with several days still left for registration, most classes should be formed, and a few classes will have to be limited.

Additional information about the classes may be obtained by calling the YMCA at PA 4-5445.

ILGWU Local To Meet

Local 434, International Ladies Garment Workers Union, will hold a special meeting at the Labor Temple at 3:45 p. m. Wednesday.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Prussic Acid Poisoning Warning Given By Steger

Allegany County Agent Joseph M. Steger yesterday reminded county farmers that under certain conditions sudans and sorghums can cause the death of cattle from prussic acid poisoning.

Information Mr. Steger has received from the University of Maryland reveals that the poisoning property usually develops in dangerous amounts only when the growth of the plants is checked or stopped by drought, grazing and mowing.

Young plants contain much more of the poison than more mature plants. The dry season of this summer, followed by the recent rains, make ideal conditions for prussic acid poisoning. The forage which must be removed should not be grazed or green-chopped but should be thoroughly cured as hay or dry fodder. Silage made from these plants is generally safe to feed.

They are:

1. As the maturing of the plant increases, the prussic acid content of the plant decreases. Small plants, young growing branches and suckers in older crops are high in prussic acid.

2. Well cured forage has lost most prussic acid content. Partly cured forage will be very high in prussic acid content and therefore dangerous to feed.

3. A light feeding of grain before the animals are turned on the forage for grazing will help prevent injury. A feeding of hay also has proved useful in counteracting the effects of prussic acid poisoning.

4. If animals accidentally graze forage high in prussic acid, a veterinarian should be contacted. There are several treatments that are successful, if given in time, but the necessary materials are not generally found on the farm.

5. Symptoms of prussic acid poisoning are depression, paralysis, stupor and difficulty breathing. Death may occur in minutes.

Launch Plans For Home Show

Local Negroes Air Grievances About Bias

Several Hundred Attend Meeting

Several hundred Negroes gathered last night at McKendree Methodist Church on Paca Street for a "town meeting" designed to give them an opportunity to air grievances about alleged discriminatory practices they have found in and around Cumberland.

The meeting came to a close when Mrs. Romaine Franklin, treasurer of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a member of the membership committee, urged all of those present to join the NAACP.

About 50 persons accepted her invitation and came forward to pay their dues. James F. Hurt, president of the local chapter, said this more than doubled the chapter's membership because only about 30 persons previously belonged.

Job Bias Cited

Mr. Hurt said most of the grievances presented at the 90-minute meeting involved alleged job and housing discrimination. He also reported that some of those present contended that some local restaurants still are refusing to serve Negroes although others are accepting their patronage.

The local NAACP president explained that no specific course of action was taken as a result of last night's meeting. He promised that all complaints about discrimination, particularly involving jobs, will be investigated to see what remedies can be found.

He promised that all efforts undertaken locally will be done without violence. He stressed that the most effective means for progress in race relations appears to be through the quiet operations of a bi-racial committee.

Mr. Hurt opened the meeting with a brief talk.

"Consciously or unconsciously, we are faced with various discriminatory practices and deprived of our legal rights; unfair employment, substandard wages, restriction and segregation in housing; barred from many public establishments and other problems which are detrimental to our rights and our human dignity," he said.

"Sit Idly By'

"Shall we continue to sit idly by and be satisfied, still wearing the chains of slavery and the yoke of fear; to be poisoned with the venom of injustice and intolerance, and then crawl off to some lonely corner to die? No, again and again, I say no!

"Too long have we worshipped at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln and listened to the elegant words of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence with little or no meaning to the black man. Today we must build cathedrals for ourselves. We must build for our children and our children's children."

John Gordon, vice president of the local chapter, reminded all of those present of the importance of registering so they can vote. The office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement is open for registration Monday through Friday of each week.

Rev. Frank L. Horton, pastor of the McKendree Methodist Church, also spoke briefly.

John Wormack, secretary of the local chapter, was the only officer absent last night.

Although the crowd last night was predominantly Negro, there were a few white women present representing the United Church Women, as well as two newspapermen.

New College Registrar Signs Up Students

Unknown U.S. Soldier Proved Key To Success In Battle Of North Point

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

A debt that all Americans owe a certain unknown soldier should be recalled today as Marylanders observe Defenders Day, the 149th anniversary of the Battle of North Point, the key to the defense of Baltimore in the War of 1812.

The unknown soldier was an American rifleman whose expert marksmanship resulted in the mortal wounding of British General Robert Ross.

General Ross was the commanding officer of some 5,000 British regulars who landed off North Point at the mouth of the Patapsco River early on the morning of September 12, 1814. They had not marched far before they encountered incompleted breastworks.

General Orders Halt

Feeling that the entire American army must be preparing nearby for a decisive conflict, General Ross ordered a halt before commencing a general attack.

This is the key moment in the preparations for the attack, according to Matthew Page Andrews' History of Maryland: Province and State. This history is available for reference in the new Wilbur Wilson Memorial Room of the Allegany County Library.

At this point, General Ross rode forward to survey the field. It was here that the unknown rifleman employed his marksmanship to good effect. He mortally wounded the general almost before the fight had begun.

Andrews writes in his history of Maryland that General Ross' death had a tendency to destroy the morale of the invaders even though a large proportion of them had served under Wellington in the Peninsular campaigns or under Nelson on the Nile and at Trafalgar.

Marksmanship Was Key

American Major General Samuel Smith had based his defense of Baltimore 149 years ago on the superior marksmanship which was illustrated by the British General's untimely death.

General Smith was well aware of the effectiveness of the superior discipline and training of the British regulars. He knew that the British troops were perhaps the best in the world in the use of the bayonet. But he also knew that American citizens of that day

Thirteen members of the Gray Ladies of the Allegany County and Mineral County chapters of the Red Cross received service strips during a meeting of the Potomac Valley Hospital Gray Lady Group which was held at the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church in Keyser.

Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary of the Allegany County Chapter presented the service bars to those who had given more than 115 hours between October 1962 and June 30, 1963.

Gray Ladies of Allegany County who received a bar include Mrs. Jean Beard, Mrs. Elsa Beach, Mrs. Freda Elliott, Mrs. Mary Theresa Hug, Mrs. Evelyn Malcolm, Mrs. Mary Michael, Mrs. Bonnie Scheermesser, Mrs. Elaine Walsh, Mrs. Clare Wilson and Mrs. Cleo Wilkins.

Mineral County Chapter Gray Ladies who were presented the bars include Mrs. Georgeanna Hess, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanhagen, and Mrs. Louise Oss.

It was announced that a preliminary meeting for a new Gray Lady course will be held on Wednesday, September 18 at 2:30 p. m. in the church at Keyser. Ladies interested in the course are asked to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Jean Steward, executive secretary of Mineral County Chapter and Mrs. Lindsay welcomed the Gray Ladies at the recent meeting when a new schedule for work at Potomac Valley Hospital was set up for the next two months.

Sometime ago the Gray Ladies at Keyser took over the visitor's desk at the hospital. They proved so satisfactory to the hospital that the Allegany County Chapter was requested to aid the Mineral County Chapter in training additional Gray Ladies who would take over the responsibility of staffing the desk.

Gray Ladies are now on the desk at all times during visiting hours, seven days a week, including holidays. The work is 100 per cent volunteer.

Much credit for the success of this hard working group goes to Mrs. Oss of Keyser and Mrs. Walsh of Westernport, co-chairmen who have given many hours at home recruiting workers in excess of the hours they have served in the hospital.

The next meeting of the group will be held on Wednesday, November 6 from 9 to 11 a. m. at a place to be announced later.

Interest Shown In YMCA Adult Classes

Benjamin Haines, YMCA secretary, announces that six of the nine "Y" adult informal educational classes already have sufficient enrollment to make certain that the classes will go through as scheduled.

The remainder of classes will continue to be scheduled with enrollments accepted up to the first day.

Classes will start Monday, with different classes each night of the week.

Classes now assured of being held at their scheduled times are vocabulary building taught by Victor McKay, art sketching taught by Harry Mandell, Spanish language taught by Andy Velasquez, German language taught by Dr. Myron Simpson, knitting and crocheting taught by Mrs. Eva Stein, and ballroom dancing taught by Mrs. Peggy Mackert. A maximum of 20 students will be accepted in each class.

Those classes still on the borderline of minimum enrollment needed to hold the classes are French language taught by Mrs. George Aldom, ceramics taught by Mrs. Thelma Niland, and oil painting taught by Mrs. Max Bastian. A minimum of 10 students is needed to hold a class. Haines feels that, with several days still left for registration, most classes should be formed, and a few classes will have to be limited.

Additional information about the classes may be obtained by calling the YMCA at PA 4-5445.

ILGWU Local To Meet

Local 434, International Ladies Garment Workers Union, will hold a special meeting at the Labor Temple at 3:45 p. m. Wednesday.

Prussic Acid Poisoning Warning Given By Steger

Allegany County Agent Joseph M. Steger yesterday reminded county farmers that under certain conditions sudans and sorghums can cause the death of cattle from prussic acid poisoning.

Information Mr. Steger has received from the University of Maryland reveals that the poisoning property usually develops in dangerous amounts only when the growth of the plants is checked or stopped by drought, grazing and mowing.

Young plants contain much more of the poison than more mature plants. The dry season of this summer, followed by the recent rains, make ideal conditions for prussic acid poisoning. The forage which must be removed should not be grazed or green-chopped but should be thoroughly cured as hay or dry fodder. Silage made from these plants is generally safe to feed.

Five basic facts to remember about prussic acid poisoning were cited by the county agent.

They are:

1. As the maturing of the plant increases, the prussic acid content of the plant decreases. Small plants, young growing branches and suckers in older crops are high in prussic acid.

2. Well cured forage has lost most prussic acid content. Partly cured forage will be very high in prussic acid content and therefore dangerous to feed.

3. A light feeding of grain before the animals are turned on the forage for grazing will help prevent injury. A feeding of hay also has proved useful in counteracting the effects of prussic acid poisoning.

4. If animals accidentally graze forage high in prussic acid, a veterinarian should be contacted. There are several treatments that are successful, if given in time, but the necessary materials are not generally found on the farm.

5. Symptoms of prussic acid poisoning are depression, paralysis, stupor and difficulty breathing. Death may occur in minutes.

Launch Plans For Home Show
